

ALDERMAN IN VICE KEY

BURNS CROWD NOT FREE FROM PERJURY CHARGE

Coat of Whitewash by the Grand Jury Not Thick Enough.

By National Socialist Press.
Los Angeles, Cal., June 28.—The fact that the Indianapolis grand jury whitewashed Assistant District Attorney Joseph W. Ford of Los Angeles does not clear up the other serious phase of the kidnaping of James J. McNamara in which Ford is involved.
Attorney Leo Huppert declared before the congressional investigating committee that the assistant district attorney had perjured himself when he swore that McNamara was a fugitive from justice and that he was then under arrest in Indianapolis. The facts in the case were that McNamara was not then under arrest and was not arrested for five days.
Ford went from Sacramento to Indianapolis and was present when McNamara was illegally arraigned and spirited out of the city and state. It was believed the grand jury could not fail to indict Ford on the kidnaping charge.
The fact that Burns lied in his telegram to Ford is not taken here as an extenuating circumstance.
Ford has had a long experience in such matters and, attorneys say, should have been better advised than make oath that a man was under arrest when such action had been taken.
Detective James Hosick, who was indicted by the Indianapolis grand jury, is a member of the local police force and was east with his chief, Paul Flammner.
A rumor that Ford and Flammner were indicted created consternation in the camp of the prosecution and in police circles. The failure to indict Ford and Flammner was a subject for much unfavorable comment. Juror Grundy was commended for his minority report stating others should have been held on a true bill.
Little attention is paid to the indictment against McNamara, as it is understood that the Otto McManigal testimony will be depended on for a vindication on any of the framed-up charges brought against the labor leader.

THE CHICAGO DAILY SOCIALIST

VOL. V.—NO. 207 WEDNESDAY, JUNE 28, 1911. PRICE ONE CENT.

TO CARTER H. HARRISON, THE MAYOR OF CHICAGO

You have served eight years as mayor of this city. You know what the vice conditions have been in the past. You know exactly how segregated districts are operated and by whose consent they are run. You cannot quibble on this subject.

You know that every evil complained of in connection with the vice districts can be eliminated by your order. You know that you have only to lift up your hand to stay the whole system of graft and exploitation of unfortunate women.

Will you do it, or do your political supporters hold you in bondage? It is common talk that the underworld elected you.

Will you allow that rumor to become an established conviction, or will you dare to clean up the vice dens?

Will you prevent the creation of the two new segregated districts, or will you permit your friends to go ahead and secure options on property for this purpose? You cannot make the people of Chicago believe that you are not a party to any such plan as may be on foot.

You will have to act quickly, Mr. Mayor. The Daily Socialist demands that you say something and do something. Do not wait to read all we have to tell in these columns within the next month, but act now that we may be spared the necessity of publishing more of the unpleasant details of this corruption.

THE SUSTAINERS' LEAGUE

Meets tonight in the Y. P. S. L. hall, at 8 o'clock sharp.

The matter of increasing the capital stock of the Workers' Publishing Society will be discussed.

Reasons for increase and the necessity for immediate action will be presented. All stockholders and comrades interested in the welfare of the paper are requested to be present.

PEBOY L. CLARK, Chairman.

WATERWAYS BILL TO BE PASSED BY THE SENATE

By United Press.
Springfield, Ill., June 28.—The new Johnson waterways bill, introduced in the senate early this week, plus the conservation amendment, was advanced to third reading last night and will be passed by the senate at the session today.

In its present form the bill authorizes commissioners whom it creates to make plans and specifications for the deep waterway for the purpose of ascertaining whether the project can be paid out of the $20,000,000 bond issue authorized by the people. A report will be made to the governor.

The commissioners are authorized to expend not more than $500,000 in the acquisition of private sites, the theory being that the sites can be purchased at something near their actual value, while if the state waits until the water power is provided such sites could be purchased only at their potential value.

BIG GRAFTERS PLAN TWO NEW LEVELS

City Father Rents Houses for Immoral Use; Judge Beitler Foils Mulvihill's Rescue Work.

Revelations of graft and illegal sharing in the profits of vice in its worst form continue to pile up following the demand for the key to the report of Dean Sumner's commission.
Corroboratory evidence reaches the Daily Socialist every hour, and it is now certain that "respectable" business men by the score will be exposed as owners of houses of ill-fame.
One of the most prominent real estate owners and business men in the city, one who is known as a leader in civic improvements, will be named as the owner of houses for immoral purposes in the segregated district. One of the latest office buildings has been named after this man.

To Expose Alderman

An alderman of a south side ward will be shown to be engaged in renting property for immoral purposes.
It is said that Alderman Wilson Shufelt of the Second ward, who is engaged in the real estate business, acted as a go-between in the recovery of money which had been stolen from a man in a report kept by Roy Jones. Jones is the husband of a keeper named "Vic" Shaw.
Jones met the lawyer for the man in Shufelt's office by arrangement with Alderman Shufelt himself. Shufelt is said to be on close terms with Jones.
Secretary W. F. Mulvihill of the Law and Order League yesterday told a story of how police and judiciary had co-operated to keep a girl in a house of ill-fame after the league had persuaded her to leave it.

