IRELAND is not yet free from the grip of imperial Britain, but what a calamity it would be for the Irish-American capitalist politicians if a St. Patrick's day came around without there being some legitimate excuse for pulling the lion's tail.

WETHER the St. Patrick of the annual Fifth Avenue parade ever existed in the flesh is a moot question. Bruce Barton might do worse than write a book on: "The St. Patrick Nobody Knows."

THAT he was a good politician is beyond question, granting that he is not a mythical character. It appears that he did not waste much time explaining the program and platform of christianity to the heathen Irish.

WHEN St. Patrick landed in Ireland the old druids smelled a rival. The easiest way to dispose of rivals in those days was to lop off their heads.

THERE was no waste of time here preaching the philosophy of christianity. Patrick delivered the goods. Having conquered everything in his path he finally ran into the big guns of the old priestcraft.

U. S. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETS IN SPRING TO DISCUSS BIG BUSINESS STRATEGIC MOVES

WASHINGTON (FP).—Important economic changes now taking place in the business life of the nation will be talked over from the big business standpoint, when the 15th annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States is held, May 3-5, in its Washington headquarters.

Firestone Wants Hindu Slavery In U. S.

"Cheap Labor" for Southern Rubber Plantations

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 17.—Not content with buying out Liberia and enslaving the Liberian population, Harvey Firestone, rubber magnate, proposes to establish a Liberia or Belgian Congo in the United States.

"If the problem of labor costs can be solved," he and his side-kick, Thomas A. Edison, propose to raise rubber for commercial purposes. The waste cotton lands of the South can be used for rubber production, it is said.

Americans Not Docile. Fearing that American labor cannot be exploited savagely enough to yield Firestone the huge profits which he is seeking, the importation of Hindu labor has been suggested.

Handful of Rice Per Day. By feeding the Hindus on a "handful of rice a day" and thus "keeping down labor costs", the Edison-Firestone-Williams triumvirate hopes to reap handsome profits.

British Cooperation. The British government will cooperate with the rubber magnates in establishing a slave colony in the United States, it is said. "I am quite sure that if this country were to ask the British government for permission to import several thousand Hindu laborers from India such permission could be obtained easily enough", Captain Vaughan-Williams declared.

Hindu More Profitable. The obstacle in the way of rubber-growing in the United States has been the refusal of American workers to live on a handful of rice a day. The exploitation of Hindu labor is far more profitable for the Firestone-Edison clique.

Needle Trade Workers Of Cleveland Holding Meeting Next Monday

CLEVELAND, March 17.—All progressive and militant needle trades workers in sympathy with the cloakmakers in New York and their fight against reaction, are invited to attend a meeting at the Freiheit Hall, 3541 East 116th St. on Monday, March 21 at 8 p. m.

British Failed To Prove Case, Says Pravda

Seems to Think China Part Of British Empire

MOSCOW, Feb. 28. (By Mail).—Today's "Pravda" declares that the reply of the Soviet government has completely refuted the apparent proofs offered in the note of the British government. The British note declares the "Pravda" was particularly weak in connection with the Chinese question although Chamberlain quoted from speeches of Soviet statesmen made upon Soviet soil concerning the perspectives of the Chinese revolution.

The Soviet answer declared that the agreement of 1923 had refrained from supporting persons and organizations "pursuing the aim of stirring up discontent or insurrection in any part of the British empire". Even if the legendary "Soviet agents" referred to by the British note had been proved not to be legendary, Chamberlain would only then be justified in his complaints on the assumption that China was a part of the British empire. It was a fact that the British government was sending British troops and British warships to China although it spoke continually of non-interference in Chinese affairs.

SYNDICALIST LAW BARBAROUS, SAYS DR. G. W. KIRCHWEY

Measure Branded as a Tool of Class Hate

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The injustice and barbarity of the California criminal syndicalism law were attacked by Dr. George W. Kirchwey, warden of Sing Sing prison and former Dean of the Columbia University Law School in an address here last week. Dr. Kirchwey has just completed a survey of the law and its administration.

Condemning the law as a "concrete expression of war psychology", Dr. Kirchwey declared that the law was enforced with the barbarity and the vindictiveness of "a man-hunt". The law has been used both as a weapon of class hatred and as a cover for private malice and vengeance, he said.

Dr. Kirchwey found that 531 people in California had been charged with criminal syndicalism and 504 arrested. More than half of these, 292, were dismissed without trial. Of 264 tried, 164 were convicted and 114 appealed their cases, half of the decisions were reversed and other are still pending.

"The law passed as a result of mass fear" he declared in branding it as the product of war hysteria. "We find nothing to justify the dread which engendered it." The constitutionality of the law is challenged by Dr. Kirchwey on two grounds. It violates the constitutional guarantees of equality before the law by discriminating against advocates of industrial or political change; and it makes mere membership in a prescribed organization a crime, he said.

To Offer Proof Sapiro Cheats Farmers

Reed Says Ford's Opponent Drained "Cooperatives"

DETROIT, Mich., March 17.—Senator Jim Reed, presidential possibility for the democratic party, today defended Henry Ford, the richest man in America, with a great outpouring of eloquence against Aaron Sapiro who is suing Ford for a million dollars for libel.

"Ford's defense will be that the Dearborn Independent printed the truth about Sapiro," said Reed. He relegated to the background the charges of "Jewish control," said nothing about the "radical" accusations made against Sapiro by Ford, and declared that every charge that Sapiro mulcted the farmers by a series of fake cooperatives would be proven to the hilt.

Sapiro Dislikes New Trend. An effort by Sapiro's attorneys to stop this line of argument resulted did not care who he injured in the judge's chambers between opposing counsel, at the end of which Judge Fred S. Raymond ruled that Reed could continue while the judge looked up precedents.

Reed pictured Sapiro as a clever schemer, who wanted to corner the agricultural markets of the world, and did not care who it injured in the process, nor by what untruthful advertising he accomplished his ends. He charged that Sapiro and his friends lobbied the "cooperatives" thru exorbitant salaries, even when they knew the pools were about to fail.

Big Loot From Cotton. Reed told the jury a story of how Sapiro operated the southern cotton cooperative. After Sapiro got $142,000 in fees from the association, said Reed, a receivership was asked because it was in bad financial straits. Reed next followed Sapiro's activities into Kentucky where the plaintiff organized tobacco growers.

Says Sapiro Lobbied. "The evidence will show that Sapiro went through the states lobbying to get state legislatures to enact bills validating the contracts of his cooperatives," said Reed. Reed declared Sapiro had told the farmers that the average earnings of each cotton worker's family was $340 a year.

"Sapiro told them their low returns were due to the middle man's profits," Reed shouted, "and yet he took these same middle men into his associations and let them fatten and fatten upon the farmers."

Promises to Child Slaves. "He told them that if his cooperative plan went through 320,000 women and children who had worked in the cotton fields could return to their homes. He said the whole trouble in the south was the rotten marketing system, he said the cooperative system would establish a new system of prosperity throughout the south."

War Finance Board Aids. Reed definitely linked Eugene Meyer, Jr., former head of the War Finance Corporation, to Sapiro's cooperative program. The Missourian charged Sapiro had boasted he was the only man who could get loans of government money from Meyer. "The boast," said Reed, "was made to North Carolina tobacco growers."

Then Reed charged Sapiro with breaking his promises to farmers. "We will show you that these promises were never fulfilled," Reed asserted. "We will show that Sapiro then made threats against the individuals who would not come into his associations and threats against the towns in which they lived." (Continued on Page Two)

Amalgamated Calls Out St. Paul Garment Shop Workers; Shuts It Down

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 17.—The Twin Cities Joint Board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers has declared a strike on the St. Paul Garment Manufacturing Co.

All the workers left the street factory, shutting it down completely. The Amalgamated will have the help of all unionists in this vicinity to win the strike.

Report Nanking Has Fallen to Nationalists

Capture of City Would Open Road to Shanghai

PEKING, March 17.—Nanking, the ancient capital of China and key position in the drive of the Nationalist armies, is reported to have fallen into the hands of the Nationalists.

The General Labor Union of Shanghai has accepted the report of the fall of Nanking and has ordered a general strike. Thirteen thousand workers have already walked out and it is expected that thousands of other workers will join them. That 250,000 Shanghai workers will eventually be involved in the strike is confidently predicted here.

If reports of the fall of Nanking are correct, the fall of Shanghai is imminent.

Strenuous efforts are being made by foreign troops to prevent general strikes and demonstrations, as well as to forestall mutinies of the Sikh troops, of whose loyalty the British are doubtful. British guards, with naked bayonets, are posted on the outskirts of the International settlement in an effort to prevent the entrance of Chinese demonstrators.

The British authorities arrested two Mohammedans and one Sikh who will face charges of attempting to incite sedition in the camps of the Indian regiments. Sikh troops have sworn in their loyalty to the British imperialists in Hankow and it is quite possible that they may give over to the Nationalists in event of a direct attack on Shanghai.

Preparing To Quit LONDON, March 17.—General Chang Tsung Chang's Shantung forces, which have been counted upon as the main defense of Shanghai, are making preparations for evacuation in the face of the continuing and persistent drive forward of the Cantonese armies, according to a dispatch to the Daily News.

Launches and pontoons have been commandeered by the Shantung forces, it was reported, and this is accepted as meaning an early evacuation.

Wants Big Bounty. Earlier dispatches had stated that General Chang Tsung Chang had demanded that he be paid $5,000,000 before Friday, threatening otherwise to leave Shanghai to its fate at the hands of the Nationalists.

The Hankow correspondent of the Daily News cables that the old regime in the British concession there has ended and that the Anglo-Chinese council, which gives a large measure of control to the Chinese, has taken over administration of the city.

"Mussolini Is Always Right," Declares Rule For Fascist Puppets

ROME, March 17.—The puppet-like obedience and the blind reverence for Mussolini that is inculcated into Fascist militiamen are brought out by the "ten rules of conduct for perfect militiamen" which have been posted in the Fascist barracks.

Some of the rules are as follows: Mussolini is always right. One thing must be precious above all—the Duce's life. If you are punished you probably deserved it.

Remember the Fascist, especially the militiamen, must not believe in perpetual peace. (How true.) One's country must be served even by standing guard over two-gallon can of gasoline.

MARION BOOTLEGG GANG SHOTS AT GLEN YOUNG AID

Williamson County's Feud Still Rages

MARION, Ill., March 17.—One of State's Attorney Arlie O. Boswell's bootlegger enemies took a shot at him last night as he was putting his car in the garage, but missed. Last September unknown assassins, probably representing the Birger gang, shot him through the calf of the leg.

