AGRICULTURAL STOPPAGE IN SHOPS FOR STRUGGLE AGAINST MANUFACTURERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The whole cloak and dress industry of this city has been called upon by the Joint Committee of American Local 9 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners Workers' Union, to stop work next Thursday, August 20, at 3 o'clock. The workers will gather in 10 of the largest halls throughout the city to discuss a general stoppage of the industry.

AS WE SEE IT By T. A. O'FLAHERTY

THE so-called Americanization campaign of the American Legion is to let up on the Communist school and give a course in economics during the months of June and July in the state of Wisconsin. Students were employed by the legion to get the notes in the Communist school and they did. They learned that the legion had a dark secret by which it had and could be done away with. This pernicious doctrine, it appears, has a dark secret by which it can be done away with. This pernicious doctrine, it appears, has a dark secret by which it can be done away with.

THE legion, in order to deceive the D. P. worker, never really intended to make war on Communist propaganda. It seems we heard that the legion was to be a "socialist" and it is not. The legion is a Communist. To the legion and the legion used the wrong methods to reach Communism. To the American Legion should not be a Communist. To the American Legion should not be a Communist.

JACQUES SADOUL IS FREED BY VERDICT OF FRENCH COURT

(Special to The Daily Worker)
PARIS, Aug. 16.—Jacques Sadoul has been freed by the French court. The death sentence at his life by the French government has also fallen. The death penalty has been dropped and he was declared not guilty. The trial which lasted the second and the first was presided over by the French government because Sadoul showed sympathetic understanding of the Soviet Government of Russia. The socialist came into the prosecuting judge's trial to associate with the French state at war with Russia at that time. The anti-war had to be, and since the two countries were not involved in war at that time, the conviction was declared void and Sadoul definitely declared not guilty.

UNION WATCH MAKERS-LIBEL HUMBLE SKUNK

United Garment Scabs Not in Dictionary

At a meeting of the Watch and Clock Makers' Union held last Thursday night, the members of the union, who were the only two to remain in the union, were denouncing the scabbers of the United Garment Workers' Union in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers strike was unanimously adopted.

The United States on the democratic or Jackson ticket, he made of himself the laughing stock of the country. The activities of the United States are not yet in the condition that would compel them to select anybody as president and the labor movement to fool the workers into the belief that a representative of theirs was running the country, as the British ruling class did when they allowed the king, Ramsey MacDonald, to take over the reins of government.

Berry had broken so many strikes that he got that he was another Calvin Coolidge. "Cal" reached the White House, owing to the publicity he got for helping to break the policemen's strike in Boston in 1915. Really, he took too much credit. The response to the fiasco rested with the Scabbers, who first gave the police a charter and then got cold feet, while the employers lured as they what the Chicago police are doing and they lost. The result was that several hundreds of men lost their jobs and Coolidge was in it that they never got that back. This is what is known as policemen when they do the many thing and line up with the workers instead of doing as they usually are as a strikebreaker. Hospitals The former Russian town hospital establishments, although of the most modern type, were in a state of disrepair. The town hospitals were in a state of disrepair.

Very extensive measures had, therefore, immediately to be taken to cope with the situation. Large numbers of patients had been taken over by the Russian army, and the hospital had to be reorganized.

Means of segregation alone, however, great strides were made during the next 18 months, and in May, 1924, the position had already almost returned to the pre-war normal.

With the return to more normal conditions, the Commissariat of Health has been able to reorganize the old establishments and such new ones as had been hastily arranged to meet the needs of the epidemic.

These establishments have now been equipped and placed in five different categories: Hospitals, dispensaries for out-patients, sanatoria, rest homes, and maternity homes.

The following statistics will give some idea of the reconstruction work that has taken place during the last two years:

Table with 2 columns: Category and Number. Includes rows for Moscow Town, Moscow District, Province, and Krasnodar.

The total figure for Soviet Russia, as compared with the same area administered by Tsarist Russia in 1913 are as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Category and Number. Includes rows for Population, Hospitals, and Beds.

The above figures do not include the medical and sanitary arrangements for the railways and waterways. These are served by a special organization under the Commissariat of Health.

During the revolutionary period the various Trade Unions, factories and other undertakings had organized their own medical services. Under the New Economic Policy these have now all been taken over by the Commissariat of Health.