Beitler Makes Threat

Judge Henry C. Beitler is accused of having threatened the officers of the league with arrest and imprisonment if they attempted to speak to the girl again for the purpose of persuading her to leave the life of shame.
Police officers are accused of swearing at the league's investigators when they tried to show the officers where beer was located in a house that was selling liquor without a license.
Ben Morgan and J. P. Brandt, investigators for Mr. Mulvihill, visited the resort of Gypsy Beverly, 2241 Cottage Grove avenue. The keeper told them to return on the following Wednesday when she would have a young nurse only 19 years old. The investigators returned on Wednesday and met the nurse. Morgan secured an interview with her.

She told him her name was Charlotte Payne and that she wanted to get out of the house. She broke down and wept and said she did not want to lead such a life. Morgan offered to take her out of the house, but she said she could

30,000 ILLINOIS WOMEN AID IN BIG PROTEST

Thirty thousand organized women of Illinois, affiliated with the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, were placed on record against the outrage on civilization that may be perpetrated if Angelino Napolitano is hanged for the murder of her husband, who attempted to force her into a life of white slavery at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

At the meeting of the state board of the associated clubs held in the Auditorium hotel a resolution was introduced and unanimously indorsed protesting against the sentence of capital punishment and petitioning Earl Grey, governor general of Canada, for clemency and pardon in behalf of the unfortunate mother.

Redlights to Encircle the Business District

In the face of the vice commission's report exposing all the horrible conditions of the underworld and its extent, the men who have been accustomed to promoting this sort of business are now securing options on real estate for the purpose of starting two more big segregated districts.
One of these is to be on the north side, somewhere between the river and Chicago avenue. The other will be on the west side, with Carpenter street as its center.

Officials of reform organizations have been cognizant of this move for some time and have been watching for an opportunity to effectively check it.

Officials Have Power

Such districts cannot be established without the consent of the city authorities. The police keep a register of all immoral houses and no place of the kind can exist for more than a week without the knowledge of the authorities and their tacit consent at least.
With the creation of these two new districts the loop will be completely surrounded by a quagmire of vice unparalleled in any other city in the world.
The wives and daughters of respectable Chicagoans will not be able to enter the business district for stopping purposes without passing through one or the other of these low dive districts.

Must Face Offensive Sights

It will be impossible for a woman to go to or from the big retail stores without having offensive sights thrust before her.
On the south side the district already extends practically from Wentworth avenue east to Cottage Grove avenue. All the street car lines run through this territory.
No one can travel through there now without having his attention called to the loose character of the neighborhood.
The nature of the business conducted cannot be misunderstood from the presence of the loungers in the streets, the loudly dressed women promading the sidewalks, the dance hall signs and the generally disreputable appearance of the locality.

Even when the elevated railroad is used by the women of the south side they are compelled to ride with gentlemen of this district going to and from their houses and whose painted faces and costumes proclaim their vocation.

Lid Will Go Off

On the north side there has already been much promiscuous vice, but it has been kept under cover to some extent. Now it is proposed to throw it open with the same license as the notorious Twenty-second street levee.
The exact streets intended for this purpose are not yet known to the law order forces, but it is certain that Clark street, the main thoroughfare, will be affected.
Already lined with saloons, it is not to be supposed that it can be kept in an orderly condition when an unrestrained vice district is anywhere near it.

North of Chicago avenue, and especially to the east of Clark street, are hundreds of respectable rooming houses in which live thousands of respectable girls who have to come to the city alone to earn their living.
These girls are all poor. They generally walk to and from the loop. Frequently they stroll down town in the evening.
When the restraints are removed from the north side these girls will be forced to walk through the most disreputable district, mingle with prostitutes and be subject to the insults of ribald loafers.

To Border Madison Street

The west side presents a political situation that makes the location of the district problematical. That it will border closely on Madison street, however, is certain.
Before the primaries notorious dividers of the west side made the mistake of lining up with Andrew Graham.
The Harrisonites have never forgotten them for this and the closing up of Peoria street and other vice districts was a punishment for the keepers who got in the wrong bandwagon.
Now the plan is to open up a new district where someone else may reap the profits.
Mayor Harrison can, of course, stop the whole scheme. These vice districts do not run without the consent of the chief executive of the city. They could not.

They could not exist without the consent of the chief of police.
Upon these two officials devolves the responsibility for the existence of any vice districts, and it is fair to assume that political considerations must control them in the granting of permission for such dens of vice to operate.