Boswell is a former aid of the notorious S. Glenn Young, gunman for the K. K. K., and murderer of Sheriff Ora Thomas. Thomas was pro-labor. The firing on Boswell bears a close resemblance to the killing of Assistant State's Attorney McSwiggan, of Chicago, in a duel between two gangs of bootleggers, with one of which McSwiggan was friendly.

ALL RAILROADS CUT DOWN THEIR STAFFS; AVERAGE WAGE FOR 1926 UNDER $1600

By LELAND OLDS (Federated Press). Railroad employment, as usual, closed the year on the down-grade with 510,000 workers laid off between November and December, according to the interstate commerce commission. Altogether 92,251 railroad workers have lost their jobs since October, the high point of 1926.

The lay-offs reveal the seasonal nature of maintenance of way employment. About 45,000 of the men laid off belonged in that department. Others losing their jobs include 1,505 clerks, 2,856 shopmen, 3,118 transportation men other than train and engine men and 677 train and engine service employees.

Coal Operators May Lock Out Illinois

Lewis Continues Temporary, Separate Agreements

HILLSBORO, Ill., March 17.—Signs of a union mine shut-down for three months are strengthened by announcement that the Perry mine at Hillsboro will remain closed 90 days. Perry, the owner, was chairman of the abortive national conference between operators and the United Mine Workers at Miami, Fla. A recent tour of the Illinois mine fields revealed unprecedented stores of coal above ground.

The progressive forces in the United Mine Workers of America, who backed John Brophy for president in the last international election, have steadily warned that the coal industry is producing more than it can find a market for, and that the only way to prevent unemployment is a smashing campaign of organization thruout the non-union fields, with the development of union power to shorten the day's work, and distribute the labor requirements over the whole group of miners.

The unprecedented profits made in non-union fields by the operators there can just as well be utilized, in part at least, towards lessening of the danger of a shut-down, say the progressives.

Companies Prepare.

The present situation is aggravated by the fact that under the leadership of John L. Lewis, no organization campaign was made in preparation for the expiration of the present contract (March 31) and the employers, feeling sure of winning a strike if they only had enough coal above ground, mined extensively during the last few months. Now Lewis announces that there is going to be no strike, and the coal operators counter by declaring what is in effect, a lockout. Continue Separate Contracts. Lewis reported to labor department officials today that he was making substantial progress in signing provisional wage and working contracts with soft coal operators outside the central competitive field of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania.

The effect of this series of provisional agreements, contracts which are not really contracts but can be terminated by the employers as soon as the strike is over in the Central competitive field, will be to reduce the effect of any strike there, if one should, in spite of Lewis' preliminary surrender, break out.

Hog-tie Union. Progressives accuse the administration of the United Mine Workers with not only surrendering their armament and placing the union at the mercy of the operators, as far as official action is concerned, but of planning to make it impossible for any spontaneous or district strikes to take place. No Joint Conference. Union officials have practically despaired of getting another joint wage conference for the central field. The first conference collapsed at Miami when the operators declined to renew the present contract, and the miners rejected the operators' proposal for a continuous "competitive" pay scale. If there is not a second conference, Lewis will call the miners' policy committee to meet in Indianapolis during the last week of this month to determine whether individual operators in the central field will be allowed to sign separate contracts.

ORDERS JERSEY SCHOOL TO LET NEGRO BOY IN

Raison Says Son Sent to Unhealthy Building

TRENTON, N. J., March 17.—Supreme Court Justice Frank T. Lloyd here today signed an order asked by John F. Raison, a Negro, directing the board of education of Berkeley township to admit Raison's son, Frank, 10 years old, to the Toms River public school, or, failing that, to show cause on April 6 next for refusing to admit the boy to that school.

While Raison was asking for this order, State Senator Alexander Simpson, democrat, of Hudson County, introduced a bill in the senate, making the segregation of children "by reason of color, race or religion," a misdemeanor.

To Insanitary Building.

Raison said that his son, Frank, had been attending the Toms River school for the last two years. On February 1 last, Frank and 21 other Negro children were taken out of the Toms River school, and moved to a school established in a Negro church at Bushwick. The church building has walls without plaster, retains moisture, is cold and damp, poorly heated, and unsanitary, and drinking water there is kept in an unsanitary galvanized pail, Raison said in an affidavit.

Color Discrimination.

"I believe I have a right to have my child educated in the school nearest his home," Raison said. "That is, the Dover township school at Toms River, a half mile from where the boy lives. My son has been and still is excluded from that school because he is a Negro, which means he is excluded because of his color."

British Imperialists Failed to Prove Their Case, Says "Pravda"

only concrete accusation raised against the Soviet government was in connection with the so-called "Zinoviev letter" which was manufactured in the workshops of the British secret police and which helped the existing British government to win the election campaign. It was a well-known fact that this letter was a forgery and that up until now no one has been punished for it. This forgery was used as a threat to break off diplomatic relations as a threat of peaceful relations.

The "Pravda" writes: "The more groundless the British accusations are the quicker they become. Chamberlain for instance, is not satisfied with Kamenev. We do not know whether perhaps Chamberlain has been instructed by Mussolini to express the dissatisfaction of the latter with Kamenev. If that is not the case why does Chamberlain consider it necessary to interfere in the affairs of the Soviet Ambassador in Italy? When only Anglo-Russian relations are under discussion? Or perhaps in the meantime Italy has become a part of the British empire? And the presence of the 'Soviet agent' Kamenev there is not agreeable to Scotland Yard?"

Answers With Dignity. The Soviet government had declared the "Pravda," despite the absurdity of the accusations made against it and despite the challenging tone of the British note, answered with the greatest reserve. The Soviet government had exhibited great self-control and a great will for peace by expressing once again its complete preparedness to settle all differences and conflicts by peaceful negotiations. However, the cabinet of Richards was pursuing its own plans. There was a certain danger on this and it was the task of the working masses to curb the conservative extremists.

Governor Alfred E. Morality Minor Issue Says Anderson As He Attacks Bad Grammar

William Pickens, field secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and chairman of the recently formed "Hands Off China Committee," has received a letter from Moscow informing him that his latest book, "Bursting Bonds," will shortly be published by the state publishing trust.

The letter follows: "My dear Mr. Pickens: 'Your three letters and the copy of 'Bursting Bonds' I received a few days ago. Many thanks for them. About the 'Bursting Bonds' it is just the kind of book I was looking after—it is a matter of some petty formalities, which are going to be settled on coming Monday the 14th (so informed me Mr. Lundberg) and the book will be accepted by the 'Gosizdat' (governmental publishing) for the purpose of translating it. SACASA SECURES MORE VICTORIES OVER U. S. AGENT

PUERTO CABEZAS, Nicaragua, March 17.—Dr. Juan Sacasa, liberal leader, and constitutional president of Nicaragua today stated that his forces had met with "tremendous success" in their campaign against the government troops of President Diaz in the past few days.

In Spite of Marines.

"In spite of American intervention," Sacasa said, "my forces experienced the greatest success of the war on Monday when they captured Bocaco, following their victory up on Tuesday with the capture of San Jeronimo, Acoyapa and Tierra Azul, where they secured quantities of arms and ammunition from the enemy. "Huge reinforcements will be brought up to these cities, to prepare for the attack which General Gomez is expecting from General Moncada at Tierra Azul."

The liberals here are now extremely hopeful of success, and are celebrating the reported victories.

Fight in Matagalpa.

BLI EFIELDS, Nicaragua, March 17.—Fighting has been in progress the past three days in the Matagalpa district, according to news reaching here today. It is believed that the result may determine the outcome of the revolution.

No Peace If Diaz Wins.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, March 17.—A peace mission which was to have started for Puerto Cabezas to attempt to urge Dr. Sacasa, liberal leader to give up his efforts to win military success, has been abandoned as those interested feel that the war will have been brought to a conclusion by a decisive battle before they could reach Puerto Cabezas. They expected the recent battle in which Diaz was beaten to be a victory for him.

Diaz announces that he lost sixty-one dead and seventy wounded in the battles at San Jeronimo and Tierra Azul on Tuesday.

Admiral Latimer has left for Toronto, but prior to his departure he congratulated the editors of La Prensa for their initiative in putting out an English section of their paper, carrying international news service dispatches, for the benefit of American marines and sailors.

THE DAILY SYMPOSIUM

(conducted by Edgemant.)

The Question.

What do you believe will be the outcome of the Ford-Sapiro trial?

The Place.

Tremont Avenue corner Boston Road.

The Answers.

Sam Korat, Boston Road, Bronx, restaurant employee: "There is no racial issue involved. Sapiro is simply out for publicity. No doubt Ford will win since there is so much money backing him."

Louis Des Ruisseaux, Bronx Ave., Bronx, woodworker: "Ford will win out with his hands down."

Harry Goldberg, East 178th St., mechanic: "Sapiro won't win because the jury and judge are gentiles. It is undoubtedly due to Ford's influence that the Jews were barred from the jury."

Henry J. Sullivan, Daly Ave., Bronx, bookkeeper: "It is difficult to foretell what a jury will do. I believe that Sapiro will win. This is not the first time Ford has made himself ridiculous."

Mrs. H. Winters, College Ave., Bronx, housewife: "Sapiro will win if the jury is unbiased. It is high time that Ford should be taught a lesson. Sapiro deserves credit for defending the Jewish race."

Organize the Traction Workers

ARTICLE VIII.—THE 1905 STRIKE—WHO CAUSED IT?

By ROBERT MITCHELL

The picture which has thus far been presented of the New York Traction situation, particularly of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company is so striking and unusual that it becomes difficult to understand how the conditions have continued in this way for over a score of years: Fearful overwork, starvation pay, vile and unsanitary working conditions, a "reptile" company union sapping the life blood of the workers, an organized spy system which poisons all possible trust and comradeship among the workers and hounds their daily lives—how have these things gone on for so many years without the most violent kind of rebellion?

They Have Fought. The answer is that there have been rebellions; some of the bitterest and most violent in labor history. That the Interborough workers have not reaped the rewards of their struggles has not been their fault, as will be shown. That they remain still without recognized organization to protect them and advance their interests, is due to a peculiar kind of betrayal which has been practised upon them.

Nor should it be supposed that the traction workers have always been unorganized. To many men on the line and particularly to workers in other trades who can not look back with accuracy for a quarter of a century, it may come as a surprise that the Interborough once had a most powerful and militant labor organization.

