HOW IT WORKS UP IN SEATTLE

They Have a Real Pin Head There for Chief of Police—His Works

(Mail Correspondence.) Seattle, Wash., Sept. 23.—The Seattle Socialist fight for free streets came to a sudden end Thursday, Sept. 19, when Herman F. Titus was jailed for refusing to pay a fine of $10 and $110 costs. He was taken into custody by order of Judge Frater, but it seems some "need in human form" came and paid his fine and Titus was released. The case had been pending since 1906, but immediately after the arrest of the prisoner an unknown sent $120 to the jail and said that although he was not a Socialist he was not so inhuman as to stand by and see a man die in such a hole as the Seattle jail, especially a sick man.

The chief of police, one Wappenstein, said he would not allow Titus to be released. It was known that the man was dangerously ill. The appearance of the fine left the police official no other alternative and he had to turn the prisoner loose.

ABOUT WAPPENSTEIN. In connection with the jailing of Titus, it appears that Wappenstein has declined on numerous occasions to accept bail for Socialists. Out of the wisdom of his heart he has evolved a system by which he believes he can thwart Socialism.

He put Blind Osborne into the dirtiest cell in his jail, where there was no such thing as a bucket, where the old man, sick and infirm, was compelled to stand all night like a horse in a foul stall. There were other and better cells in the jail, but these were denied Osborne by the man who rejoices in the title of chief of police. All this occurred before trial. He was not even guilty of an offense, if he had been convicted, because he did only what scores of other Seattle folks do every day, spoke on the streets without obstruction. He did not even mention Socialism.

WORST JAIL IN U. S. The Seattle jail is ranked as the worst in America, and this helpless blind man was incarcerated in its worst cell. The city of Wappenstein could not be induced to transfer farther south, where men, irrespective of party, could find time to do unto him as his deeds merit. Verily, he is the human limit, the ne plus ultra of small-bore officialdom.

LEWIS TAKES ZION CITY From the grave John Alexander Dowie, through his last will, has directed the election of John A. Lewis as chief overseer of Zion. The convention that carried out Dowie's will was composed of delegates from all over the world. Lewis at once took charge of Zion City, which could on account of the receivership—announced that he would at once begin repudiation of Dowie's newspaper, "Leaves of Healing," and that his effort would rehabilitate Zion City along the lines Dowie laid down. Lewis and his followers probably will have Zion City to themselves, for William Glenn, Voltra, the overseer elected by the people of Zion, announced at a meeting that he practically had completed his plans for the migration to New Mexico.

JOHN D. ARCHBOLD, RURALITE. The place of John D. Archbold's birth, has come to light. It is no reflection on this wealthy magnate of Standard Oil that he is a native of Doddridge county, West Virginia. Doddridge county was one of the first oil centers, when the greasy money did not amount to nearly so much as it does now. A long while before the war Doddridge county was tapped for light wells producing a light quality of oil, supposed to have some medicinal value. Later, Doddridge county developed into a monster oil producing territory and about the time John D. Archbold began to come into his own, Doddridge county would not know John D. now if it were to meet him on the pike, and it is doubtful if John D. would know his native home, but it is significant that so untutored and uncultured locality could produce a gentleman with so keen a scent for the dollars. In Doddridge county grandfathers wear the same old coonskin caps their daddies sewed together, and when they hunt jack rabbits they use smooth-bore, muzzle loaders, and carry their powder in a cow's horn, begun with a hole in the end, and this is why John D. Archbold can afford to bank elsewhere in more polished centers.

AFFINITY, STREET ROW, GEE. Lillian F. Howell, who married a medic, Dr. John W. S. Howell, 20 years her senior, of 5 Oakland Crescent, gave birth to a male child, which she named GEE. The doctor was one of those festive souls who are always looking for strange experiences, and he got quite a few. He saw pretty Lillian, who was sweet and impressionable to a fault, on the street, and after fruitless efforts to secure a formal introduction, took matters into his own hands, with the result that Lillian melted towards him like a warm sun on a cold street. They were married, and she took automobile rides, ate costly lunches, etc. Then they were married and took street car rides, and consumed Schweitzer and lagers. Later, the doctor began to long for new experiences, so he concocted, it is alleged, a scheme by which through mathematical calculation he could convict his wife of unbecoming conduct. He tried to make her confess that his deductions were correct but she spurned him, and went to mamma. The courts will act later, and as temporary Castoria have allowed Lillian $15 a week alimony.

THE HUSTLERS' COLUMN Plans are now being laid to meet the deficit that still remains in a systematic manner, so that there need be no further direct financial assistance through the paper after this plan has been explained and put in operation. But there still remains a pressing need for a quick lift during the present week. The response last week fell considerably short of what was needed, although it sufficed to tide over to this week. But there was a note of $100 which came due last Saturday which had to be met, and which was not counted in the estimates made last week. However, it is out of the way and the liabilities of the paper have been decreased just that much. There has been a number of these short-time loans which were made under previous emergencies that have been taken up and no new ones created. At the same time more than $1,000 worth of absolutely essential new machinery has been added in the last two months.

SCHOOL DAYS The football eleven of Crane and Hyde Park battled on a slippery, muddy field Saturday at Marshall Field to a tie score, 9 to 9. Both teams had practiced the forward pass, on-side kick and other features of the new style football. All this strenuous practice went for naught. Contrary to tradition, the classic Parkers had the advantage in weight over the brawny machinists and excelled in line plunging on this account. Clipping of Hyde Park was the human battering ram and broke through the West Side line for long gains. Once in the first half and twice in the last half he carried the ball to Crane's five-yard line. But the manual training team took a brace, forced the Social Riders to fumble and saved off imminent defeat. Lipski, the Crane quarter, made the longest run of the day, taking the ball from his own two-yard line to the center of the field, just before the end of the first half.

SECRET SERVICE VS. TEDDY BEARS Stop a Pretty Little Joke Planned to Make the President Smile

(By United Press Associations.) Vicksburg, Miss., Oct. 1.—"Teddy bears" would have smiled superciliously at President Roosevelt from behind every tree along the trail to be taken on his bear hunt near here if secret service men had not stopped the paws of several Mississippi men today. They had ordered many gross of "Teddy bears" and were arranging for great practical jokes. The secret service men could not appreciate the humor of it.

BOGUS OR NOT THIS PRINCESS GOT MONEY Aristocratic Evanston to-day is afraid it doesn't know a real princess from the bogus rattle. In the same connection several of the citizens are bewailing the loss of sundry sums, ranging from $50 to $500; while a landlord, a grocer, butcher and others are hot on a woman's trail.

THE CORPSE LEAPED FORTH. They do strange things down in West Virginia. Mrs. Fred Hartzell, wife of a young farmer, was in her coffin, being lowered into the earth, when suddenly the fair young corpse leaped out of its hull and chased around the room. The mourners took the door and window frames with them, and the minister fainted. The idea of pulling off a costly funeral without her consent was too much for Mrs. Hartzell. It is certain the undertaker will whistle gravely for his money.