Profits Big

North, south and west from the business center are vice districts which yield a direct profit which reaches into the millions.
From the west side alone, according to the report of the Chicago vice commission, there is a profit of $1,158,000 a year. South Chicago, according to the same report, yields a profit of $337,000. The great south side vice district, the richest in the city, yields $6,000,000 for the places which are listed by the police.
The north side places on the police list yield $328,022 in profits a year. This makes a total profit for the places on the police list, according to the vice commission report, of $7,865,143.
This includes rents and the money made by inmates and turned over to the keepers, but does not include profits from the sale of liquor.
Raise Figure to Eight Million
Places which are not on the police list raise the figure to $8,476,688 a year. The profits from liquor sold in connection with disorderly saloons and resorts, figures taken before the order of Chief Stewart against selling liquor in such resorts, raise the total profits to $15,699,449 a year, according to the Chicago vice commission report.

REPORT WILL SHOW STRENGTH GRIP OF THE STEEL TRUST

By United Press.
Washington, June 28.—In view of the admissions of Judge Gary and other steel magnates to the Stanley committee, it was predicted today that the report of the Bureau of Corporations on the steel trust to be published Saturday will show:
That the trust controls 75 per cent of all available unmined ores.
Does 60 per cent of all the steel business.
Manufactures 70 per cent of the rails; 90 per cent of the tubes and 80 per cent of the sheet iron and tin plate.
Dominates the coke and cement business.
Influences railroads and steamer lines.
Through "understanding" with "independent" steel makers, for twenty years has kept steel prices at a permanent figure.
It was stated on authority that the report would seek to justify the absorption of the Tennessee Coal & Iron company on the ground that President Roosevelt, who sanctioned it, acted under the conviction that it was then good public policy.
NEW FEATURE IN TRIAL OF EVELYN ARTHUR SEE
Desperate efforts on the part of the defense to keep from the jury the testimony of Police Captain Danner and a number of reporters, who already have sworn they heard See, Mildred Bridges and Mona Rees admit their illegal relations, featured the morning session today of the trial of Evelyn Arthur See.
The jury was excluded while Danner and the reporters delivered their sensational testimony. The plea of the defense is that the confessions were secured by promises of immunity and under threats, and they should not, therefore, be permitted to go before the jury.

HEARST EDITORIAL PRICE CHEAPENING

Brisbane Brain Product Retailed in Alleged 'Shakedown' of Bosses.

HEARST TO THE RESCUE

"In return for the price paid Hearst will scrape, varnish and gild the sweat-shop industry."
Today the entire American public suspects the shirtwaist manufacturers. They are thoroughly discredited, not because they are much, if any, worse exploiters of labor than other manufacturers, but because events leading up to and including the Triangle tragedy, have centered attention on them.
"It is the intention of Mr. Hearst to wade away the stain. He is just now entering upon a campaign designed to show the American people that the shirtwaist business is no longer a sweat-shop industry in which girls, subjected to the most insanitary and dangerous conditions, are ground into money to fill the pockets of their masters."

This is the startling and interesting statement made and vouched for by The New York Call, the Socialist daily of New York City and the East.
"William R. Hearst will be interested in this story," says the Call. "Arthur Brisbane will be interested."

How Game is Worked

Who doubt that Mr. Hearst has taken this task, at prices varying from $100 to $225 a piece from twenty shirtwaist manufacturers, read the following substance of how the game is worked:
The phone bell rings in the office of some prominent shirtwaist manufacturer of New York. The proprietor is asked for and is told that a representative of the New York Journal will call upon him to secure an interview on the shirtwaist industry. The boss is told that the Hearst sheet contemplates the publication of a series of articles and EDITORIALS on the subject.
An appointment is made and a reporter calls. He tells the employer that:

"Play Up Good Side"

"We are interviewing twenty of the leading makers of shirtwaists in New York City for the purpose of learning from them the truth about the sanitary conditions which are alleged to be so bad. We are finding out from these manufacturers the truth also about the treatment accorded to employees. It is our intention to play up the good side of the business."
"What is the object of the Journal in doing this?" he asked.

"We are doing it because of the many accusations which have been made against the industry and the manufacturers," replies the Hearst man.
"Is it the intention of the Journal to repeat the charges it made some time ago when it declared that the factories were firetraps and the manufacturers slave drivers?"
"Oh, no. There may be some factories as bad as the Triangle factory was, but we are sure that there are many good ones and it is of these good ones that we wish to treat in our articles and editorials."
"We have selected twenty of these good factories and yours is one of them. These twenty leading manufacturers treat their employees well, we are sure. Already we have interviewed seventeen shirtwaist makers and three remain. Will you be one of these? Let me show you the names of some of the manufacturers we have seen and who have agreed to the plan. Here we have J. Rosenberg, of Spring street; Max Roth, J. Kaplan, M. Kurzrock—"