Previous to the year 1905, the Interborough was not only organized, but it was affiliated with two of the most powerful national labor organizations in the country, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Amalgamated Association of Street & Electric Railway Employees of America. The motormen and conductors were affiliated with the B. of L. E. and most of the other workers with the Amalgamated. The heads of the local divisions were three honest and hard working leaders who remind one, as he reads of their struggle against the Interborough of Lavin, Bark, Phelan and Walsh who put up such a heroic battle against that unscrupulous company last July. The leaders of the 1905 strike were Jencks, Pinney and Pepper. The first two were of the locals affiliated with the B. of L. E. and the last, of the Amalgamated.

National Civic Federation. Now, if you have never heard of the National Civic Federation, the first guess you will make is that it is an organization of Fascists and American Legionists; secondly that it is a body of labor officials. You are right in both guesses! But your guesses were not so difficult after all, for everyone knows by this time that organizations whose motives are to disrupt labor unions and corrupt labor officials invariably adopt such a name as the above to serve as a disguise for their real purpose. In the case of the National Civic Federation, its vicious activities are all the more effective because it works under a cover of pretended friendship to organized labor and collective bargaining.

Provides Market Place. The National Civic Federation brings together the capitalist and the "labor leader" in a co-operative scheme to sell out the workers. It orates about common interests and the removal of conflicts from the economic plane; it prates about a square deal for labor and agitates for compulsory arbitration; it advocates trade agreements and approves of scabbing and strike breaking; its left hand writes in glowing terms of abstract welfare work for employees while its right hand prepares definite and dishonest propaganda against old age pensions and social legislation. In short it is a fake, and it is supported by the highest officials of organized labor!

Advanced? Upon Shoppers. Draw the curtain from before one of the Civic Federation meetings. Knowing already what this organization stands for you will not, of course, be surprised to find there the collection of regular open shoppers—only the more "advanced" variety, however—likewise you will discover there the 57 varieties of union busters and labor exploiters. But even though you have already been warned you can not help gasping at your first view of the others. There sits old Sam Gompers, President of the A. F. of L., a full quorum of his vice presidents, Duffy, Duncan, Woll, Rickert and others; look further: there is old fighting W. D. Mahon, president of the Amalgamated Street & Electric Railway Employees of America, Warren S. Stone of the B. of L. E. and many, many others. How many, does not now matter, for to them all and their activities we shall do justice at another time and in another place.

The connection between the National Civic Federation and the 1905 Interborough strike now becomes a little clearer. Who was then President of the Interborough? August Belmont. What was his position in the National Civic Federation? Also President. Did he meet with brothers Stone and Mahon? Oh, yes, many times! Did they talk about the weather? Yes, and about the traction situation! Listen to brother Stone for a minute:

Promises No Strike. "There will be no strike on the Interborough, Mr. Belmont. You need not hesitate to go away on your vacation. If any disagreement arises between the management of the road and our local committee, it will be referred to you and me. If we cannot agree, we will refer the dis-

SORROW CRAZED YOUTH FAILURE IN BANDIT JOB

Darrow Points a Moral; Poor Fill Prisons

Broke and anxious to reach the bedside of his dying father in Lawrence, Mass., Leo Marsafa, 19 year old high school student yesterday chose crime and lost because he lacked the nerve of a bandit.

Young Marsafa entered a delicatessen store in Brooklyn, mumbled that he wanted to make a purchase and then struck the proprietor a terrific blow over the head with the butt of a revolver.

Panic-stricken as his victim slumped to the floor, Marsafa fled to the street, throwing the revolver to the pavement. He was seen by a passing letter-carrier, who summoned Policeman William J. Feeney.

Grief Stricken. As the youth jumped on a passing truck, Feeney commandeered a taxicab and caught him after a chase of four blocks.

Grief-stricken and hysterical, young Marsafa readily confessed the crime. He said he had come recently from Lawrence to live with an uncle. He had been unable to find work and yesterday received a letter from his sister, urging him to come home as his father lay at the point of death in a hospital. Unable to obtain the money lawfully, Marsafa had decided to steal it. He was charged with felonious assault.

"Men who are trained to make a living don't go to jail," declared Clarence Darrow, famous Chicago lawyer, yesterday in a talk before the West Side Unitarian Church.

"You don't find carpenters and bricklayers and doctors in jail in any number, but the poor and the ignorant who follow the easiest way. Crime is caused by poverty and by hate, and if you would devote one-tenth the money and effort now expended on punishment to a sincere effort to remove its causes you would practically eradicate it."

U. S. Government Will Agitate for Less Tax On Foreign Commerce

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The U. S. government is summoning a congress of taxation experts in London to lay a basis for propaganda for lower taxes by European countries on American commerce.

The United States is reported by the department of commerce to have about $13,000,000,000 invested abroad and to be doing about $5,000,000,000 worth of international commerce yearly. A certain amount of double taxation has crept in, the foreign investment and its product both being taxed abroad, and sometimes its commerce also paying a tariff to the U. S.

Adams For U. S. Professor I. S. Adams, Yale economist, will represent the United States at the gathering, to be attended by delegates from Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Argentina and other nations.

Mitchell B. Carroll, chief of the tax section of the commerce department, disclosed that among the questions to be considered at the London conference are:

- (1) Where business profits should be taxed.
 - (2) Whether dividends should be taxed in the country where the corporation is located, or in the country of the shareholder.
- "The experts plan to draft models for conventions governing the elimination of the multiple imposition of income and inheritance taxes," Carroll said.
- "They will discuss the feasibility of establishing a permanent organization. Action of the experts will not be binding on the governments which designate them."

Reed Calls Another Slush Fund Meeting

DETROIT, March 17.—Senator James Reed, (D) of Missouri, today sent telegrams to all members of his primary fund investigating committee calling them to Washington for a conference Saturday.

The slush fund committee will consider the Pennsylvania situation at the meeting, it was learned.

Senator Reed said that he planned to leave Detroit Friday night following the week-end adjournment of the Ford-Sapiro libel suit.

The new second volume of

RED CARTOONS OF 1927

The popularity of the first volume of RED CARTOONS (1926) has brought about the second volume of over seventy new cartoons and drawings by the leading American working class artists.

All your old favorites are included—with the work of six new artists:

- FRED ELLIS, BOB MINOR, ART YOUNG, W.M. GROPPER, LYDIA GIBSON, BECKER, AJERGER, VOSE, A. DEHN, HAY BALES, SUVANTO, GELLERT and others.

"The Cartoon represents a kind of snapshot long that often is sharper than words, and more effective than argument!"

Says the Introduction by

V. F. CALVERTON

Editor of the Modern Quarterly.

"The Cartoons are cartoons of social meaning and economic significance. They are conceived in the spirit of the class struggle and devoted to the definite purpose of class propaganda."

RED CARTOONS 1927

Claim Proof Will Be Offered to Show Sapiro Cheats Farmers

In one instance, Reed declared, Sapiro threatened to make "grass grow in the streets of the town of Wilson, N. C."

Late in the afternoon, Reed drew Bernard M. Baruch, the New York banker, into Sapiro's activities. Reed said Sapiro had conferred with Robert H. Bingham, of Louisville and Baruch before organizing the Burley Leaf Tobacco Association. Reed declared he would prove that Baruch had advised Sapiro to organize the association and had promised to lend monies to the cooperative to market the tobacco crop.

To Save Merchants.

Reed declared Baruch sent Sapiro to Kentucky to organize this association because the tobacco warehouse owners were "facing bankruptcy." Under the plan evolved, Reed said, Sapiro was to organize the tobacco farmers, pool their crops, borrow money on the pool and then buy the warehouses from their owners for the association.

"This plan was carried out," Reed said, "and we will show that Aaron Sapiro wrote out the minutes for the first meeting of the board of directors in advance and these minutes directed the purchase of the warehouses."

Generous to Middleman.

Reed said the minutes contained an instruction for the association "to err on the side of generosity toward the warehouseman," in making the purchase.

Minneapolis Conference Calls "Hands Off China" Demonstration, Sunday.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 17.—The "Conference Against Intervention in Mexico, Nicaragua and China," organized recently in Minneapolis, which held a mass meeting protesting against the annexation of Nicaragua and intervention in Mexico and China recently, has issued a call for a "Hands Off China" demonstration to be held on Sunday, March 20 in Yeoman Hall, 3rd Avenue South and 7th Street, Minneapolis at 2 in the afternoon.

Average Wage in Railroads Under $1,600

There were more workers on the payrolls in December, 1926, than the previous December. Altogether there were 20,656 more railroad workers than a year previous. But there were 7,892 fewer shop employees.

The 1,773,864 railroad workers employed during December received a total of $252,939,491 in wages or an average of $142.60 monthly apiece. With the December report we can recapitulate 1926 as follows:

Month	Number	Average monthly wage
January, 1926	1,730,071	$139
February	1,733,004	132
March	1,745,414	148
April	1,783,411	156
May	1,808,728	155
June	1,833,521	157
July	1,857,219	157
August	1,853,070	157
September	1,855,193	157
October	1,896,115	151
November	1,827,954	158
December	1,773,864	153
Yearly average	1,805,639	$1,656

The $142.60 average wage in December 1926 is a gain of about $3.10 over the average for December 1925 and $4.20 over December 1924. This average reflects the earnings of all employees including salaried executives and officials. If we consider only employees paid on an hourly basis the average for December 1926 was $136.75 and the average for the year under $160.00.

The average hourly rate for straight-time work on the railroads rose slightly from 39.1c in December 1925 to 39.9c in December 1926. Increases to the shopcrafts and the train and engine service employees were chiefly responsible for this gain. Shop wages averaged 60.8c in December 1926 with 59.4c in 1925, a gain of 1.4c.

The train and engine service average straight time hourly earnings rose from 78.2c to 79.7c, a gain of 1.5c. In the other departments increases amounted to a fraction of a cent ranging from 9 10 of a cent for yard service employees down to nothing for maintenance of way employees.

The total distributed by the railroads in wages in 1926 amounted to $2,990,215,719. According to The Wall Street Journal railroad executives expect that the wage increases which are going the rounds will raise this about 5% or nearly $150,000,000 in 1927. That is, if the railroads do not succeed in further speeding up the employees and getting along with fewer on the payroll.

Another Accident

LIBERTYVILLE, Ind., March 17.—Between 400 and 500 miners employed in Shirkey Mine No. 1, at Shirkeyville, a mile east of here, crawled to safety today through the shaft after the ropes holding the cages snapped and dropped one of them twenty feet to the bottom.

