BURNS BOUGHT HUSBAND, SWEARS MRS. M'MANIGAL

Detective Will Split $200,-000 Reward With 'Orchard' Is Charge Made.

The story sworn to by Mrs. Emm inigal, as weakened from a berrible ordeal before the Los Angele grand jury, hounded by Burns' sleuths day and night, she denounces the alliance between her hauband, Ortic Mc-Munigal, and William J. Burns, formed for the purpose of hanging J. J. and J. B. McNamara, is one of the most dramatic ever told.
Shorn of the legal verbiage the story is clear and straightforward and throw a strong light on the entire McNamare case. For that reason The Chicago Daily Socialist prints it in full. Noth ing could do more to turn the sympa ables of anyone toward the accused Mc-Namaras than a reading of this story. She says Burns will split a $200,000 reward with Ortic.

MRS. EMMA M'MANIGAL'S STORY I was married to Ortic McManigal on Oct. 8, 1901 and have two children, Walter, six years old, and Evelyn, eight years old. In June of 1910, and also in October of the same year and in the spring of 1911 he was unfaithful to his marriage yows to such an exunder the law. On trips which he took in pursuit of his trade as a structural fron worker he was intimate with women of bad reputation.

Charges Oruelty

When at home he frequently ill-treat ed me. On one occasion, about Dec. 23, 1909, he struck me a violent blow over the head with a rod used for cleaning a gun. He beat me till I was bruised.

During his boyhood my husband received an injury to his head by falling and striking it against a broken jar. At two other times he has received severe injuries to his head. On one oc-casion he was struck by a heavy piece of timber which was being used on a job on which he was employed. At Job on which he was employed. At another time he was struck on the head by a broken derrick boom.

As a result of these injuries he was subject to fits of melancholy, during which he imagined himself in danger-one situations or accused me of in-fidelity to him and used abusive lan-guage toward me. At such times I was often forced to leave our home and seek whelter with the neighbors.

McManigal Indicted

About one year after our marriage my husband became involved in some criminal proceedings in Milwaukee and was only saved from imprisonment through my efforts in his behalf.

In April, 1910, the police raided a barn at the rear of our home at 414 South Sangamon street and there found a large quantity of tools and building material.

on thereafter, in the month of June, McManigal entered into a con-cey with the William J. Burns de ve agency, by which he was to do the work for Burns and receive $7 a day for it. His work was to do cer-tain things and put the blame of them

Why should a fireman work with might and main to put out a fire, and when he had it under his control, instead of putting it out entirely, go away and let the flickering coals be fanned again into a roaring flame?

Why should YOU make a supreme effort and carry the Daily out of immediate danger, and then instead of insuring it for the future leave it unprotected and open to the same dangers again?

Whatever DANGERS we have faced could have been AVOIDED if we had worked half as hard BEFOREHAND. They BECAME dangers because we WAITED instead of WORKED!

"Socialist delegates to the convention, who come principally from the ranks of the miners, are said to be preparing to give their views on the question to the delegates and denounce the labor party plan." Coming to this second division of FIRST INTENSIVE STUDY Socialist victories, we find a third type based mainly on Socialist organization

OF MUNICIPAL SOCIALISM

Editor's Note.—The first intensive study of municipal Socialism in the United States has been made by Rob-ert F. Hoxie, one of the professors of economics at the University of Chicago.

His conclusions are published in an article in The Journal of Political Economy. This article is being reproduced in full by The Daily Socialist.

The views held and conclusions reached belong to Professor Hoxie, but The Daily Socialist believes that its readers will be interested in knowing what a "Standard Oil" professor thinks about the capture of cities in the United States by the Socialist party.

The article will be liberally commented upon in the editorial columns of The Daily Socialist, giving the Socialist interpretation of the matters brought up.

A fourth type of Socialist triumph in the recent elections was the outcome mainly of temporary industrial condi-tions. Every contest of magnitude be-tween the employers and trade unions is a Socialist opportunity and no such opportunity is neglected. Socialist or-ganizers and newspapers throw them-selves strepuously into the fight.

The occasion is made use of for the reaching of Socialist doctrine and the pointing of Socialist morals. The outbome usually is a clear demarkation, for the time at least, of class lines, and an occasional Socialist success. The kind of Socialism which results is apt to be not so much theoretical as passionate (27), and the political victory is distinctly working class in

A substantially similar situation sometimes develops out of local business collapse. Socialist success of this type is likely to occur in any com-munity regardless of ethnical charac-ter. Just now it is to be looked for on the Pacific coast, especially in Caltfornia.