Here's Business End
"What is the business end, the money end of this proposition?"
"Why, the proposition is simply that the Journal wants to re-establish public confidence in the shirtwaist business. We will show clearly that the business is not as bad as the Triangle fire investigation seems to indicate. The editorial and articles will later be published in a booklet resembling the Saturday Evening Post and this booklet will be distributed over the country among the buyers."
"Now, it is our purpose," continues Mr. Hearst's representative, "to include in this booklet the names of the twenty leading shirtwaist makers, together with an advertisement of the business of each one of them. These ads will occupy from one to three inches of space, and in this space the manufacturer may say anything about his business he cares to."
"What is the price?"
Mr. Hearst's diffident young man is embarrassed. How painful to have to contaminate the high calling of a modern New York reporter with a discussion of "how much!"
But Mr. Hearst's young men have been taught to overcome the greatest obstacles in their profession, so this reporter gulps down a great lump of humiliation and proceeds:

"Well, here you see J. Rosenbergs has given us the sum of $225 and he will get a three-inch ad. Then, you see, Max Roth has given $150. Here are some more: J. Kaplan, M. Kurzrock, I. Kaplan, David I. Ullman, Cohen—seventeen in all, as I have said. Most of these gentlemen gave from $150 to $225 each. A few gave as little as $100, but these, will get one-inch ads only."
That is the whole story.
Writing in Collier's Will Irwin says Hearst sold editorials in his journals at as much as $1,000 a piece.
Hearst denied the story and has sued Collier's for libel.

What is the object of the Journal in doing this?" he asked.

Theresa Malkiel, of New York, spoke to a large and enthusiastic open air meeting at State and Congress streets last night.

She told of kidnapping of the McNamara and the fight of the Socialist press in their behalf.

Mrs. Malkiel was one of the hardest workers in the late strike of the shirt-waist makers in New York, and a large number of copies of her book, "The Diary of a Shirtwaist Striker," were sold.

"The Progressive Woman," now published in Chicago, also proved a good seller. The meeting was held by the Socialist women of Chicago and made a great hit with the first warders. Esther L. Edelson made a lively chairman and kept the crowd in good humor.

After Mrs. Malkiel had finished, Archibald Crawford of South Africa, who is in Chicago and whose articles are appearing in the Daily Socialist, also spoke.

SEAMEN'S STRIKE TIES UP LINERS

Widespread Industrial Battle Looms as Peace Efforts Fail.

Liverpool, June 28.—Four thousand longshoremen, employed by the Cunard, White Star, Elderman, Dominion and Canadian Pacific steamship lines struck today in sympathy with the general strike of the coastwise and tramp freighter seamen.

All shipping was at a standstill today, the shipowners making no effort to employ strike breakers.

Within an hour after the longshoremen abandoned their trucks the crews of every liner now in dock had joined the strike in sympathy with the dock hands.

The steamer Haverford, which was due to sail today for Philadelphia, is tied up at her dock, her crew having joined the strikers.

By United Press. Hull, June 28.—The entire east coast provision and fish trades are tied up following a strike today of all dock laborers, crews of fishing boats and crews of the lighters and steamers engaged in the coast-wise four trade.

By United Press. Glasgow, June 28.—Serious trouble between strike breakers and strikers took place on the docks today. The police made a series of charges in which many were hurt. Numerous arrests were made.

By United Press. Amsterdam, June 28.—Eight shipping lines were tied up by a general strike of seamen and other steamship employees. The companies will fill vacancies with Chinese strike breakers. Rioting is feared.

London, June 28.—The most important development of the seamen's strike since its inception is expected today. Two meetings will be held, one a gathering of the Ship Owners' association of the United Kingdom, the other an assembly of dockers.

If peaceful counsel fails in both meetings one of the most serious and widespread of industrial battles that Great Britain has ever experienced will be in sight.

JUDGE BLOCKS RESCUE WORK

not get her clothes from Gypsy Beverly.

Girl Is Taken Out The investigators then went to the police station at Twenty-fifth street and Cottage Grove avenue and made complaint. Sergeant Burns and two plain clothes men were sent with them to the Beverly flat. Brand's story of the visit to the house shows how the police shielded the keeper. He says:

"I went out to the kitchen, where I opened the door and counted over thirty quart. . . . Edelweiss beer.

"I asked the sergeant to take the beer out and he sent one of the officers out to take it. When he came I showed him the beer, but Gypsy Beverly closed the icebox and said there was no beer.

"I asked the officer if he saw any, and he said: 'Well, I saw some bottles.' But he made no move to take any. Then I went out and called Sergeant Burns. He went into the kitchen. I tried to go with him, but Gypsy Beverly stood in the doorway and stopped me.

"Sergeant Burns said to me, 'If you don't keep out of here I'll knock your d—n head off.'

Opened Ice Box "I was only two feet away from the officer and could see that he opened the icebox and looked in. He took out a bottle of beer and put it in his pocket. I asked him if he was going to take it and he said it was 'none of my d—n business.' We went into the parlor and waited for Miss Paine.