Nobody was injured. H. S. Shirkey, president of the Shirkey Coal Company announced.

The accident was caused by a defective mechanism which allowed one of the cages to hoist too high. This snapped the rope dropping one of the cages to the bottom while the safety catch caught the other one and held it half way from the bottom.

With the cages out of commission the miners' only way out through the man-way. The men filed through this shaft in orderly fashion.

Secretary Has Record Of Strict Economy

A summary of the accomplishments of last year's left wing administration of the Custom Tailors' Local 38 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, and an answer to the various untruthful and misleading charges made by the leaders of the "right," are given in a full report issued yesterday by Don Wisniewsky, the secretary-organizer.

Win Forty Hour Week

The membership of the local has been increased by 373, plus 47 applicants; the present total membership being 1391. Twenty-seven new shops were completely organized. A substantial increase in wages was gained. The 40-hour week was established; and the agreement securing these gains until September 15, 1932, contains a clause stating that should the cost of living rise, the question of increased wages shall come up for discussion.

Wisniewsky Points Out That Left Wing Administration Succeeded In Making These Gains For The Workers In Spite Of Great Handicaps, Arising From The Strike In The Trade, And From The Active Opposition Of The Reactionary Elements Within The Union.

Right Wing Hinders

"Brother Torchinsky, at the installation meeting last year," says the report, "stated that he and his friends would do their utmost to hinder our work. He has kept his promise throughout the year. There was not a solitary thing proposed by us for the welfare of the members about which they would not spread insinuations and lies of the vilest nature in order to achieve their egotistic, political and material ends. Yes, material ends I must say, because many of these obstructions happen to work in shops where they make twice the amount of money that other workers make. There are, among them, people who work four seasons a year."

Oppose Organization

These have been the ones most active in opposing the job of organizing the unorganized workers, who form a very large proportion in this trade and who are a constantly increasing menace to the unionized workers and the standards they have won.

Unorganized Women Workers Are Replacing More And More Of The Male Workers—Members Of Local 88—in The Large Fifth Avenue Shops, And Only An Aggressive Organization Campaign Can Stop This Undermining Of The Work Which Has Been Accomplished In The Past.

Lefts Will Support

If such an organization drive is taken up and vigorously carried on by the new right wing administration this next year, Wisniewsky promises the fullest cooperation on the part of the "left wing," in spite of the opposition and sabotage practised by the reactionaries during the last year.

Will Organize Anyway

But, if, on the contrary, the new administration is going to fall asleep and do no work among the unorganized workers, and the other non-union workers, Wisniewsky promises that they will not give up the fight for organization work.

"Because we realize, as workers who have to make our living in this trade, that we must not only see conditions today but we must also look into the future and therefore, desiring to secure ourselves for the future, we shall hammer away until all the members of the union come to realize that this problem is the most important and they will unite to elect an administration that will do this work."

Rigid Economy. Wisniewsky gives a set of figures calculated to answer effectively those objectors who have been howling about extraordinary and extravagant expenditures by the left wing administration. The rights have been talking constantly of the $12,000 in the treasury when the lefts took office; but they neglected to mention the $7,058 debts which were also there. The report states that:

"Today, after an organization drive and a strike—according to the auditor's report cost us $9,028—we have as assets $9,237.48 and as liabilities $9,182.57. In comparison with what there was when I entered office, there is $5,000 less now; $5,000 spent in a year of strenuous activity."

Tax Money Still Due. This financial accounting also shows that of the $5 tax levied to meet the expenses of the organization work and the strike, over $2,000 is still due.

The year's work of the left wing administration shows a gain in abolishing illegal overtime and Sunday work in many shops; a large increase in the amount collected as wages for discharges, overtime and strikes; an increase in pay, and shortening of hours for the unorganized workers, due to the effects of the organizing campaign; and a definite policy of cooperation between Local 38 and other unions such as Locals 41 and 66, and the furriers, particularly during their strike of last spring.

POLICE ARREST WORKERS; LET GANGSTERS GO

Try To Give Sigman Control Strikes Shop

The testimony of right wing gangsters was accepted, and that of left wing fur workers was rejected when four union members who refused to register with the International Fur Workers' Union were arrested after they had been attacked at Seventh Ave. and 29th St. yesterday morning.

Strike Kanik Shop

To avoid just such an attack, and as a protest against the methods of intimidation being used by the foreman and boss to force registration with the International, the workers of Kanik & Greenberg, 307 Seventh Ave., continued yesterday to refuse to return to work until the boss agreed to discontinue efforts to force the workers to register.

Voluntary Act

This was not a "stoppage" ordered by the Joint Board, as the International misstated yesterday. It was a voluntary act on the part of the workers, who last Monday elected a new chairman in this shop and pledged themselves to support the Joint Board in its fight against the reactionary officials.

State to Continue Morales Frame-up; Defense Gets Delay

CHICAGO, March 17.—When the cause of Agustin Morales, the Mexican, accused of the killing of Policeman Lyman J. Stahl at Melrose Park on Dec. 7th was again called in Judge Miller's court this morning, without subpoenas, the prosecution was very eager to try the case at once.

NEEDLE TRADES UNITY COMMITTEE INITIATES ORGANIZING CAMPAIGN

The Unity Committee, whose formation marks the first step toward the amalgamation of the needle trades, issued yesterday its first official statement of plans for its campaign against the reactionary bureaucrats of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and the International Fur Workers' Union.

Organized by the New York Joint Boards of the furriers and the cloak and dressmakers, this committee will direct the joint activities of these two progressive groups and defend the interests of the workers against the exploiting tactics of both employers and traitorous officials.

"Gangsterism, graft and betrayal have been rampant in both unions under the right wing leadership," says the committee; "and the result has been the demoralization and discouragement of the needle workers. The employers in the needle industries have taken full advantage of this sad state of affairs to foist upon the needle workers more cruel schemes of exploitation, and have even tried to bring back the hateful sweatshop system."

Rally Against Corruption

The committee calls upon all organized labor to support its fight against corruption, gangsterism and treacherous officialdom; and to rally round the committee in its fight for the defense and preservation of the unions.

The Unity Committee is the official body "which will lead the struggle against the union breakers."

The Unity Committee stands for the united action of the two Joint Boards. The Unity Committee stands for the complete amalgamation of the needle trade unions. The formation of this committee, marks the first step toward the realization of the dream of all progressive workers. The amalgamation of all unions into powerful instruments of struggle for the betterment of the workers' conditions.

The Unity Committee will centralize and mobilize all the forces of both unions for the defense of the workers against the gangsters employed by the officers of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and the International Fur Workers' Union.

Will Free Prisoners.

The Unity Committee will make it possible to defend the workers in their shops and maintain their union conditions.

"The Unity Committee will conduct a struggle against the corrupt officials to a victorious conclusion."

In behalf of the Joint Board of the Cloak and Dressmakers' Unions and the Joint Board of the Furriers' Union the Unity Committee appeals to the workers to help, morally and financially, to free the active workers who were imprisoned due to the betrayal and frame-up by the treacherous International officials. We appeal to the workers to pay their dues to the Joint Board.

Two Unions Together.

In this effective way, the Joint Boards of the two powerful unions will unite their "organizational strength and resources in order to combat their common enemy which seeks to deliver the unions to the employers."

The left wing representatives, chosen by the workers, will in this way continue to fight militantly, as they have in the past, for the interests of the needle trades workers. The fighting spirit of the workers is undaunted by the treachery of the international officials. The workers are only more determined than ever to rid themselves of the old type of bureaucrats.

Start Weekly Paper.

A weekly paper for fur workers, cloak and dressmakers, will be issued regularly beginning next week, so it was announced yesterday by representatives of the Unity Committee formed of delegates from the Furriers, and the Cloak and Dressmakers Joint Boards.

The decision about the paper was made at a committee meeting at which an executive sub-committee was selected to carry on the activities of the united forces of the two unions. This sub-committee consists of Louis Hyman, C. S. Zimmerman and Ben Gold, who is secretary.

The Unity Committee will hold a joint shop chairmen's meeting next Tuesday, at a hall to be announced later. Further plans will then be formulated for carrying on the joint work in the fight against the forces of treachery and reaction in the International Fur Workers' Union and the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

UNORGANIZED FOOD WORKER FACES UNDERPAY, OVERWORK, NO LUNCH TIME, AT MESSINGERS

By RUFUS P. LATH, (Worker Correspondent).

CHICAGO, March 17.—The ten and twelve hour work day is still in style in the Messingers' lunch rooms here, as I have explained several times previously. But on top of that now comes over me without pay. Perhaps that is music to the ears of the unorganized food workers, about time to get up and organize. Don't you think? I do!

$14 A Week.

While working for Messingers recently, on the night shift, working as both porter and dishwasher (combination man they call it) for the same wages as the pay men get, for porter work and dishwashing ($14) per week.

The day men came in an hour late several mornings and had to work right on through until they arrived, the manager said he would fix me up for the overtime pay. Pay day came, but no overtime pay. When I asked the manager about the overtime, he said he was forbidden by the office to pay overtime. By this rule they can save a lot of money for the bosses.

SWEAR BRIDE WAS OFFERED TO PASS JERSEY BLUE LAW

Say $150,000 Raised To Hire Assemblymen

TRENTON, N. J., March 17.—The first meeting of the committee appointed this afternoon by the house to investigate rumors that a member of the assembly had been offered $5,000 to vote in favor of the Sunday blue law bill passed last Monday after its defeat at the week before, was held this evening.

Four witnesses, members of the assembly and newspapermen, were heard, at which the meeting was adjourned until next Monday.

Assemblyman Day took the stand and described a conversation in a locker room in which Assemblyman Hunt of Ocean had told him he had heard another assemblyman tell of being offered a $5,000 bribe. Later also told of a conversation which occurred at dinner at a hotel at which were Assemblymen Jones, of Essex, Assemblyman Hunt, and himself.

He said Hunt told him at that time he had heard of $150,000 being raised in Essex county to pass the bill. Other witnesses were called next Monday.

Darrow Debates College President on Death Law

BOSTON, March 17.—Clarence Darrow, celebrated lawyer, arriving today to debate tonight with President Clifton D. Gray of Bates College, told interviewers:

That capital punishment does not prevent crime;

That he often thought of leading a movement to free Jessy Pomeroy, famous Massachusetts "fer", as suggested by a wealthy Chicagoan.

That except for an excess of crime due to prohibition, crime is now normal in the United States.

That Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb are model prisoners.

Ask $50,000 For New York Transit Trapping Publicity Organization

ALBANY, March 17.—Much support is being given to the bill introduced in the legislature by Assemblyman Graves of St. Lawrence calling for the establishment of a publicity bureau, entitled to an annual appropriation of $50,000.

The bill's purpose is to call for the creation of a bureau of the state conservation department whose duty it will be to call the attention of tourists to the "charms and advantages of New York State," and also "facts as to the state's admirable highway system, its beautiful lake region and its mountains."

Ohio Operator Held Boiled.

CLEVELAND, O., March 17.—At the end of their conference here today, directors of the Ohio coal operators' association stood pat in their decision to close their coal mines April 1, next, unless the miners will meet them and discuss a proposed wage scale lower than the Jacksonville agreement which expires March 31, next.

Positive refusal to discuss the Jacksonville wage scale, its equivalent, with the miners was reiterated by the coal operators.

Charges Filed.

Antonio Valenzuela, of 307 East 63rd St., Manhattan, yesterday changed his plea of not guilty to guilty shortly after assumption of his trial before County Judge Nathan S. Turk in Queens County Court, Long Island City. Valenzuela went on trial Monday on charges of robbery, assault and grand larceny.

The Chinese Workers Avenge Their Murdered Comrades

The Chinese nationalist liberation movement not only knows what it wants but how to get it. This much can be gleaned from even the prejudiced dispatches in the capitalist press.

Not the least amusing feature of recent dispatches is the emphasis placed by the correspondents on the "terror" campaign alleged to have been launched by agents of the People's government in Shanghai.

Before dealing with veracity of such statements we should review the occurrences of the last two weeks. It was only a short time ago that the same correspondents who now pen shocked phrases about "strong-arm" methods were writing gleefully of the execution without trial of hundreds of Shanghai workers and students.

Now the tables are turned. It is entirely probable, and certainly there is no reason for any worker to regret it if true, that the People's government has passed sentence of death upon certain persons whom it has cause to believe were responsible for the murders of workers and students during the recent massacres.

The Chinese people are fighting for liberation and we see no reason to get excited over the fact that tools of the war lords and imperialists are being bumped off in Shanghai.

It would be a shameful thing if the workers, peasants and students did not wipe out the tools of the bloody tyrants who tried to drown their movement in blood.

In the meantime, the People's armies are advancing on Nanking, the clash between Chang Tso Lin, the Mukden war lord, and Wu Pei Fu, who apparently has some agreement with the People's government—or may be merely defending his own dunghill from Chang Tso Lin—is becoming more open, the railroad workers are striking and interfering with the advance of what is left of Chang Tsung Chang's troops, and the workers in Shanghai are preparing a welcome for the People's armies.

It is a foregone conclusion that without armed intervention the consolidation of China under the People's government is a matter of months. The certainty of this victory is precisely the reason why the demand of "Hands Off China" should not be allowed to die down but expressed in action that will force withdrawal of all foreign troops and warships from China, allowing the Chinese masses to reap the full fruits of their long, bloody and heroic struggle.

The Coolidge-Kellogg Collection of Colonial Traitors

There is cold comfort for the Coolidge administration in the recent Latin-American news.

The forces of Kellogg's pet, Diaz, have been given a workmanlike drubbing by the popular army at Muymuy in spite of the "neutralization" of sections of liberal territory by U. S. marines which left the popular army just about enough land to stand on.

Loud predictions came from Diaz headquarters before the battle to the effect that the popular army was doomed but Diaz seems to be the one over whom doom is hovering.

In Cuba, the murderous regime of Machado, tool of the National City Bank, has slaughtered trade union leaders and members until their blood has attracted even the attention of Chester Wright.

In Haiti, the populace took advantage of the fact that the American marines were looking for Senator King to demonstrate in a most convincing manner their hatred and contempt for President Borno and Secretary Kellogg.

Things are not turning out very well in Mexico either and the state department has had to resurrect de la Huerta who in turn revives the "red menace" bogey for the edification of newspaper correspondents who did not believe the story of this moving tale when it was first put out with the backing of the state department.

Coolidge and Kellogg have what amounts to genius for picking out the lowest form of vermin for support of their policies. Diaz of Nicaragua would probably be scorned by department of justice agents but de la Huerta would be blackballed by a meeting of volunteer stool pigeons like the four-minute men of the war period.

He tries to betray his countrymen before the whole world by telegraphing Coolidge among other things:

"I hope that President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg will not allow themselves to be deceived by the trickery of Calles."

This great patriot is now in California organizing a counter-revolution which, rumor has it, is to be financed by Doheny—another sterling citizen caught with the goods.

If the leadership of the American Federation was not tied hand and foot to the political parties of American imperialism it could and would start a barrage against the Wall Street-Coolidge administration and its collection of colonial traitors which would give new hope and power to the labor movements of the Latin-American countries—the backbone of the anti-imperialist agitation.

Failing to secure co-operation from above the American workers can and should raise in their local unions, fraternal and co-operative societies the demand for the resignation of Kellogg and the withdrawal of all troops and battleships from Latin-America.

By ANTHONY BIMBA.

"THE Proletarian," an organ of the "Proletarian Party of America," which party is composed of our "friends" Keracher and a few other up-side down "Marxians," in its February issue reprinted my article "Do We Believe in Parliamentary Action?" from The DAILY WORKER of January 6, 1927, with the following introductory note: "The following article bears out what the Proletarian Party has many times charged, namely, that most of the alleged activities of the Workers Party are bombast and bluff."

My article dealt with certain shortcomings in our electoral campaigns and the lack of proper estimation of the value of these campaigns for the revolutionary agitation and propaganda on the part of some of our comrades. My only aim was to arouse the interest among our comrades in these campaigns and to stir them up to more intensive action in our future parliamentary work. Now our "proletarian" opponents are using this article in their attack upon our party and its activities by alleging that we only talk a lot, but actually do very little. The aim of these people is to discredit the Communist in the eyes of the workers. Of course, they cannot succeed. If they cannot produce any other arguments against our movement and are only attempting to use our own self-criticism, it shows that, first, they are politically bankrupt, and second, that we are on the right road.

C. E. Ruthenberg---The Comrade and the Man

By P. P.

It was in Cleveland, back in 1908, nearly two decades ago, that I first met Comrade Ruthenberg. I remember that it was at an open air meeting of which I was to be the chairman. I was only a youngster then, inexperienced and new to the movement, and I was rather timid and hesitant about getting up on the box and starting things off. Some of the other comrades were advising me as to how to begin, when a tall, youthful man, carrying a package of literature under his arm, arrived.

"Here is Comrade Ruthenberg, the speaker for to-night," one of the comrades whispered to me. A moment later we were introduced. I remember distinctly being impressed by the size of the man, by the deliberate, careful, wording of his speech, his strong, unusual features, his calm and poise. I told him that I was to be the chairman of the meeting, that it was my first attempt at street corner speaking and that I felt a little wobbly about starting off. Comrade Ruthenberg smiled sympathetically when I told him this.

Gave Him Confidence. "There is nothing to be afraid of, comrade," he said. "Just get up and start to speak. You won't find it difficult at all once you get started."

Thus encouraged, I got up on the box and started off. Comrade Ruthenberg standing beside me and whispering encouragement and suggestions. I held out for about 15 minutes, then introduced the speaker of the evening. For over two hours, Comrade Ruthenberg spoke, and throughout a large crowd of workers stood and listened.

This was how I met Comrade Ruthenberg. During the next few years, I had an opportunity to work with him as a member of the City Central Committee of the Socialist Party of Cleveland. Already at that time, some of the old German they cannot produce any other arguments against our movement and are only attempting to use our own self-criticism, it shows that, first, they are politically bankrupt, and second, that we are on the right road. Nevertheless, I read my article once more, having in mind the fact that there must be something lacking in it, if our opponents are attempting to exploit it for their own purposes. And I found that this article of mine makes a one-sided impression about our movement. It deals only with the shortcomings, but it does not take into consideration the circumstances in which at least some of these shortcomings are inevitable.

Let us take, for instance, the same election campaign in New York City about which I spoke in my article. Our comrades were very active at that time in three very important strikes: the Interborough Rapid Transit, the cloakmakers and the textile workers of Passaic. All active comrades were mobilized to help the workers win their battle with their enemies. Some of our best speakers were directly involved in these strikes. Others were taken away by the national organization to tour the country with speeches and lectures. Naturally, in such circumstances the New York party organi-

Textile Workers of Passaic Promise to Fight for Communism

PASSAIC, N. J., March 17. — The Ruthenberg Memorial meeting held here at The Workers' Home, 27 Dayton Ave., adopted the following resolution: "We, hundreds of workers of Passaic, N. J., assembled at a memorial meeting held March 13, at the Workers' Home, 27 Dayton Ave., express our greatest grief over the death of Comrade C. E. Ruthenberg, general secretary of the Workers' (Communist) Party of America."

The year long textile strike, we just went through, taught us the correctness of Comrade Ruthenberg's teaching. The brutalities of state power against the strikers, the help of the Workers' (Communist) Party in our struggle shows us that the only right road to follow is that of the party of the working class. We pledge ourselves to fight, to continue to fight for the working class Comrade Ruthenberg gave his life for. Unanimously accepted.

comrades on the committee used to say: "Some day, Comrade Ruthenberg will come back to be a leader of the party."

No one in the City Central Committee took the party work so seriously, no one was as energetic, no one brought forward so many practical plans for work, as Comrade Ruthenberg. Whereas some of the old Germans and Hungarians on the committee wanted to have more study classes and more lectures, Comrade Ruthenberg always insistzed on more mass meetings with the workers, more outside activity. Rebelled Against Reformism. I can see that even at that early time, Comrade Ruthenberg was unconsciously rebelling against the reformism and passivism that was beginning to rot the Socialist Party. Little did I dream at that time, how fully would be realized the prediction of the German comrades on the Cleveland City Central Committee, that C. E. Ruthenberg would some day be a leader. From the time that I first met Comrade Ruthenberg at that street corner meeting nearly twenty years ago, I have closely followed his activities as a revolutionist. From year to year, thru imprisonments and struggles I have seen him grow politically, and develop his powers of leadership. I feel sure that had not death taken him prematurely from the revolutionary movement, he would have continued to grow and develop, to give it more firm and far-sighted leadership. Comrade Ruthenberg, in my opinion, embodied the best traditions of the American revolutionary movement. He Was Not At. Personally, I cannot say of Comrade Ruthenberg, that while he generally gave the impression of being dignified and unassuming, yet he was exceedingly democratic, modest and considerate. I have never known him to slight or hurt anybody. His qualities as a man, endeared him to all comrades who knew him personally. At all times, his individuality was submerged in the work to which he devoted his life. Up to the very last moments of his consciousness, when the peritonitis poisoning was seeping into his heart, stilling its beat, his thoughts were of the party and the tasks before it. His final words: "Let us Fight on," epitomize the indomitable revolutionary spirit that was Comrade Ruthenberg's.