The result is apt to be temporary, like the cause, but is is in these spasms of industrial depression and warfare that the most fruitful seeds of radical

Socialism are sown.

It is the Otises, the Posts, the Parrys, the Van Gleves, and the Kirbys who are most active in raising up recolutionary Socialism in this country. A fifth and far more important type of Socialist success grows out of the generally deplorable state of American municipal politics and government. It is the boss-ruled, corporation-rid-

The creation of an in-destructible weapon of publicity and economic power of this character will be a task for which the Socialists of America may well make sacrifice of greater magnitude than they ever dreamed of before. Any person who has laid by any sum against future want of himself and family can well afford to convert a portion of such savings into shares of this great indestructible fund as a part of a rainy day account for the working class as a whole.

den tax-burdened city, with its poorly paved, ill-lighted, dirty streets, its insufficient water-supply and air-filled gas mains, its industrial fire-traps, its graft-protected vice district, its fat politicians, pataxed wealth, crooked politicians, untaxed wealth, crooked contracts, and wasted resources, that Socialism finds its best object lessons and has won some of its most significant, if not its most aumerous, successions and has won some of its most significant. and has won some of its most signifi-cant, if not its most numerous, succant, if not its most numerous, successes.

The Socialism which this civic condition breeds is primarily a grapel of reform and only secondarily creedalistic. It is in its immediate character one wing of the growing movement for honesty, efficiency, and democracy in the conduct of civic affairs.

To the political rouse the Socialists oppose clean, vigorous men: to the stained-glass political platforms of the ringsters, honest statements of purpose and reason. The terminology, to be sure, is largely Socialistic: the appeal is primarily to the workers and the movement is declared to be in their interest.

Municipal control is emphasized as a remedy, but the nominees are not continue to wage-workers, the support coming from all classes and nationalities, and the honest effort is made to conduct affairs in the interest of the people generally. (23)

The eixth type of Socialist success which may be distinguished is in a sense the obverse of the fifth. It results not so much from a desperate attempt to ccape the present evils of city government as from a positive desire to uplift and emoble.

government as from a positive desire to uplift and ennoble.

The Socialism which it puts into power stands for honesty, efficiency, cleanness, iaw enforcement, and a large measuer of municipal ownership, because these are the good and righteous things. Doctrinally it is moderate and as mayors, and makes combinations with the thurch-goers (29) and antimaloon advocates.

Its support is prevailingly American.
Territorially it is to be looked for in the far West, especially in California.
As compared with types one, two, and five, it is quantitatively of considerably less importance.

Finally there is a type of recent success which so far as significent Socialism is concerned must be regarded as altogether trivial and fortuitous.

In such cases the Socialists have won not because of any special virtues or strength in themselves but as the restrength in themselves but as the re-

The types thus presented do not necessarily cover all the individual Socialist victories in the recent elections. Some of these were very special in character and probably none correspond in all respects to any typical case.

Young and Vigorous

What this study does show is that effective Socialism in this country is at present young (32), givorous, and a very protean movement, for the most part moderate, liberal, honest and above all, essentially democratic.

What mainly differentiates it from the democracy of the crowd is that it rests on a revolutionary philosophy, rather than on the classical eighteenthcentury, absolutistic, natural-rights doctrine. It differs from the democracy of the up-to-date reformers in being somewhat more youthfully vigorous and theroughgoing.

This social democratic movement, it is evident, is just beginning to gather force in the United States. Will it con-tinue to develop and will it gain con This depends upon two things—the

It is the same with the movement. These Socialist successes in general, therefore, are a training school of constructive democracy. This fact should calm the fears and allay the prejudices of all those who have a real faith in the people.

ary of $20 by Jim, Georgia, who thinks for herself, declares for the first time for separation. The mother is horrified, reminding Georgia that the church al-lows but one ground for divorce. A spat follows. Georgia declares ahe can forgive an act but not a state of mind. Georga, to avoid gossip, registered with her employer as "Miss." Mason Stevens, a young insurance solicitor employed in the same office, calls and asks to be her friend. She surprises him by telling him that she is married. him by telling him that she is married.

He leaves. She packs Jim's belragings into a trunk and casts it into 'he hall-way. Her mother tries to intercede, presenting Georgia with a rosary; but Georgia is insistent. The curtain fails.

Sunday morning in September opens the second act. Mrs. Talbot requires from mass and has heard a servives from mass and has heard a services.

from mass and has heard a ser turns from mass and has heard a ser-mon on the text: "And these twain shall be one desh." She has arranged for a talk with the priest and for Jim's return. Stevens arrives first. He de-clares his leve before leaving and which she admits for him by his silence.

