WITH M'NAMARA PROSECUTORS Los Angeles, Nov. 22.-When J. B.

McNamara is acquitted in his present trial for murder, in connection with the Times building explosion, the prosecution will put the blame squarely at the door of Detective William J. Burns. Friction between Burns and District Attorney Fredricks has existed ever since the former, in magazine articles, took all the credit for the arrest of the McNamars, but greatly increased today as a result of a series of interviews given by Burns in Indianapolis, which have just arrived here. There, the private detective, the prosecution here alleges, for advertising purposes, revealed several vital secrets, which it had been expected to conceal in order to surprise the defense.

7 PENNSY SHOPMEN MAY WALK OUT

A strike of the shopmen on the Pennsylvania railroad is threatened.
Following an attempt by the Illinois Central to have its box cars repaired in the shops of the Pennsylvania, the shopmen told the officers of the company that they would not repair cars for any road which was tied up by a strike of its shopmen. The men declare they will walk out again if the company persists in domanding them to repair the Illinois Central cars.
The Pennsylvania transferred all its own cars needing repairs to Pitcairn, Pa, leaving four shops, those at Beaver Falls. Pa., Pittsburgh, Alliance, Ohio, and Fort Wayne, Ind., open for work on the Illinois Central cars.
But it is altogether improbable that the Pennsylvania will risk a strike on its own lines in order to help a rival line.

However, the workers in the locomotive works are so highly organized that there is no danger the company will insist on the New York Central boilers being repaired there.

IN CANADA

Rapid Grow.h of Future Cities and the Big Profits U. S. Investors Can Make in Real Estate.

Whatever may be the faults of the United States as a government, there does seem to be something in the free atmosphere which teaches men to take care of themselves and to snap up opportunities quickly when they come.

Only a little while ago a wide-awake investor here and there discovered the possibilities for doubling and trebling his money by putting it into lots in new railroad towns in Canada, which were awating the sound of the first whistle to leap into life.

Some of the profits subsequently made fairly astounded even the most hopeful. Calgary lots, bought for $200, swelled in value to anything from $1,000 to $10,000 and more and Prince Rupert, Edmonton and other towns followed suit by pouring riches into the laps of those who had believed in the rature of the country.

This all happened under the influence of the Canadian Pacific, which had to cope with hard conditions which do not exist now. For this reason it is held to be a sure thing that the great new Grand Trunk Pacific which is now hailding from coast to coast at head.

Certain it is that no new town in Canada has brighter prospects. The railroad is even new approaching and must be completed by 1913—and probably will come within a year. After that comes the boom and fortune to those who seize the opportunity.

For a short while lots in Fort Fraser may be had for $150 to $200 and up, on the easy terms of 10 per cent down and 5 per cent per month—no interest and no taxes until fully paid. The British Columbia Government itself guarantees perfect titles.

MOTHERS' PENSION LAW WILL PROVE GREAT BOON

Illinois has a Socialist law. It is the chief probation officer.

The probation officer will make an investigation and set a date for a hear-'Methers' pension law," deigned to abolish juvenile poverty. Of course, attempts are being made to defeat the purposes of the law.

Socialists of the state must rally to the support. I suggest that each local, ward or precinct, each labor union, in church or other society, appoint some church or other society, appoint some church or other society, appoint some good woman to look after pension cases in that district. Women appointed should have time to devote to the work, if the organization can not pay her for her time. They should be women who are able to talk well and who are also prepared to appear in the fuvenile court of Cook or any other county.

There are thousands of women and children actually starving, or subsisting on the nasty crumbs of organized charity. This new law will relieve all such cases where the parents are living and are considered by the court suitable guardians for their own children.

Private charity is disgusting to all who receive it and inefficient from ex-

Rocketeller's Record

It Will Loom Up in Spite of His Gifts of Many Millions to Charity and Education.

Though uncompromising opponents of John D. Rockefeller and his system of doing business we are inclined to sympathize with this wizard of high finance as he reads the evidence given before the Stanley investigation, where one of the victims of his high-handed financiering relates to the public the story of John D.'s crooked-

The story in substance is similar to the many others which facts, and their significance is selfwere told by Ida Tarbell when she, without any denial from John evident. D., branded the Standard Oil company as a cold-blooded, cruel and high-handed corporation which has left a trail of death and business destruction in its wake.

Albert Merritt, a pioneer ore man in Minnesota, told the story of how Rockefeller, aided by his chief almoner, the Rev. F. T. Gates, squeezed him out of $3,000,000 in railroad and ore property in the foreclosure of a loan of $525,000. The transaction occurred during the panic in 1893. Later Mr. Rockefeller sold the same property to the steel trust for $10,000,000. Charles M. Schwab has since estimated that the properties are now worth $700,000,000.