Four Ruthenberg Memorials Tonight

RUTHENBERG memorial meetings will be held in four cities to-night. Workers will gather in Brooklyn, N. Y., Newark, N. J., Canton, Ohio, and Birmingham, N. Y., to pay final tribute to Comrade C. E. Ruthenberg, founder of the Communist Party of America, who recently died.

The Brooklyn meeting will be held at the Royal Palace, 16 Manhattan Ave., near Broadway, 8 p. m. and will be addressed by J. Louis Engdahl, Editor of the DAILY WORKER, William W. Weinstein, General Secretary, Workers' (Communist) Party, New York District; Rebecca Grecht, Ray Ragozin, L. Pruserka and Ben Lifshitz. The Lithuanian Chorus will sing "Aida."

The Canton, Ohio, meeting will be held at the Musical Hall, 810 Tuscarawas St. and the Newark, N. J., meeting at Montgomery Hall. On Sunday, March 20, Warren, Ohio, workers will gather at the Hippodrome Hall, while the toilers of Washington, D. C., will hold their memorial meeting Monday, March 21, at the Typographical Temple.

The other meetings arranged are as follows: Jamestown, N. Y., March 19th. Ithaca, N. Y., March 19th. Niagara Falls, N. Y., March 20th.

SHOEMAKER, OF PROGRESSIVE FARMERS SENDS SINCERE REGRETS OVER DEATH OF RUTHENBERG

F. H. Shoemaker, travelling member of the National Council of Action of the Progressive Farmers of America, writes The DAILY WORKER from Phoenix, Arizona, as follows:

"It was with extreme sorrow that I learned on this date of the untimely death of Comrade Ruthenberg. I call him Comrade, not because I am a member of your party, but because in my humbleness it has been my aim to emulate his high state of consistency. "The cause of honesty, justice and righteousness suffers a great loss, and at a time when his efforts were most needed, in the untimely death of our Comrade. "History and time only will record the valiant efforts made by this great fighter. Posterity will record indelibly upon the stones of time, his undying loyalty to the cause he lived and died for, his honesty that drove to cover falsehood, his energy that inspired thousands, his personality that built confidence and friendship, and last but not least the principles that he so consistently fought for. "May the loss of our comrade inspire us with a deeper sense to our responsibility in the fight against capitalism and imperialism, and may providence grant that we may see the realization of his dying wish."

DORCHESTER, MASS. — "The Mothers' League Council of New England mourns the loss of our devoted leader and comrade, C. E. Ruthenberg, secretary of the Workers Party of America who inspired the working class women to take their place in the trouble side by side with the working men for liberation of the exploited masses."

Young Workers League, Syracuse, N. Y. — "The Workers Party and Young Workers League of Syracuse send deepest regret for death of Comrade Ruthenberg."

Pioneers of Hammond Will Hold Ruthenberg Memorial Meet Monday

EAST HAMMOND, Ind., March 17. — The East Hammond Group of the Young Pioneers of America will hold a Ruthenberg Memorial meeting Monday, March 21, at the Workers Hall, 1061 Wallace Road, Hammond Ind. All workers and children are invited to attend the meeting and hear about the life and struggles that Comrade Ruthenberg carried on on behalf of the working class. Chicago speakers will be present. Admission will be free.

Minn. Young Workers. Young Workers League, Minneapolis, Minn. — "Sub-district Committee, Young Workers League, Minneapolis, express great sorrow in the death of our leader, Comrade Ruthenberg. Loss of Comrade Ruthenberg will be felt not only in the Party, but also in the League. We hope his death will be used for recruiting workers into Young Workers (Communist) League and Workers (Communist) Party."

South Slav Faction, Yorkville, Ohio. — "Yorkville, Ohio, Youth Slav workers in a mass meeting grieve the great loss of our fighter and beloved leader, Ruthenberg."

Ceka Left Faction, New York City. — "We express our deep grief over the early loss of Comrade Ruthenberg, the ceaseless fighter for the cause of the American workers."

Workmen's Circle, Beach 736, Chelsea, Mass. — "With the rest of the working class we regret the sudden death of Comrade Ruthenberg."

Jewish Freiheit Arbeiter Club, Milwaukee, Wis. — "We express our sorrow in the death of Comrade Ruthenberg."

Revamping an Old Warhorse

"Justice," Long-Winded Galsworthy Play, Produced at Irving Place Theatre

(Reviewed by A. B. MAGIL.) At the Irving Place Jewish Art Theatre Jacob Ben-Ami is rattling the bones of Galsworthy's "Justice," freshly exhumed and dressed in stiff, creaky Yiddish.

I emerged from the theatre feeling as if my head was full of cobwebs. It is several years since I last saw or read a Galsworthy play. I wasn't prepared for such a smell of camphor.

I don't know why Jacob Ben-Ami has trotted out this fussy, spavined old war-horse. I suppose he feels it will have some attraction for the theatre-goer who is interested in "problems." For here is a problem as thick as fog, as tough and dry as hard-tack. And it squats all over the stage.

At a certain point in his career John Galsworthy, the bourgeois British liberal with a sociological bee in his bonnet, discovered that there is sometimes a monkey-wrench in the elaborate machinery of justice. In moments of weakness, goaded by certain social maladjustments, honest human beings may yield to temptation, may commit a felony. The law is precise and pedantic. It considers neither a person's past nor his future. Inexorable justice.

Look what happens, says Galsworthy. Terrible!

It is so easy to poke fun at John Galsworthy, yet so cruel perhaps. The fellow is so desperately in earnest, so humorlessly honest. Sitting through a performance of "Justice" is like listening to an Oswald Garrison Villard editorial for several hours.

Galsworthy is a good craftsman, a dramatic artisan of the first order. Given certain crude, commonplace materials, he will labor over it, saw off a piece here, nail down a piece there, and put together a play that will stand up for a couple of hours and glitter with all its 100-watt electric lights.

That's about all, I suppose it accounts for Galsworthy's exaggerated reputation as a dramatist. His plays are always "good theatre," though poor drama. But I can account for

MAURICE SCHWARTZ

Galsworthy's reputation as a social seer only by saying that there must be a large and carefully preserved meadow in the minds of the fashionable British and American intelligentsia. "Justice" is the reformism of Dickens minus the humor, freshness and ingenuity of the great Victorian. It is polite, it is grave, it is stiffly eloquent. There is nothing in it to offend the most hardboiled tort. Galsworthy merely criticizes a defect in a piece of machinery. He never questions the nature or uses of that machinery or the foundations upon which it rests.

As the last act drew to its close, my friend turned to me and said: "He leaves nothing to the imagination." No, nothing. Every point is hammered home relentlessly. The "dull and creeping Saxon" is manifest in every line. A "message" got stuck in Galsworthy's throat and he had to get it out. Old, obvious, threadbare stuff. Pick up almost any issue of The Nation or The New York World and you'll find it all done very elegantly. I know half a dozen persons in the Bronx who are saying the same things and nobody pays any attention to them.

The play is excellently produced by a competent cast. And Jacob Ben-Ami in the leading role does superb work. He actually achieves the miracle of creation that Galsworthy failed to do.

COMMUNIST TRAINING CAMPS. With the first blush of spring the cry is "Let's go!" On every hand brilliant posters lure our youth to the glories of the capitalist military training camps. From the president to the smallest employer there is a united front in praise for these cannon fodder factories. Every postage stamp is made the automatic carrier of jingo propaganda. To us the coming of spring marks an opportunity of quite a different character—one which the live wires in our movement will seize upon with the greatest zest. The milder weather offers us the opportunity to reach out to new sections of the working class whom we have never reached before.

The Communist Training Camps which we propose to establish consist of squads of active comrades who will use this season of the year to invade the territory of large scale industry. It does not matter to us what type of equipment you use, whether it is a bicycle, an old Ford, or just foot power and a soap box. What we want to see in each district is the organization of a squad of active field agents who will go out and organize outdoor meetings at factory gates at noon hour, make a rattling speech on some current issue or on conditions in the factory or the industry and then use the occasion to sell THE DAILY WORKER and Party literature, and get subs.

Expeditions of this kind can be made to pay for THE DAILY WORKER as well as for the comrades undertaking the work. Traveling agents can earn their expenses by making profit on literature sold and commissions on subscriptions obtained.

Those who are yearning for adventure, and those who want to "See the World" are promised plenty of experience. Pass the word along, "Let's go!"—BERT MILLER.

FILIPINO CAUSE LINKED UP WITH CHINESE VICTORY

Leader Says Revolution Is Hope of Oppressed

By LAURENCE TODD, (Federated Press).

WASHINGTON, March 17 (FP).—Freedom for the Philippines, and conversion of Japan from an imperialistic to a democratic force in the Orient, depends upon the success of the Nationalist revolutionary movement in China, says Pedro Guevara, one of the two resident commissioners of the Philippines in congress.

"This Chinese Nationalist movement has strengthened the nationalistic sentiment in the Philippines," Guevara told the Federated Press, because of the policy adopted by the western powers in China. The instinct of self-preservation of the Filipino people convinces them that now more than ever nationalism must be developed in the islands. They have no hope at all to be treated by the western powers on a basis of equality and justice.

Strengthened Nationalism.

"What we say about the western powers applies also to the United States in her relations with the Philippines and in fact the legislation presented to congress and discussed in the committee on insular affairs with reference to the Philippines has strengthened the nationalistic sentiment in the islands. The Filipino people believed with good reason that this proposed legislation in the recent session constituted the initial steps toward adoption by the United States of the policy of the western powers as applied to China, India, Java, Singapore and Indo-China.

Blow To Imperialism.

"We feel that the triumph of the Chinese Nationalist movement in the present Chinese civil strife will mean the downfall of the imperialistic policy of Japan. No longer a factor for imperialism, Japan will then become a factor for democracy in the Far East. A democratic Japan could be no menace to the independence of the Philippines—a point of the highest importance to us in overcoming the fears of Americans who now oppose our independence.