BY KATE JEAN.

I agree with Comrade Sinclair. "Rebellion" is a great play, the kind that has rarely been offered to the playgoing public of Chicago. And my conviction was the offere. Jim sneers at him. Father verified has night. Hervey calls down a blessng upon the house. Jim would embrace and kiss Georgia, but she loathes him and shrinks from him with disgust. A year and a half passes. Georgia has had a child with Jim. It is four months old and sickly. Jim is again prear time and months old and sickly. Jim is again months old and sickly. Jim is again drinking. It searly morning, and the doctor is sent for from the same flat where Georgia is now keeping boarders.

The coloring is cled by Mrs. Talbot as the will of

ese. Probably that is one of the reasons that New York did not take sons that New York did not take to it so enthusinatically. Baseball talk of the "Cubs said Sox" kind, "tickets for Riverview" and other localisms heard in the street cars and elevated roads add a delight to the play for Chicagoans.

The section of some ward on some in the Irish section of some ward on some tide of the city. You may guess for yourself; the dramatic and literary critics have guessed all three sides. The settings are true to working class life in Chicago, even to the "sather-yournest" furniture and the maining paper read at home.

Georgia Connor is married to Jim Connor, a drunkard and precluct heelers. They are keeping house with Georgia's mother, Mrs. Taibot, and Al, her brother. Georgia, working as a typist in an tinsurance office, is the sole support. They are devout Catholics, the pictures on the walls show.

Georgia refuses any parley regarding Jim and recalls her present independence and tells the priest she has no fear of the consequences of an absolute divorce, following a visit by Stevens and a consequent interesting altercation with the priest.

Father Hervey's warning the she would lose church absolution falls on deaf ears, and he stalks out of the door never to return.

The play is replete with absorbing and fascinating interest. Mirute and illuminating detail, both in dialogue and action, give it dynamic power. It voices action, give it dynamic power. It voices the revolt of youth against a rigid au-thority which attempts the enforce-ment of its rules with disregard for of modern woman against a system which binds her in the name of religion as a chattel to a man she hates.

Both sides of the question are presented fairly. The types are perfect and can be found anywhere in Chicago.

The church, its tenets, are told of in a way that impresses those who are no intimately acquainted with the phychological influence of the priest "shepherd" on he flock. Every Socialist in Chicago should see

Moreover, the encouragement of the present success and the organic character and activity of the Socialist party will insure new recruits for those cities which drop out of the ranks.

Few realize how many voters there are in this country who would have acted with the Socialist before this had they felt that there was any change of spreas.

Many of this class are now joinging the party and will remain in it unless the set-back is too decided (37). However, the outcome will depend much upon how far and how long the old party politicians continue to tempt the gods (38).

The Office Worker

He Gets Poor Pay Because He Imagines Himself Above Other Laborers.

We are not without castes in America. They are less definite in their dividing lines and are more often broken into, but they exist and have their influence in keeping apart the men and women who should be united in defense of their own interests. There is a fiction, firmly believed as a fact by many, that the man who works inside of an office as a bookkeeper, or in the store as a clerk, or in some other position where his collar remains clean is not a working

Because they are permitted, by necessities of their employment, to get into more direct communication with their employers, there are many office men who believe they belong to a class entirely separated from the working people. They affect the employers' view point in labor matters. The thought that their interests are opposed to the interests of their employers seldom enters their heads.

As as matter of fact, clerical and office work furnishes the poor est pay of all occupations. The truckling of this class of workers to their employers has caused the difference between their wages and that of those workingmen who are not ashamed of their overalls.

The following letter, which appeared in an afternoon paper, gives promise of an awakening:

Two men complained to the Chicago police that they had lost money in a gambling house. Immediately they were locked up on the charge of being inmates of a gambling house. The next day the chief of police testified before the Civil Service Commission that he did not know of a single gambling house operating in Chicago. This is just a line on the kind of people who are running Chicago.

John Hays Hammond says: "The day for sending literary mer as our nation's representatives to foreign countries is past. argues for trained business men in the diplomatic service "to advance our foreign interests." Of course, it is absurd for the Socialists to say that international relations are solely a question of capitalistic interests under our present system.

Chief of Police McWeepy refused point blank to receive evidence from The Chicago Daily Socialist that one of his men was an aid to a notorious dance hall manager. That is how he comes by the ignorance he manifested on the witness stand vesterday.

Some shrewd hotel man who reads the Lorimer testimony is likely to start a hostelry without a register for the special accommodation of state legislators.