A similar story was told by Miss Tarbell about Rockefeller's A similar story was told by Miss Tarbell about Rocketeller's money derived from industrial estab-dealings with his friend and business associate, Corrigan, to whom lishments and transportation as well as he could to efface as much as possible the record of a bad past by doing what he could, as he saw it, to relieve not only his conscience but the poverty and misery which his method of doing business had

The public was almost persuaded to forgive Rockefeller, and in the general excitement of the times was almost ready to forget the past and make the best of it by changing conditions so that the take the place of the old feudal aristocfuture pages of our nation's history might not be marred by similar

China and the Labor Problem

By Axel Gustafson

Of all the great questions touching labor conditions today there is none more profoundly vital to every worker in the entire civilized world than the fate of China.

There we have a territory much larger in extent than the entire continent of Europe, inhabited by an industrious, peaceable, non-warlike race. Their habits are simple, their needs few. In the modern sense of the world their country's resources are still undeveloped

What an almost exhaustless field of exploitation by soulless capitalism is thus offered for generations to come! And what a terrible and blighting effect this would have upon the conditions of labor in all lands.

Only leave the great capitalist governments free to carry out their grim designs for the partition of China and they can snap their fingers at the workingman's demands for even bare living conditions, for the labor of two to three hundred million Chinamen will then be put in competition with labor all over the civilized world.

The vast unexplored and unused resources of China will give untold wealth to the exploiters. All kinds of machinery and factories for supplying the world with goods will be moved to China and worked with the cheapest Chinese labor. It is impossible to conceive the results. Imagination itself becomes bewildered and confused when we try to depict what unspeakable world-suffering such a condition would bring. We should have to go to Dantes Inferno to find pictures even faintly descriptive of what is bound to

Of course, it could not last, but meanwhile and after it all is —what then—remember "Caesar's Column"?.

But it must not come to pass. Surely the workers all over the world must realize not only that whatever improvements in condiwould be utterly lost to them, but that they would have to tamely submit to coolie labor conditions or else starve to death.

Let a ringing call go forth from the Atlanta Labor Convention to all labor organizations demanding that the respective govern-ments keep their hands off China. Let this demand be made the world over and persisted in until the governments yield or organized labor is destroyed.

Better fill graves than live in slavery.

Protecting Daults from Mobs

In a descriptive announcement to prospective despositors, the Harris Safe Deposit company, of Chicago, lays particular stress upon the construction of its vaults to prevent any possible mob violence

The reference to this possible contingency reads as follows: "Special provision, not found elsewhere in Chicago, has been made against any possible mob violence or riots. Completely surrounding the vaults is a high pressure system of steam pipes with outlets through which, in case of extreme emergency, live steam can would make it impossible for anyone to operate within the vault sone."

Whether this safeguard against public violence will attract any of the depositors from the Continental and Commercial National Bank we do not know. We are inclined to believe that the ordinary precautions against burglary, fire, cyclone and earthquakes are sufficient protection for the public savings.

8. Wobbly Socialists then got enough innocent locals to institute a referendum, now known as Referendum "D."
9. To vote "yes" on Referendum "D" means to indorse fusion.
10. If the party membership indorses fusion, we must change the national constitution, which now forbids fusion. Let's steer shy of the capitalist parties and stand by the comrades in St. Louis who have so nobly fought for clean-cut Socialist party tacties. The public generally, and especially in Chicago, does not fear the prospects of foreign invasion. For that reason it would be ridiculous for the Harris Saiety Deposit company to ask the government for a regiment of soldiers to guard the treasure stored in its vaults.

On the other hand the American public has always proved itself a nation of well-behaved and orderly citizens. Mob violence and disorderly riots are not condoned by the American people.

Through revoltuion they have established their independence and with civil war have gained the right to universal manhood suffrage They are now in a most peaceable manner gaining that right for

Majority rule has been unequivocally established and so long as the majority of American citizens are opposed to mob violence and riots a strong public sentiment will be a greater safeguard against such dangers than high pressure systems of steam pipes.

Cardinal Gibbons thinks the era of war is passing. Yes, as we stand and watch the procession of current events we are inclined to agree with the cardinal-the era now passing is one of war.

History of the Great American Fortunes," Etc. (Copyright, 1911, by Gustavns Meyers.)

As we have seen in chapter IV, Wilson supplied by far the greater part of the funds for the securing of the bribed grant of 35,000,000 acres of land. At Wilson's death, President Adams appointed Bushrod Washington an associate justice of the Supreme court. Bushrod Washington, as we have told, had been placed by his uncle, George Washington, in Wilson's office to study law, and had been associated in that capacity with Wilson during the very period when Wilson was engineering his Bank of North America transaction. He had inherited George Washington's Mount Vernon estate. All the other justices of the Supreme court of the United States were well advanced in years, but Bushrod Washington was only 36 years old at the time of his being _commissioned associate justice. As we have seen in chapter IV, Wilbeing commissioned associate justice.