"But a defeat for the Chinese Nationalist movement will mean the triumph of imperialism in Japan. That country will be encouraged to develop an imperialistic policy in competition with the western powers.

"So the future of the Far East—not merely China but Japan and the Philippines—will be profoundly affected by the triumph of the Chinese Nationalists."

The measures discussed in the recent congress that were hostile to Filipino hopes of independence were the bills offered by administration members to increase the power of Gov. Wood and to reduce the authority of the Philippine legislature. None of them passed, but they had the full support of President Coolidge and Speaker Longworth.

Speech by Manuel Gomez TO THE BRUSSELS ANTI-IMPERIALIST CONGRESS

Manuel Gomez represented the United States Section of the All-America Anti-Imperialist League at the Brussels Congress of Oppressed Colonial Peoples and Anti-Imperialists. His speech is an analysis of the present financial imperialism of Wall Street, and shows its roots in the exploitation of American and foreign workers.

PART I.—THE AMERICAN EMPIRE.

Comrades of all nations and races:

Coming from the land of the dollar, and of dollar diplomacy, I present to you the American dollar empire as the common problem of all of us, because it is an empire which takes tribute from the whole world.

This newest imperialism of the United States speaks its own peculiar language, the language of democratic-pacifism, if you please. It is "the friend of China." In contradiction to the British, Japanese and other vulgar imperialists, its policy in China is the "Open Door," "equal opportunity for all."

But my Chinese friends, I want you to bear in mind that our Uncle Sam, who can talk so eloquently on behalf of the "Open Door in China," insists upon a closed door—closed, locked and bolted—in Latin America, whose territory the Monroe Doctrine treats as a special preserve of U. S. finance-capital. The democratic-pacifist method represents only one phase of American imperialist policy. It is inevitably succeeded by the phase of open, brutal aggression, such as the entire Caribbean and Central American populations of the Western Hemisphere are already familiar with.

Modern imperialism has been described here as imperialist capitalism—the present, final stage of that capitalism which now exploits whole populations abroad as well as millions of workers at home. Nowhere is this more obvious than in the United States. Some of you are familiar with the accompanying progressive development of expansionist foreign policy. Concentration and centralization of industry led to monopoly, which means that all the economic—and therefore political—power of the nation was concentrated in the hands of a small group of plutocrats centered in Wall Street.

In 1901 the United States Steel Corporation came into existence, bringing together the most powerful financial groups, such as the hitherto warring Rockefeller and Morgan interests.

At the same time that these developments were taking place the United States made its appearance upon the world imperialist stage. The Spanish-American War, entered into with the characteristic innocent declarations of humanitarian purposes, was the initial move in a foreign policy which continues its consistent march to this day. Conquest of Cuba, Porto Rico served as the stepping stones from which American imperialism proceeded to Panama, Haiti and Santo Domingo, Central America—until the whole Caribbean area becomes "an American lake." In the Far East, Guam and the Philippine Islands are the spearhead of U. S. imperialist policy with regard to Asia.

Developments during and since the World War brought the United States into the very front rank of imperialist powers. Industrial capacity was tremendously increased. Wall Street succeeded the City of London as the dominant center of world finance. The United States passed from a debtor to a creditor nation, with huge interests in Europe as well as in Latin America and Asia. Before the war the total foreign investments of American capitalism did not reach

$2,500,000,000. Now the amount exceeds $13,000,000,000.

To the lines of imperialist policy represented by the Monroe Doctrine and the "Open Door," was added that of the Dawes Plan. Reaching full consciousness at last, American imperialism became everywhere aggressive. From the four corners of the earth, the super-profits of imperialism began to pour into the United States.

On the basis of the American dollar empire—which, as all Latin Americans know, is cemented not merely by dollars but also by the flesh and blood of human beings slain and tortured—the so-called American standard of living is maintained in the United States.

Even the American working class shares to a certain extent in the profits of imperialism, and as a result is permeated with social-patriotic and imperialist ideology. I speak particularly of the skilled workers and, in general, of the dominant elements making up a large body of the membership of the American Federation of Labor. Recent economic developments in the United States furnishes no more striking phenomenon than the rapid growth of "business unionism" and what, for want of a better term, we call class collaboration.

Without going into detail regarding the rapidly multiplying forms of "class collaboration," I need merely cite labor banking, labor insurance schemes, "company unionism" and the tendencies toward applying "company union" principles through the bona fide trade unions. Outstanding examples of the latter are the so-called "B. & O. Plan" and the machinery established under the recently adopted Watson-Parker Law.

So satisfactory have they been to American capitalism that some of these forms are being transplanted to Europe, as part of the program of "rationalization." Thus we hear that Europe is adopting "class collaboration" from America. We should not forget, however, those features which existed in Germany, for instance, long before the World War, and to which the name of "state socialism" was sometimes given.

"Class collaboration" is no new thing in Europe. It is as old as reformism!

It was not accidental that the reformist leaders of the Second International turned a deaf ear to the appeals of the colonial and semi-colonial peoples for national liberation. And it is not accidental either that the ruling bureaucracy of the American Federation of Labor is a "loyal supporter" of the U. S. State Department in foreign affairs. Criticism of imperialist policy is limited to inessentials, to isolated outrages, to "excesses."

It is suggested that the state department has been invaded here, that it has been subject to undue influence there. Such criticisms—which are similar to those sometimes indulged in by middle class "liberals" and pacifists—perform a real service to imperialism, because they make it seem that there is nothing fundamentally wrong.

and so, this snake would suddenly grow to five times his original size and swallow all the rest. And after wrapping himself around his fellows he would cast longing eyes on the bruds. The saint had easy sailing after this. It is true that a few diehards here and there clung to the old system for a while, but St. Patrick finally convinced them that they could have anything they wanted from him as long as they did not make any trouble. He was a good politician.

ST. PATRICK informed the Irish people of that time that there was nothing entirely new under the sun. A spiritual revolution had taken place in Ireland—that was all. Whereas formerly the people worshipped rivers and trees, the sun and the moon, from now on they would worship a god who never came into undignified contact with his followers. After all, gods must insist that their followers do not get too familiar. Anybody could go and scratch his back against a fir tree and pretend that he was looking for spiritual satisfaction instead of physical relief. Here was a god that kept his distance and expected his followers to do the same. Furthermore on the ground of economy the new system was superior to the old.

TREES might be destroyed by fire or blown from their roots by the wind. Rivers might go dry, the sun might be eclipsed by a cloud, likewise the moon. This would cause the people to worry about the fate of their gods and the druids would be compelled to rise from their festive boards and sober up sufficiently to explain the phenomenon to their followers. Under the new dispensation there was no need for explanations since it was a sin meriting eternal damnation to ask the priest questions, once christianity was accepted.

SO we are for St. Patrick. Long S may he thrive. Furthermore he may have been a revolutionist for all we know. Revolutions have a habit of happening in March. Spring is an intoxicating season and the people have a tendency to develop a fever for toppling things over when the trees begin to sprout and the birds begin to twitter in the fields. Here is a good idea. Let us prove that Patrick was either a revolutionist or the predecessor of the great magician Houdini. We are bound to win either way. Tammany Hall would never allow the 68th regiment to march in honor of a dead radical and it is not reasonable to expect that Tammany would care to play second fiddle to a man who was sufficiently well up in magic to be capable of stealing an election without having to resort to the crude device of stuffing the ballot boxes.

Won't Have to Disarm.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The United States has assured France and Italy that they may come into President Coolidge's proposed naval disarmament conference without risk of weakening their sea power, the State Department announced today.

These assurances were contained in new invitations to the two powers to reconsider their recent flat rejection of the proposed Coolidge parley. Copies of these invitations, quite similar, were made public today.

FEDERATION OF LABOR, COLOMBIA JOINS THE R.I.L.U.

Latin-Americans Are Greeted by R. I. L. U.

BOGOTA, Columbia (By Mail).—The Sindicato Central Obrero De Colombia (Central Federation of Workers of Colombia) announced receipt of a communication from the Red International of Trade Unions according to the request of the Colombian labor movement for admittance into the ranks of the R. I. L. U.

The letter of the S. C. O. D. C. requesting affiliation addressed to "Comrades, members of the R. I. L. U., Moscow," reads: "Greetings of the International Social Revolution!"

"I am very glad to send you our greetings and to inform you that the Sindicato Central Obrero de Colombia (Central Federation of Workers of Colombia) which 12 years ago laid the foundation in our country of a workers' trade union movement, purely socialistic in character, has lately radically changed its programme with the aim of directing its chief activities to fight for the abolition by means of the dictatorship of the proletariat of the division of humanity into classes.

Request Admittance.

"Taking its stand on this point of view, the Sindicato Central Obrero de Colombia at its recent congress unanimously decided to send greetings to your Red International of Trade Unions and to request to be admitted in the ranks of the latter."

"We are writing the present letter to inform you of the foregoing resolution and to ask you to give us the necessary instructions so that the Sindicato Central Obrero de Colombia can consider itself accepted in your international.

"In anticipation of the decision of the R. I. L. U. we send you our greetings."

In reply to the above the Profintern (R. I. L. U.) sent the following letter:

"Your letter of the 25th of September 1926 was discussed by the Executive Bureau of the Red International of Labor Unions at their meeting of the 25th of January.

Accepts Affiliation.

"The Executive Bureau of the R. I. L. U. decided to accept your affiliation, and through you send their heartiest greetings to the working class of Colombia. The Executive Bureau of the R. I. L. U. is very glad, indeed, to set up fraternal relations with the workers of your country, which finds itself continually threatened by the covetous and plundering imperialism of the United States.

The events now developing in your continent herald the seizure contemplated by the United States bourgeoisie, not only of the central part of America, but of the whole of South America in the very near future. United States imperialism having enriched itself on the war now discards all democratic forms, and not only endeavors by force to dominate the whole of America, but to seize control of the politics of the world. With such a situation facing us the union of the workers of America, Europe and Asia, including the proletariat of U. S. S. R. and China, is especially necessary.

"The Executive Bureau of the Red International of Labor Unions greets your entrance into the family of the revolutionary trade union movement, and from this time onwards hopes that connections with the labor movement of your country and the workers' movements of other countries will remain firm and constant.

"The Executive Bureau hopes to meet your representative at the next—the 14th—world congress of the R. I. L. U. On date of its convening we shall inform you separately."

With fraternal greetings, General Secretary R. I. L. U.