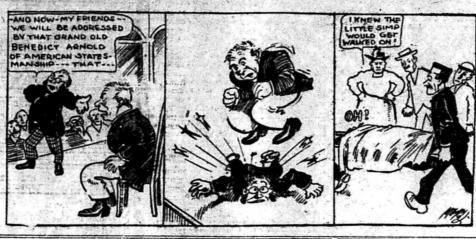

Chicago Socialists should urge voters to hear Taft when he comes to this city. He is sure to make votes for the Socialist judicial ticket.

WR. HEN PECK CASTS OFF THE YOKE OF DOMESTIC THRALLDOM

THE LABOR MOVEMENT IN GERMANY BY JOHN C. KENNEDY

ORGANIZATIONS

Probably the best organized section of this great international army of labor is to be found in Germany. German workers have been building up their political, economic and education tion atter their political, economic and education tion atter their political economic and education tion atter the other the other tently in the face of tremendous oppo-sition, until today they have a well-balanced labor movement, which is a model for all the world. POLITICAL

On the political field the German workers are represented by the Social-ist party, which has $35,000 dues-paying pers, including 107,000 women, and members, including 107,000 women, and polled in the last general election over 3,250,000 votes. On the economic field they are represented by the trade unions, which altogether, have nearly 3,000,000 members. About 2,275,000 of these workers are in the "free" trade unions, which work hand in hand with unions, which work hand in hand with the Socialist party. These unions have magnificent labor temples in most of the large cities, which are the headquarters for labor and Socialist activities. In some cases these centers, which belong entirely to the trade un-ions and the Socialist party, have cost over $500,000.

CO-OPERATIVES

In addition to the Socialist party and the trade unions the German workers have built up a powerful co-operative movement which already has 1,151,000 members and owns and operates 3,545 members and owns and operates 3,945-stores. These co-operatives employ 19,-000 workers under the best trade un-ion conditions and do a total annual business of $108,000,000. Sixteen mil-tion dollars worth of products are manufactured in their own bakeries, mills and factories.

These are stirring days in Europe. Scarcely a week passes without news of some great strike, some popular of some great strike, some popular of some printing and dozens of weekly and monthademonstration or some Socialist victory. The workers, down-trodden and exploited for generations, at last are realizing their power, and are boldly attacking the citadels of tyranny and oppression.

To be sure, strikes, demonstrations and Socialist victories are now new thing in Europe. But never before have the masses been so generally discontented, never before have the masses been so generally discontented, never before have they been so thoroughly organized, and never before have they been so intelligent and ready to march forward to victory.

ORCANIZIAMONS

Perhaps the most striking phase of the German labor movement is the way in which the different elements work together. The Socialist party helps the trade unions and the unions help the Socialist party, and both par-ty and unions help the growth of co-operative societies. Yet no organiza-tion attempts to dictate the policies of

The Socialist party is expected to work out the tactics that will best meet the needs of the workers on the political field, while the trade unions are expected to work out the form of organization that will best protect the organization that will best protect the workers on the economic field. Within the party some of the members emphasize the ultimate aim—the complete abolition of the capitalist system of production and the substitution therefor of a Socialist co-operative system others emphasize the immediate de-mands, such as better workingmen's insurance, better factory legislation and-better bousing for the working class. Within the trade unions, likewise, some members emphasize one type of an organization and one sort of tactics ganization and one sort of tactics, while others advocate another type of organization with another sort of tacno illusions about being delivered from capitalism by one great leader, or a dozen great leaders, yet they recog-nize the importance of leadership and give due weight to the opinions of able men. And it makes no difference whether these men are men from their own ranks, like Bebel, Legien and Mol-kenbuhr, or whether they are men who have come to the labor movement from other classes, like Mark and Engels, Lassalle and Liebknecht, Kautsky and Bernstein, Singer and Von Vollmar, other classes, like Marx and Er Bernstein, Singer and Von Vo Sudekum, Lindeman and David. sequently there is no foolish attempt to divide the organization into "proletarians" and "intellectuals." and Societies of England was held here and the British Socialist party formally hunched.

The Independent Labor Party and the Pablan Society were not officially represented, but many of their branches sent delegates. A resolution was adopted, setting forth the principles and objects of the party, upon which a constitution was to be founded.

A committee of ten, representing the different societies, was elected to draw up the constitution, which will be submitted to a referendum vote of the locals which joined in the formation of the new party.

A total of 219 delegates were present, representing over 35,000 members: The Sociali-L'mocratic party had 85 present; the Independent Labor party was represented by 41 delegates from different branches; the newly formed British Socialist party had 12; the Clarion societies, 32; and the rest were from the Socialist Church Union and Other Socialist church Union and Other Socialist societies.

