

March 8th - women strike in Italy organised of proletarian feminist revolutionary movement directed by PCm -Italy

8th march: women workers' struggling day
Strike in Palermo and Taranto
Actions in Ravenna Milano Bergamo

strike for

Women workers of different cleaning companies whom government and masters negate the minimum contract, normal wage conditions and elementary rights; women workers company and other services, a lot of women always more precarious, on which labour, on which misery wages of 350/450 euro monthly, companies enrich themselves, and sometimes, like old slave owners, decide who must and who mustn't continue to work, negating to them the certainty to nurture the sons. But these women cannot be submitted by no masters and this year too they will struggle on the 8th march.

strike for

Women workers from the textile companies in the south Italy, that just on the 8th march will be on strike; women from the big to the small companies often hid to anyone so to better exploit; to fight against the masters that want to fire hundreds, after they have made big profits through a super-exploitation, double-dipping work, completely irregular working hours and wages that in particular in south Italy are really a misery and an offense; the work is sometimes also full of humiliations, blackmails, but also of pressures and sexual harassments. The wonderful clothes sold at impossible prices! If they could speak they will tell the hard work, the fear of being sacked, the rage of accepting every blackmail, abuse, for a hundred euro.

Strike for

Women workers of the big ILVA steel industry of Taranto that two years ago, together with the Slai Cobas, denounced and made possible his firing, and that on the next 22th march, before the court, will fight to condemn a boss, who protected by the "Riva system", made of abuses and blackmails, violated a women worker, and harassed many others.

Strike for

All the women workers that Berlusconi's government has decided they must be inferior and discriminated although if they do the same job of the men, saying, through the heinous "Biagi Law" that if they want to work they must accept half wage. Women that after the work hours must do somersault to balance the counts, fighting everyday against the hike in prices, against life conditions becoming always more precarious and miserable.

8th march is our day of fight, rebellion, unity, women strength against the masters, against the masters' government. It's the day in which in the whole world the most exploited and oppressed women stand up, and when they do this, they strike fear.

Out of Iraq, away with the USA Nato bases

United States have organized and managed the elections to legitimate their invasion and conquest of Iraq and forge a comprador-bourgeoisie government that allows them to control the country and to undermine the resistance of the Iraqi people as an integral part of a plan aiming to strengthen the US position in this strategic region so as to transform it in a base for new aggressions against Iran and Syria.

The Iraqi people have given its response to these elections just fighting these elections. Lot of voters too have said no to the occupation. In the Shiite and Kurdish regions have pushed the masses in the sense of exercising a certain influence on the future of the country. The elections have occurred in militarized towns, and lists and candidates were often unknown to everyone. During the elections massacres, arrests and tortures continued. Just after the elections the military machine became active to repeat in Ramadi what they did in Falluja. It's in this climate that we can consider the attempt to kill the journalist of "Il Manifesto", Giuliana Sgrena, too.

The Berlusconi government has strongly sustained the election campaign and soon after has declared that the Italian occupation troops will stay there for almost a year more and will be better armed. The parliament has refinanced the military mission subtracting funds to the social spending.

The fake parliamentary opposition, that sees on the frontline Rutelli and Fassino, have utilized the elections to pursue their march to be always more closer to the Berlusconi government position and now they too say that the imperialist American troops and the Italian soldiers mustn't retreat and that those who really are resisting are those who go to vote and that the Iraqi resistance is terrorism that must be overcome and crushed. Bertinotti has joining this position too, although maintaining his opposition to the war, he considers on the same level the war and the resistance saying that this is terrorism and making propaganda for the politic of "non-violence" under the military occupation, which is in fact the position of the puppet Iraqi government.

Against the imperialist war, against the occupation of Iraq, against the presence in the region of the Italian imperialism, it's necessary more than ever to re-launch and develop the great opposition mass movement which has pushed in the latest years millions of people to demonstrate within the imperialist countries and within our country.

The demonstrations of 19th, 20th march developing in the whole world demand the withdrawing of the imperialist troops and the withdrawing of the Italian soldiers from Iraq. But these demonstrations must openly sustain the Iraqi resistance and the blows this gives to the imperialist occupation.

It's necessary to intensify the struggle within the imperialist countries and the opposition movement against the war must take root socially and territorially. It's necessary to denounce that the popular masses pay the costs of the war through the cuts to the social spending, and to promote the mobilisation of the workers through the strike against the war. It's necessary to demand the closure of the Nato/Usa bases that in different forms are all assuming a central role in the Bush's infinite war. It's well known now that the bases of Aviano and Ghedi are deposits of atomic weapons and that the Rimini airport is being transformed in technical landing for the US troops going to Iraq, and that Taranto has become the greatest naval bases of the Mediterranean and the real intention is to construct a new US naval base. The US command will be transferred to Napoli, while Bagnoli is the training place of the Iraqi military and police and the whole national territory is being inserted in the imperialist war plans and in the imperialist role of Italy, and the populations of the territory where the bases are located pay all this in terms of militarization, restrictions of democratic spaces, war economy, radioactive environmental pollution.

The fight against imperialism must go beyond the limits of a national mobilization once in a year and take the road for a prolonged and permanent mobilization that pushes the masses against the bases, the institution palaces, blocking the war transportations and the territory, and in the strong demand of the smashing down the war government.

The quantity of people that we can mobilize in these demonstrations is an important fact, but these numbers must be constructed in the clarity of a permanent and prolonged battle able to reach its own aims. In this sense it's clear that is incompatible with the fight movement against the war the position of the majority of parliamentary opposition, staying with Prodi, that only wants to strengthen the European pillar in a contrast/collusion with the US imperialism, but which is favourable to the war, to the imperialist control of the oil, that calls "terrorism" all the resistance of the peoples like Iraq, Palestine, and people's wars in Nepal, India, Philippines too. They stand for the permanence of the bases, the strengthening of military machinery. And within the anti-war movement it also must be isolated the position of the today majority of Rifondazione Comunista that acts as a support of the parliamentary left, which always more pushes itself to the sabotage of the demonstrations against the war on a local and on a national level, as it has been with the demonstrations of the 19th and 20th in Rome.