Federalists Lose Power

With the election of Jefferson, in 1800, the Federalists seemed swept out of power. Many causes conspired to bring about this great political change. The small merchants and petty shop-keepers, aiming at an unrestricted field for their own economic advancement revolted against government by the large landholding families. Instead of the old hereditary aristocracy, based upon large possessions of land, the time was ripening for a newer aristocracy of he made a money loan and then foreclosed, tically donate his properties to Rockefeller.

When these stories by Miss Tarbell appeared our benevolent thon of powers in the national government; the country was vast, communication was difficult and slow, and the two great conflicting economic systems of North and South were silently but were intensely clashing.

Such portions of the working class as had the right to vote enthusiastic-ally supported the Republicans or Arti-Federalists, believing that the defeat of he Federalists meant a death blow to aristocracy. They could not foresee that a vastly more powerful industrial and transportation aristocracy would

Lastly, there were dissensions within But try as we may to forget John D.'s life story and do what he will to remove the blot of Standard Oil from the fair pages of black pages. The great landholders, bent upon annihilating both the influence and results of the French Revolution, were determined upon a bitter war with France, and an alliance with England. But President John Adams, whose interests and traditions lay more with the shippers than with the landholders, shippers than with the landholders, wanted no war; this attitude caused a wide breach between the Adams and the Hamilton factions.

Pack Courts Before Going

The Republicans (25) believed they now had a clear field of power. The Federalists, however, proceeded to ex-ecute into law a piece of legislation by which they were able to outseneral their opponents and retain practical power. The Republicans had the ad-their opponents and retain practical power. The Republicans had the administrative offices, and a majority of the legislators, but the crucial question was as to which side would control the judiciary.

This fact both parties thoroughly appreciated. They knew that the courts before and during the Revolution had gone to lawless lengths in doing as they willed. They knew that the courtand already, unquestioned, set aside had already, unquestioned, set aside acts of legislatures as null and void, and that they would and could do so again with acts of both legislatures and Congress. They, knew that the courts were the prime instruments for sanctioning the acts of the ruling class, and that with judicial precedents already built up, and more that could be added, theories of law could be devised to suit any exigency. Theoretically, the three departments of government each held theories of law could be devised to suit any exigency. Theoretically, the three Bushrod Washington became blind in departments of government each held one eye. In stature he was insignif-co-ordinate jurisdiction, but this was merely a pleasant fiction. The courts were the real masters of destinies.

In the last days of their power the Federalists passed a new judiciary act, creating a series of new courts, and nearly threescore new judges. The most important post in the whole government, however, was that of chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. The president lasted for four, perhaps eight, years in office; the chief justice held office for life. The president could arrogate the sovereign power (two other members of the Supreme Court agreeing with him) of abolishing laws with a stroke of the pen, or virtually making laws nothing more than legislative law.

But the straining of both political

But the straining of both political parties for the control of the judiciary was, judging by fundamentals, merely a shallow conflict. This was later lucidly proved when justices of both political stripes stood together in validating immense land frauds and the fraudilent recovery. ing immense land frauds and the fraud-ulent recovery of confiscated estates, in the twisting and kneading of the constitution to accord with particular or general interests of each succeeding dominant division of the capitalist class, in the declaration of perpetual vested private and corporate "rights," and in the continuation of chattel slav-ery. Outs free differences were reery. Quite true, differences were re-vealed among various justices over the question of state's rights versus co idation of power in the national govern-ment. But those differences exactly reflected the contentions prevailing at the particular time between contend ing groups of capitalists. ing groups of capitalists.

All of the justices, to whichever political party they belonged, to whatever source they owed their appointment, believed in the domination of government. ment by property for property, al-though, while most of them believed that this rule should be of the larg propertied interests, a few held tha the middle class property elemen the middle class property element should hold the power. But all were agreed upon the main point of straining every interpretation and construc-tion for the benefit of property, even though there came times when a minority justice, or perhaps others with him, refused to concur in some notorious decision handed forth by the majority. All, by their consistent actions, evinced irrefutable bias in favor of established conditions, so far as they applied to the general repression of the workers, and all were class prejudiced against any attempt of the working class to improve its conditions, and shake off the yoke of the oppression of numberless centuries.