Many telegrams were received from Socialist organizations belonging to the different parties and societies expressing their regrets at not being able to have representatives present.

Messages were received from the Socialist organizations belonging to the different parties of France, Belgium, Roumania and Austria wishing success to the efforts of the English Socialists in forming a united party.

At Forli, where a large crowd refused to allow the reserves to leave the town, the cavalry made several charges into the crowd, riding down women and children, using their sabers freely and wounding 40 people. A meeting of 20,000 people was held here. The town was without trains, newspapers, gas or electric light for newspapers, gas or electric light for

The demonstrators held the govern-ment breathless during the two days and delayed the forwarding of troops, as the government did not dare to reduce the garrisons while the dem stration was in progress.

DEMOCRATIC EDITOR TELLS HOW TO COMBAT SOCIALISM The editor of the Carter (Okla.) Express, a Democratic paper, referring to the flop of Rev. G. G. Hamilton, the famous Southern Socialist-balter, to the Socialist party, says:

"We always thought it dangerous to debate with those Socialists, and now

"Seventy per cent of the people who study their books and listen to their lectures will fall overboard and go-down with the mighty tide which is now ebbing and flowing throughout the earth. "But regardless of this fact, it is necessary that we Democrats study their theory and become well posted on Socialism in order that we may be able to withstand them and show the common people who are their best friends. Study the theory and you will be able to combat it."

DOING GREAT WORK FOR SOCIALISM IN READING

Reading, Pa.—Speakers are addressing about 10,000 people every week in this city, and thousands of Socialist pamphlets are being sold weekly, over 500 being disposed of at one meeting which was addressed by John W. Slay-

House-to-house distribution of literature is being made once a week, 30,000 pieces of literature being put out.
Clinton Simonton, a former Methodist

FIGHT POLL TAX

Elkhart, Ind.—The Socialists of this city are gathering funds to make a fight on the poll tax. V. P. Kaub, a local Socialist, decided to make a test case of the law some time ago. He has no property that can be seized to force payment and is being sued for $14 by the city treasurer. The Socialists are determined to fight it to a finish.

Many of Jay's relatives and associates, as we have already seen, end eye we shall perceive even more, were thoroughly unserupulous in design, and corrupt in execution. We have remarked how Hamilton, Robert Merits and Jay held a private meeting so discuss land speculations, and how Morris, Llvingston and their associates successfully manipulated the legislatures, and defrauded the Indians out of a huge domain. How Hamilton, as the confidential agent of John B. Church, who had grown extra rich out of the commissary department of the Revolutions—an and defrauded the Frequently Hamilton was charged with speculations—this, too, has been narrated. Frequently Hamilton was charged with speculations—an ancusation against which his partissa and personal friends stoughtly defended him (3).

Open charges of corruption were also made against Jay. In his celebrated pamphiet (4), one of the prints the effect of which was the battering down of the Federallst party, John Thompson Callender boldly asserted Jay's corruption. "If Washington," write Callender. "wanted to corrupt the Aim ericam Judges, he could not have taken a more decisive step than by the appointment of Jay." The insurrections in various states

The insurrections in various states and the threatening movements of tenants on some of the manorial estates were among the evidences of deep popular ferment. Laws aimed at the landholders were always a possibility to be reckoned and provided against. If such laws were passed, the final remaining recources of the landholders would be the oulwark against popular encroachments; the courts would know how to find theam of taking the stings out of laws hostile to their class. All of these tactics were not only clearly of laws hostile to their class. All of these tactics were not only clearly thought cut, they were discussed in aristocratic clubs, and affirmed in the private circles of the judges themselves. Having himself large landed possessions, and connected by family ties, associations or other connections of interest with many of the most powerful landholding families in the country, Jay, from that class point of view. The police department of the policy try, Jay, from that class point of view was an ideal man for the chief justice ship. His associates (The Suprem Court was then composed of five mem bers in all) were likewise of the land holders or attached to them in interest

SUPPRESS RADICAL CLUBS
Madrid, Spain.—The government has closed the Velkhaue at Valencia and dissolved eighteen labor syndicates and Republican clubs. The mayor of Cullrahas been arrested on the charge of encouraging the present uurest. General Echaque has also dissolved Republican and Socialist clubs at Cullra, Jativa, Bunal and Caragente. In the province of Velencia alone 200 arrests have been made. The censorship is very rigorously carried out, so that but little news can get through. (TO BE CONTINUED.)