"While we were there one of the inmates went out and got a bottle of beer and offered the policeman a drink.

"As we left the flat Gypsy Beverly called Sergeant Burns and held a whispered conversation with him.

The investigator then tells of several meetings with Miss Paine, during all of which she said she did not want to return to her former life. Lieutenant Primm of the Twenty-fifth street station called the girl to his office and shortly afterward she returned to the Beverly flat, according to the investigators.

The officials of the Law and Order League believe that the decision of the girl to return to a life of shame was due to the interview with Lieutenant Primm.

Judge Acts Strangely When the case came up before Judge Beitler the officers swore that they found only one bottle of beer and the charge against the Beverly woman was dismissed.

It was then that the most surprising thing occurred. Judge Beitler turned to the Paine girl and said, "If you see this man (Ben Morgan, investigator for the Law and Order League) in your block again let me know and I will put him where he cannot get near you."

Judge Beitler knew that Morgan was a representative of the league and that he was trying to save the girl from the life she was leading.

Where To Go

The Socialist women of Chicago are invited to luncheon at the Ionica Club, 115 Dearborn street, Thursday, June 29, at 12:30 sharp. Theresa Serber Malkiel, author of "The Diary of a Shirtwaist Striker," is the guest of honor. Comrade Malkiel has a message of great importance for the Socialist women of Chicago. Do not fail to come. Bring any friends that are interested.—The Socialist Women's Agitation Committee.

Aged Mother Hopes for Her Daughter's Liberty

BY HONOR FANNING

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., June 28.—An aged woman in Caserta, Italy, is awaiting to hear that her daughter, Angelino Napolitano, the young Italian woman condemned to die on August 9 at Sault Ste. Marie, has been set at liberty.

Ten years ago Angelino left the little farm place near Caserta—not so far from the lovely bay of Naples. She was 17 then. Some of her townswomen here in "Little Italy" say that she was known throughout the province of Campania for her beauty and sweetness of disposition.

As a Happy Bride She sailed from Naples as the happy bride of young Pietro Napolitano.

At first she sent frequent letters to the old mother on the farm at home. She told of their life in New York, then of a happier life on the farm at Thessalon, Ont., then of their coming to Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Two years ago the letters to the old mother in Italy stopped, for since she came to live at the 300, Angelino Napolitano knew neither peace nor happiness. Pietro had only a laborer's wages with which to support his wife and four children. Angelino, good wife that she was, tried to help him by keeping boarders.

She boarded several Italian men from the pulp mills and the steel works; she cooked for them and she did their washing.

Husband Not Satisfied But Pietro was not satisfied. He complained of poverty, he wanted a better home to live in. He didn't want to work so hard.

He told his young wife of the ways in which some other Italian men in New York became rich.

But she was horrified at what he said and begged for the sake of their children that he never speak to her of it again.

But Pietro was persistent. When his commands were not obeyed he threatened to kill his wife unless she dishonored herself to make him rich. It was these threats that led to the murder in the Napolitano home in "Little Italy" last Easter Sunday morning.

Writes to Mother It was only after Angelino Napolitano was taken to prison, only after she realized that within a few weeks she must meet death on the gallows that she found courage to write to the dear old mother in Caserta.

She wrote in Italian; she told no one what she wrote, but when the matron came to take the letter the unhappy woman sobbed, "I had to tell her."

HELP US MAKE THIS FIGHT

Comrades, The Chicago Daily Socialist has opened one of the most aggressive fights in behalf of the working class that was ever started. Arrayed against us will be all of the power of capitalism in its worst expression, that of vice and corruption.

We will doubtless be hampered and hounded in every conceivable way. Threats have already been made that this paper will be suppressed if it dares to publish the truth. The press is filled with rumors of frenzied activity on the part of unscrupulous and immoral interests which we have threatened.

We may expect most anything to happen in this fight. The Chicago Daily Socialist is in it to stay. We are going to wage a desperate war on the economic conditions that are making white slaves of several thousand working girls in Chicago. We are going to

To Help Educate Masses After Four Years a Prisoner in Mexican Dungeon

JUAN SARABIA AS HE APPEARS TODAY.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 28.—After nearly five years in a Mexican dungeon as a political prisoner, Juan Sarabia is now in Los Angeles preparing to continue his work for uplifting the downtrodden masses of Mexico. His form is wasted to a mere skeleton, his skin shows the deathlike pallor gained in the gloomy dungeon, and he speaks with the hesitancy of a man who has talked little in four years.

Hesitatingly, striving to recall a vocabulary almost forgotten, he told the following story of his life in a Mexican prison.

"About five years ago Ricardo Flores Magon, who is now in jail, Antonio Villarreal, who is now with Madero, and myself, were in El Paso, as the president, secretary and vice-president, respectively, of the Liberal Junta there. We were laying the plans for the revolution now ended. One day there came to me a federal army officer who asked that I cross into Juarez with him and meet other officers who would join the cause with us. I went, only to be seized upon my arrival by agents of Diaz. I had been betrayed.