A short time before leaving office A short time before leaving office President Adsms, on January 31, 1801, appointed John Marshall to be chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. Jefferson, who came from the same state as Marshall, and who was thoroughly conversant with his career and mentality, deplored the appointment as a public calamity. To-ward Adams and others, Jefferson entertained a bitter enough hatred; but when Jefferson was extremely old, and after he had forgiven all his other foes, Marshall was the one man whom he could not bring himself to forgive. All Jefferson's political ideas, ideals and plans were upset and uprooted by Marshall's decisions, which forced into practice the very opposite of Jeffer-son's doctrines. We, who have the ad-vantage of the retrospection afforded by time, may look back, and, understanding the course of industrial progress, may see that in that particular respect Jefferson was in error. For the next thirty-five years Marshall was in point of actual sovereignty the ruler of the United States, and by force of decisions handed down by him, has, it may be safely said, ruled the courts (which rule the United States) ever since. Marshall's appointment signified the unrestricted development of private orporate institutions and power.

RISE OF SOCIALISM Lincoln, Neb,-The Lincoln Star, in an article bearing the caption. "Re-markable Gain in Socialist Vote," tells the following story of the rise of Social-ism in this state during the last two years, and predicting that the vote next fall in Nebraska will be more than 10 .-000, or double the vote polled by the So-

Socialists have gained at per cent in their following at the polls.

"Taking in connection with many local victories won by the Socialists throughout the country at the late election, this growth in Nebraska foreshadtion, this growth in Nebraska foreshadows the entrance of a new and vigorous political force into state politics.

"It is probable that the full count will give the party between 4 and 5 per cent of the total vote.

"The strong showing made by the Socialists this year permanently displaces the prohibition party as the third political organization of Nebraska.

"Two years ago, Hunt, for university regent on the Socialist ticket, polled 1,777 votes in the forty-six counties which have reported to the secretary of which have reported to the secretary state since Tuesday's election. In 1910, Wright, for governor, received 2,870 votes in the same counties. This year, the Socialist vote cast in these fortysix counties is as follows:

cranium, Frederic Morris, a boy of Yonkers, N. Y., became a "good boy." The Socialist movement is now operat-ing upon the cranium of society. Watch "The increase in 1910 over the previous year was 611-2 per cent. This year, taking as a comparison the medium vote for Morrow and not the highest vote for Moody, the gain is 31 per cent over 1910.

"The Socialist vote is likely to teach 9,000 or 10,000 on a complete ticket. The forty-six countles included estimates cast 36 per cent of the total Socialist vote in 1909, and 15 per cent of it 1910. Taking 40 per cent as a medium basis, this would give over 9,000 in the whole state.

WOMEN DENOUNCE JUDGE FOR SEIZING M'NAMARA PAPERS

Indianapolis, Ind .- The Socialist Woen's Club has passed resolutions de-juncing as unlawful Judge Anderson's action in ordering the seizure of the local papers and documents in the Molocal papers and documents in the Mc-Namara case, which were in the custody of the Marion Criminal court, and ask-ing that the constitution of the United States be amended so that Federal Judges may be recalled. The resolutions say in part:

"Resolved, That we declare it to be the sense of this body that, since the said property has been seized in the name of the law, and without the sanction of the law, that it is the moral and legal right of the citizens, members of the working class, to demand and take by force, if necessary, the afore-said property now held in the custody of the Federal court; and, be it fur-

That is, they got up a parade and two mass meet-ings that filled the biggest halfs in Reading, to show their strength, and this frightened "Boss" Penrose's leaders so that a deal of some sort was made with the leaders of the Keystone, or reformers', party. WORKERS GET NINE MORE DEPUTIES IN GERMANY

Dayton, Ohio.—Dayton will be swept by the Socialists in 1913 is the prediction of Fred G. Strickland, the well-known Socialist lecturer. In speaking of the case, Strickland says:

"A very practical lesson for all to learn is that Dayton will be a Socialist city in 1913. Already the signs of a cialists in 1918.

"Socialism has more than doubled its strength in Nebraska during the last two years, as shown by the returns from forty-six counties officially made to the secretary of state. In an off-year election, when the vote of other parties exhibits the usual slump, the Socialists have gained 31 per cent in their following at the polls.

"Taking in connection with many that ward."

"Taking in connection with many the signs of a change are at hand. Two pastors of our city are taking on our subject to whether it is favorable or unfavorable. We were attacked from religious quarters just before the election. The result was that we carried the very ward we were assisted by religious friends with the result that we carried that ward.

"Dayton will be won by the Socialists because it is a city of reading and thinking working people. It is largely a city of working people's homes. From just such material our ranks are re-cruited. Not the destroyers of homes, but the builders of homes become Socialists. The solving of the bread problem gives a chance for our homes to abide and for our religion to be

"We have reached the point now when the Socialist party in Dayton will grow with leaps and bounds. Next comes our weekly newspaper, our Lyceum Lecture Course, and our training school. We fight in open. All our meetings are open to the public. We have nothing to conceal, not even our discussions as to tactics. We want the public to know what we are doing. And the public wants to know. And the more they know of our principle, the more they know of our principle, the more they will desire it. In such a way Dayton will swing into the head of the procession which is making straight for the co-operative making straight for the co-operative commonwealth."