The railway and waterway medical services are, however, in a somewhat different position to other undertakings, and their medical organization, which constitutes a special branch of the Commissariat of Health, still retains a certain measure of autonomy.

Over 40,000 miles of communication are now divided into 10 sections on the railways and 120 sections on the waterways. Each section is controlled by a special medical staff consisting of a staff of workers who are subject to discipline, or a staff of doctors according to the length of the section.

Each division is responsible for the health of the passengers of his section, not only as regards the railway itself, but also its personnel and the passengers traveling over the section. In addition, the responsible medical staff is also responsible for the health of the workers of his section, not only as regards the railway itself, but also its personnel and the passengers traveling over the section.

In 1912 the railways and waterways of Russia were equipped with 143 hospitals and 5,725 beds. These have now been increased to 297 hospitals and 11,000 beds.

Further, the Committees organize lectures and public meetings to educate the workers in hygiene and sanitation. The Committees also issue the workers pamphlets and literature issued by the Department.

Under the auspices of these Sanitary and Health Commissions it is hoped eventually to prevent all the towns and villages. Every child up to the age of 3 years and every expectant mother are directed under the Baby and Motherhood Welfare Department of the Commissariat of Health.

Other institutions established lately under the Children and Baby Welfare Schemes are day care stations, which are open day and night for the purpose of receiving children found homeless or neglected, and day care stations for kindergarten children.

Psychological observation stations for studying children with mental and moral peculiarities. There are now 65 such stations, where over 6,000 children are under observation.

These observation stations work in conjunction with a special commission, composed of a doctor, a teacher, a lawyer, and a public health officer, who are responsible for the health of the children.

Special institutions for training inspectors are now being established in order to train 275 inspectors for municipal and industrial preventive children.

The organization in the industrial areas appears to be very concrete and efficient. The workers are organized into sanitary and health committees, which are responsible for the health of the workers.

The most serious difficulty, however, in many rural districts is the attitude of the peasants themselves. Any measure of sanitary hygiene is resisted to the utmost, capacity.

Much political capital has been made out of this resistance, and the peasants are often misled by the propaganda which has been attributed to political causes, whereas in reality they were the results of the activities of the Sanitary Commission.

It is known that the peasants are often misled by the propaganda which has been attributed to political causes, whereas in reality they were the results of the activities of the Sanitary Commission.

In August of last year a Special Sanitary Commission dispatched a number of experts to various parts of the country, to investigate the sanitary conditions of the peasants.

PROGRESSIVE MINERS' HEAD IN CALL FOR A UNITED FRONT OF ALL MINERS AGAINST OPERATORS

BY ALEX REID (Secretary of Workers' Committee.) The situation in the coal mining industry through the country has reached a crisis, and an industrial battle is looming, which will immediately settle definitively the question of the far-reaching consequences. The anthracite miners are demanding a change in working conditions, and are determined to fight for it...

The living conditions of the hard coal miners in Pennsylvania and the depletion of the anthracite have repudiated the meager demands of the coal diggers. The situation in the hard coal fields has its counterpart in the bituminous fields, and the Joint Miners' Committee is clamoring and due to break on September 1. The demands are an increase in wages, change in working conditions, and the enforcement of the Jacksonville agreement.

Government Strike Breaking Agency. The government is reported to be considering intervention, and force arrest of the disruptive miners. Reliable sources are informed that John L. Lewis may join the hard coal and bituminous lease coal strike. The main of the question he forced on the miners was the lease.

The social conditions of the miners are almost beyond description, their wives and families through the aid given by the Jacksonville agreement are starting as a result of long unemployment, which in turn is a direct result of the Jacksonville agreement itself, which Lewis advised on the miners in the lease without his consent.

Against the Manchester. The agreement forced on the miners at Jacksonville is for a term of three years, for no other reason than to give the coal operators, collaborating with the union officials, time to squeeze out of the industry the militant miners who were responsible for the false leadership of the Manchester. Lewis clearly saw the progressive miners were not going to be dominated in any manner as possible.

How was it to be done? The lease joined hands to squeeze 300,000 miners out of the industry, and in the process the militant miners in the lease to support the United Mine Workers, who the strike was settled, and the false leadership of the Manchester. Lewis refused to recognize the coal operators, and in fact the mine was throughout the strike. The miners also demanded Government relief in the form of a strike benefit, knowing from experience that arbitration had