"I was taken to Chihuahua, where I was given a trial without justice. I was charged with murder, robbery and other crimes. There are no political prisoners in Mexico. Political prisoners are jailed on some other charge.

"I was convicted and sentenced to seven years and four months. I was BIETZ, FORMERLY OF CHICAGO, IS CALLED BY DEATH Word was received yesterday from San Diego, Cal., of the death on June 18, of Comrade William R. Bietz, formerly of Chicago. Chicago Socialists will remember Comrade Bietz as an active worker of the Twenty-fifth ward for several years.

He served as secretary of that branch for about a year and was noted for his energy and enthusiasm for the cause.

Only a few days ago the Daily Socialist received a donation from Comrade Bietz and a cheering letter. He stated that he was just recovering from a long illness and that he expected to do more for the D.S. He went to San Diego in September, 1909. He leaves a wife, Emma Bietz.

Will Abolish Death Sentence The following letter exemplifies the splendid spirit of the womanhood of this twentieth century and gives rare promise of the early coming of the day when the death sentence shall become a thing of the past.

The letter comes from Muscatine, Ia., and is addressed to the Woman's National Committee:

"Dear Comrade: "Interest in the case of Angelina Napolitano is at its highest pitch in this town, and as I think an official petition will have more effect than an ordinary impromptu petition I ask you to send me one or more.

HOW YOU CAN HELP

Every Daily Socialist reader must feel a deep and vital sympathy for Mrs. Napolitano. Probably every reader wishes to aid her. The Daily Socialist wants to help her, too. Is your interest in Mrs. Napolitano strong enough to lead you to the exertion of writing your name? If it is, sign the following petition, and mail it to either the governor general of the Dominion of Canada, Ottawa, Ont., or to Pardon Editor, The Daily Socialist, and he will see that it reaches its destination:

PETITION

To the Governor General of the Dominion of Canada, Ottawa, Ontario. The undersigned petitions:

That the death sentence be not imposed on Mrs. Angelino Napolitano, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., but that she be given a reprieve, so that the child soon to be born to her may not be deprived of a mother's love during its first months of life.

The evidence in the case shows that Angelino Napolitano had great provocation for the crime committed. It has been proved that at the time of the crime she was desperate. She was fearful of her life, she had been dishonored, and, in a large measure, she was irresponsible for her actions.

We believe, therefore, that the ends of justice would be well served by pardoning Angelino Napolitano.

Italian Socialist Women Take Up Fight Against Canadian Gallows.

BY CAROLINE A. LOWE

(Correspondent of the Socialist Women's National Committee.)

The votes of the Women's National Committee of the Socialist party upon the question of issuing an official protest against the hanging of Angelino Napolitano are coming in expressing approval of such action upon the part of the Socialist women.

Italian Women Busy The Italian women have taken up the fight in defense of their country woman. The National Italian Translator, Victoria Lioci, is sending out petitions and all over the United States every effort is being put forth not only to save the life of this mother who is so greatly wronged, but to secure her freedom, that her babies may not be deprived of the mother's love and care.

Women of every nationality and every class are expressing their determination that such a barbarous sentence shall not be put into execution.

Will Abolish Death Sentence The following letter exemplifies the splendid spirit of the womanhood of this twentieth century and gives rare promise of the early coming of the day when the death sentence shall become a thing of the past.

CONSPIRACY OF THE MONEY AND LAND-OWNING KINGS OF THE PERIOD OF THE WAR OF THE REVOLUTION

EXPOSED IN "UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION AND SOCIALISM"

By SILAS HOOD

A book of 32 pages containing the real truth about our "patriotic" forefathers. It has history not found in our school books. These are the articles which recently ran in the Social-Democratic Herald and for which there was so large a demand that they had to be printed in book form.

LEARN who the real patriots were then and who the traitors are now. Adoption of the United States Constitution was the result of a monster conspiracy and every citizen of America should know the truth. Washington and Franklin not spared. Hamilton and Hancock exposed. White slavery, kidnapping, murder, debtors, prisons and political trickery. It Contains reference List for Historical Research in Libraries.

There has recently come to light a new invention termed the "direction and rotation indicator" for steamships. When the instrument is fixed in the captain's chartroom and on the bridge it enables him to see at a glance the direction and speed of the engines and number of revolutions per minute. When a captain telegraphs "ahead" or "astern" and any degree of speed, the indicator gives instantaneous ocular evidence of the accurate carrying out of orders.

