

IPSG on : THE PEASANT MOVEMENT IN THE TERAI REGION

India is a semi-colonial and a semi-feudal country, 80% of whose population live in the villages. The contradiction between the people of our country and feudalism is the principal contradiction. The comprador-bureaucrat bourgeoisie, the landlords and the jotedars have been carrying on their rule and exploitation through their political organisation, the Congress Party, by protecting fully and developing imperialist interests and by covering up the basis of feudalism with legal coatings. So the peasants are the basis and the main force of the anti-imperialist and anti-feudal struggle. Unless the peasants are liberated it is impossible to achieve the liberation of all oppressed classes. The Terai peasants are a part of the peasantry of our country and of whom 70% are poor and landless, 20% are middle peasants and 10% are rich peasants. These heroic peasants dealt merciless blows to the obsolete and rotten feudal elements-- the jotedars, landlords and usurers. The State apparatus of the comprador-bureaucrat bourgeoisie, landlords and jotedars is preserving the feudal system by force and carrying on an armed rule. The heroic peasants are opposing this armed rule with armed revolt. By this action the peasants have swept into the dust the political, economic and social authority of the landlords and jotedars, who represent feudalism, and have established the rule of the peasant committee in the villages through their armed revolt.