From correspondents of this newspaper at Tulsa, Okla., and at Kansas City, Mo., we are getting a line of information on Carl Morris, the most promising "hope," and Jim Flynn, the man-eating coal passer from Pueblo. Heretofore the stories about Morris that have leaked out of Oklahoma bore the earmarks of a friendly blue pencil, and the world had a right to believe that Manager Frank B. Ufer, oilman-banker-manager-promoter, had a corps of willing young press agents whose life aim for the time being was to boost Morris. "Because," says the Daily Socialist correspondent, "strip-pulp sports were sores when the fight went to Tulsa, and with it their chance for a take-off," a petition was sent to Governor Cruce to stop the fight. He did.

War on Women

KATE RICHARDS O'HARE

Since the earliest dawn of civilization one of the tenets of the ethics of war has been that women and children should be exempt. The blackest blot that could be placed upon the name of a soldier was to say he warred on women.

We have outgrown the stage of brute force in war as well as other things and it has taken on a new form. War today is not a contest of physical power between tribes of men; it is a contest for the supremacy of a class. War has become class war.

The whole human race the wide world over, in every nation on earth, is engaged in a mighty warfare. A war that rages unknown and usually unguessed amid the peaceful folds of the farmers, the boundless stretch of the ranches, the village and city, on land and sea.

War between the working class, for the product of their labor and the master class, for the power to rob the workers of the fruits of their toil. Wherever men and women labor and produce wealth and other men and women own and control the wealth (and this includes the whole world and race), the class war is on.

The workers fight blindly to retain a larger share of the wealth they create, and the others fight craftily to retain their power to rob, and the endless war rages on and on.

As long as men warred, women and children were exempt from warfare and protected even on the battlefield. Now war is class war, and fine women make up half of each class they must become combatants in the titanic class war. In fact, the war made by the capitalist class upon the working class is more largely waged upon women than upon men.

The battle lines in the class war are now drawn and women's place in them is of most absorbing interest. On the one side is the master class, made up of men and women, few in numbers, weak physically and utterly powerless of themselves. On the other side the working class, made up of men and women, many in numbers, strong physically and all powerful when fully awakened.

In the class war women are combatants, must share the fortunes of war, and by the strange working of class warfare are compelled to fight the battles of the enemy.

Women are weaker physically, more untrained, more helpless politically than men, hence fall readily prey and make the most valuable allies of the capitalist class in their warfare upon the working class. By the power of hunger and want the masters can drive the women from the home and out on the industrial field, there to be used to starve the men into submission, to operate the machinery of production, to create wealth and to become child-bearing machines to produce children who, too, become factors in the class war.

On the side of the working class there are labor leaders, men who have shown their strength by organizing the low workers and won their places by the success of the warfare they have waged upon the master class. Men like Debs and Haywood, Irons and Donnelly. They become the Davids and fight single-handed and alone the battle of their class, while presidents, governors and judges become the Goliaths of the modern contest and fight the battles of the master class.

History is repeating itself. Goliath is great, a massive giant and awesome to look upon, but his armor is rotten, his great overfed body is soft and flabby, his sword too heavy for his arm, and though he may roar and bellow, the stars of truth from the slingshot of class consciousness crashes through the rotten armor and finds the vital spot of race progression, and another Goliath dies.

The battlefield of race warfare is strewn with the bodies of dead Goliaths. The judge who sentenced Eugene V. Debs to jail found that Gene's slingshot worked very much more effectively behind prison bars than outside, and the capitalist army was more than glad to drag his poor old punctured carcass off the field and hide it away from the sight of men.

Martin Irons sleeps in an unmarked grave, but a honorable one; he lived to see his cause marching on to victory and see every Goliath with whom he fought go down to death dishonored and disgraced. Mike Donnelly wanders over the earth, a broken wreck, his mind destroyed by a vile henchman who slunk upon him from behind and sent a loaded bullet crashing through his skull. Mike Donnelly is a physical, mental wreck, but the work he did for his class still lives on and he has lived to see his name freed from vile slander and to see every man who fought him meet a disgraceful and violent death.

Haywood and Moyer and Pettibone fought their fight also. Pettibone is dead as a nail, the result of the struggle, but Haywood and Moyer still live, vindicated, honored and strengthened a thousand fold for future battles, and every judge, governor and lackey of the capitalist class who figured in that great fight has already been buried in oblivion.

Even in these fights between the chosen representatives of the capitalist class and the workers it is the women upon whom the weight of warfare falls heaviest. Through the love that passeth understanding, the love of a woman for her chosen mate, every blow, every stab, every stab of cold steel or slander that has touched a man on either side of the battle line has gone to the quick of a woman's soul as well.

When the warfare breaks out in strikes, it is women who suffer most; they sit at home and stare into the face of hunger and want and watch with burning eyes the scanty store of food disappear and the lines of starvation mark the face of loved ones. When policemen's clubs crash and soldiers' guns roar it is the women who have none of the excitement of battle but bear all the sickening dread and suffering beyond words to express.

When some labor leader is marked to bear the brunt of the class war, it is not the man who bears the burden. It is the glory of warfare, the stimulus of battle, the joy of achievement. To his wife there comes but the misery of dread and uncertainty, the torture of idly waiting, the damning sense of helplessness and impotence.

When the jail doors clanged on Eugene V. Debs it was not he who suffered; he was too much absorbed in his battle to suffer; it was Katherine Debs, his wife, and the old mother at home who lived and suffered through the long days of suspense and the long nights of agony. When Martin Irons, beaten, disgraced and vilified, was driven out into the world a tramp to die and find an unmarked grave on the Texas plains, it was not he who suffered; his soul was too wrapt in the battle of class war to suffer for itself; but the unknown wife, whose name even is forgotten, who suffered a thousand times more agony than the Christ upon the Cross of Calvary, her Gethsemane was a thousand times more bitter than that of the Nazarene.

When Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone went forth to the arena to fight the battles of their class, the masters were not making war on them, but their wives and children.

When Fred Warren faced the combined forces of the capitalist class, and lived for years under the shadow of penitentiary walls, it was not Fred across whose soul the shadow fell, but Hattie, the quiet little housewife, whose very name is unknown to the labor world. Now other men have been forced by the onward march of events to fight the battle of the workers in the class war—the McNamara brothers and Orrie McManara. The weapons and warfare are not different from those used in each fight and the results will be the same. Goliath's rotten armor will be punctured as of old and David will win.

In the meantime, however, women and children will suffer as in each of the other cases. Whether McManal is the tool of the capitalist class, and used by them to involve the McNamaras in the meshes of the law, or whether he, too, is the victim, it makes no difference.

His wife and children will be the chief sufferers just the same whether he is innocent of crime or the guilty hireling of the master class. Fortunately the McNamara boys are not married; there are no children to make the agony of some women more unendurable; but this we know, there are women somewhere who love them.

Some place there are sweethearts who are suffering the torture of the damned. We may not know them, we may not even send them a word of cheer and sympathy, but they exist, and women are still bearing the burden of this class war.

A New Suffrage Play

Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman has written a new one-act play, entitled "Something to Vote For." It deals with the question of pure milk, and, if well acted, must prove both amusing and instructive.

The main characters are the president of a woman's club, a charming young widow; a woman doctor from Colorado; a milk inspector, and the head of the milk trust. The two men are in love with the club president. The president and all the club members are anti-suffragists. The woman doctor from Colorado, by a casual allusion to woman suffrage, stirs up a tempest in the club, which has met to witness an analysis of the milk.

In an interval the woman doctor gets the head of the milk trust to change for her a hundred-dollar bill, which the president of the club has previously seen her mark with red ink. She foresees that the head of the milk trust, when he finds that the bottles have been changed, will try to bribe the inspector to make a false analysis; and she forewarns the inspector, and tells him to pretend to accept, but to stand out for $100.

In The Gladsome Picnic Time, 'Tis Well To Put Lots of Sandwiches in the Basket

When the summer sun is shining (and good and hot at that) picnic time is here. There's no mistaking the signs of the season when you get that feeling that the house is too warm a place to bide in and the yard is too suggestive of weeding and mowing and straightening up.

bread into thin slices, spreading them with a paste of cream cheese and pimentos and putting them together with a lettuce leaf are dainty and nourishing. The pimentos should be chopped, rather fine and the spread should be a quarter of an inch thick.

lettuce, chopped nuts and mayonnaise, simply sliced, salted and peppered and put together with a lettuce leaf. Plenty of black pepper and a generous spread of butter is the secret of good, plain sliced chicken sandwiches.

Expert Little Chicken Raisers Are These Little Folks, and Many Others Like Them

A great many little girls and boys help their parents care for the chickens. They attend to the feeding, see that there is plenty of green grass cut for the chickens to eat, for, you know, chickens when they are penned up in what are called "runs" need some green stuff to eat. Then they can gather the eggs, and keep the water pans filled with fresh, clean water.

papa and mamma by which they get one-half of all the eggs which the hen lays. Of course, they each have to do something in the way of taking care of the chickens.

MARY'S COOK BOOK

CANDIED CHERRIES. Use only perfect fruit that clings tightly to the stem. Cook a sugar sirup to a thread, set the pan in another pan of hot water. Pick up only a few cherries at a time and dip into the sirup; hold the cherries in the air a few seconds, and redip into the sirup before serving. Dust a little pulverized sugar over them.

TEA ROLLS. Two tablespoons of butter, two table-spoons of sugar, one teaspoon of salt, two cups of milk scalded, one yeast cake dissolved in one quarter cup of lukewarm water. Put the butter, sugar and salt into the bread pan; add the hot milk, and when lukewarm add the yeast and three cups of the flour. Beat thoroughly, and let rise until double in bulk. Then add enough more flour to knead, and let rise again. Turn onto a floured board, knead thoroughly, and roll out one-third inch thick. Cut with a biscuit cutter, make a deep crease through the center of each with a knife handle, brush one-half with melted butter, fold the half onto the buttered half, and