Comrades and Fellow Workers:

After a year's heroic struggle of the Passaic textile workers, the mill barons were forced to submit to a union in the textile industry of Passaic. They are however putting obstacles in the way of maintaining such an organization. Although the strike is almost over, they are taking the workers back very slowly, with the result that thousands of families are without means of existence. Their children are hungry.

There are many families whose sole supporters were sent to jail for long periods because of their activities in the strike. You must come to their rescue. Relief must go on with full speed!

The General Relief Committee, who is maintaining a few food stores in Passaic, appeals to all those who have taken milk coupons to send in their money as soon as possible, no matter how much you have collected. Send the money immediately to the General Relief Committee, 799 Broadway, Room 225, also ask for more coupons to sell.

The office is open from 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. daily. GENERAL RELIEF COMMITTEE

Peace Union, Jingoism, Quarrel Over Meaning Of Term 'Americanism'

A conference of the national commanders of the Grand Army of the Republic, the United Spanish War Veterans, the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Disabled American Veterans, decided upon a definition for Americanism, as follows: "Americanism is an unflinching love of country; loyalty to its institutions and ideas; eagerness to defend it against all enemies; undivided allegiance to the flag and a desire to secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and posterity."

The Women's Peace Union immediately wrote another, reading: "Americanism is the love and true love of and loyalty to the belief, that the people of the United States, as individual citizens, are free and equal and that the Government of the United States, established by the people to exercise the powers delegated by them, in order to secure the blessings of liberty to themselves and their posterity."

So there's going to be a war over Americanism between the soldiers and the peace-lovers. Workers who bitterly resent the "American Plan" of union busting and low wages have yet to be heard from. Likewise the foreign-born, to whom "Americanism" is coming to mean finger-printing, constant spying and occasional arrest and deportation for militant union action.

Royal Marriage to Seal Italy's Ratification Of Bessarabian Treaty?

ROME, March 17.—Denial of reports of the forthcoming engagement of Crown Prince Humbert of Italy and Princess Ileana of Rumania are renewed from the Villa Savoia today. If the status of Prince Carol is settled a formal courtship may be countenanced by the Italian household.

Princess Helene, the abandoned wife of Prince Carol, is a great friend of Princess Ileana, the fiancée of Prince Humbert.

Since in these days royal matrimony is merely a part of international politics, the talk of a match between the two royal houses is taken by observers to indicate a degree of permanency to the Rumanian-Italian partnership in the Balkans, signified by ratification of the Bessarabian treaty.

New Jersey Forest Burnt.

BUTLER, N. J., March 17.—What probably was the first forest fire of the year in northern New Jersey occurred today on the slope of Sakout Mountain, five miles from Butler. The fire was discovered by a lookout of the state forestry department's fire patrol and was extinguished by volunteers from here and the surrounding country before any great damage was done. About twenty-five acres of forest was burned.

GERMAN PARTY CONGRESS ENDS AMID CHEERING

Delegates to Work for Party Concentration

ESSEN, Germany (By Mail).—The fourth session of the congress of the German Communist Party was opened on Thursday morning March 3 with the presentation of the report of the committee on credentials. The report showed 182 delegates with decisive votes and 89 with consultative votes.

Comrade Koetter then declared: "The differences between the imperialist powers are being intensified from day to day. It is not possible to declare that in one part of the world a revolutionary situation exists and in another part a stabilization of capitalism. The Chinese revolution and the capitalistic stabilization of Great Britain are open contradictions. The opportunistic deviations criticized by Dengel are no accident, but products of the general policy of the German C. P."

Discuss Opposition.

A general discussion followed on the former opposition group of Ruth Fischer, Maslov, Scholem, Schwan and Urbahn, in which the comrades Weber, Bartels, Schlecht, Wittorf, and Thaelmann participated. The latter informed the delegates that Maslov was calling a conference of his followers at Essen and warned against taking part in it.

Comrades Pfeiffer, Mildentreit, Botcher, Briefand, Meyer, Diekmann, Ulbricht, and Haussen then discussed the problem of establishing a closer contact with left wing organizations, to follow up the gains made by the party since the X congress, and to watch the growing opposition movement inside the social democratic party.

Close of the morning session.

During the following sessions delegates from other countries were given the floor who told of the problems and advances made by their respective parties.

The congress then discussed various internal problems in the German situation, the necessity of strong opposition to the fascist propaganda in Germany and the military mobilization against the Soviet Union.

Other delegates spoke of the importance of a strong women's organization and urged greater activity to increase their influence. Representatives from the Young Spartacus League gave a detailed account of the League's work.

After again discussing the fractional struggle within the party, a demand was made for the liquidation of opposition fights between ultra lefts and rights, and to work to

Five Delegations to Pres. Coolidge Want No War For Mexican Oil Land

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Five delegations today presented Secretary of State Kellogg with petitions urging that the differences with Mexico be submitted for arbitration. They were: The Council of Jewish Women, National Y. W. C. A., The League of Women Voters, The Foreign Policy Association, and the National Council for the Prevention of War. The petition of the Foreign Policy Association bore 11,358 signatures and was presented to the secretary by George M. Lamont, of New York.

Comrade Jansen then took the floor. He brought greetings from the Communist International to the party congress and declared that the Soviet Union is accomplishing the task of industrializing their country without financial assistance from the United States. The trade between the Soviet Union and other countries is carried on on the basis of exchange which disproves Trotsky's assertion that the Soviet Union is becoming more and more depending on capitalistic countries. Russia now has a favorable trade balance, which has even been acknowledged by the economic council of the League of Nations. Comrade Jansen warned the German delegates that they must not underestimate the actual temporary industrial stabilization and its strength.

The congress adjourned on Sunday, March 6th after greetings had been sent to the Communist International and all other parties represented by delegates present. The delegates rose to sing the International, and then cheered the cause of International solidarity.

Germans Balks The British.

GENEVA, March 17.—Germany geographically, politically and economically the keystone to any Western European combination of powers against Russia, has blocked the British informal, but none the less, well-designed move here for concerted action against Soviet propaganda.

That was the chief feature of the first quarterly League of Nations' council meeting this year.

Despite all officials' denials, information coming from sources which ought to know something about it, insists that Sir Austen Chamberlain in his private talks with Herr Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister, and others, touched on the subject of a bloc against the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Ruthenberg, the Leader, Marks New Advance of the American Working Class

By J. LOUIS ENGDALH.

C. E. RUTHENBERG was the outstanding representative of the new type of revolutionary leadership that is developing in the United States. The mere fact that the American working class struggle for power could produce a Ruthenberg, and the party of Ruthenberg, the Workers (Communist) Party, is the best reply to those pessimists who refuse to admit the forward surge of the labor movement in this country.

Ruthenberg, as the founder and leader of the Workers (Communist) Party, was a product of the development of the American class war. Thus he belongs to the whole working class, out of which the Communist Party also springs.

Thus the progress of the American revolutionary movement may be judged by the type of leadership of labor in the various stages of advance achieved by the working class in this country.

Twenty years ago the Socialist Party had reached the same age, to which the Communist Party has grown at the present time.

In 1904, Eugene V. Debs had polled nearly half a million votes as the socialist candidate for president, and extraordinary prophecies were being made for the inauguration of Socialism at an early date in this country.

Thus the Socialist Party attracted to itself many peculiar elements, among them the highly advertised "millionaire socialists." The socialist party developed the referendum as one of its chief methods of reaching decisions, not only in determining policies but in selecting officials. Thus the selection of such "millionaire socialists" as J. G. Phelps Stokes, Robert Hunter and Joseph Medill Patterson for prominent positions in the Party was a fairly accurate reflection of the desires of the Party's membership at that time, expressed thru the referendum. The common saying was that socialist party leadership fell on the shoulders of the "writer and speaker," because of his coming most frequently in contact with the party's membership, but it was declared with equal truth that the capitalist press often selected socialist party leaders thru the publicity that it gave to "millionaire socialists," first, upon their entrance into the party and later because of their activities within the party.

Certainly J. G. Phelps Stokes, who joined the Socialist Party in 1906, and became a member of its national executive committee two years later in 1908, never displayed the least symptom of a qualification for leadership in what claimed to be a revolutionary organization of the working class. He turned 100 per cent pay-tri-ot with the outbreak of the world war and has since been lost in oblivion.

Robert Hunter, no doubt never a millionaire, but given the title of "millionaire socialist" by the capitalist press, graduated from social work in Chicago, London and New York, to socialist party leadership as a member of its executive committee, 1908-1912, and then disappeared. He made some contribution to the socialist literature of the time. He showed no qualifications for the political direction of the forces of labor, however, being content to fall in line with the Berger-Hillquit-Spargo leadership. One characteristic anecdote concerning Hunter told of his attending campaign meetings on New York's East Side during the heat of an electoral struggle. Great throngs were in the streets, as well as at the meetings held, which led Hunter, who lived over in less populated Connecticut to declare, "With such numbers following us, the revolution is surely near."

It was the same outlook that brought Joseph Medill Patterson, now one of the editors of The Chicago Tribune, and also editor of its weekly magazine, "Liberty," into the Socialist Party. Young Patterson, in 1905-6, was commissioner of public works in Chicago under the regime of the liberal democratic mayor, Edward F. Dunne. But he thought the social revolution was coming on, in a hurry. He quit his job in the city hall, joined the socialist party and helped start the Chicago Daily Socialist in the fall of 1906. He co-operated with Algeron M. Simons in its editorship, and for a brief space became one of the most prominent figures in the party.

But the social revolution didn't hurry, not even to accommodate young Patterson. Months measured the length of his stay in the movement. I met him in the Calumet Copper country, in northern Michigan, during the bitterly fought strike of the copper miners in the winter of 1913-14. At that time he reiterated the views I have here attributed to him. He confessed he had lost what faith he had had, if he ever had any, in the working class; pointed out with true capitalist superiority that the copper strike was a miserable mistake, and drank the wine of the mine owners at the exclusive Calumet Club. The world war made him "captain" and now his biography in "Who's Who in America" omits all mention of his connection at any time with the Socialist Party and its press.

It might be added that none of these even gave lip service to the revolution. In this they differed from Jack London, who worked with Stokes in organizing the Inter-Collegiate Socialist Society; William English Walling, and the most recent example of William Gross Lloyd. Instead they belonged peculiarly to the reformist wing of the party. They helped make up the leadership that was thus constituted with Berger, Hillquit, Spargo, Stokes, Hunter, Simons as outstanding figures. Berger and Hillquit are the lone survivors, not even being able to retain such figures as Charles Edward Russell and Allan L. Benson, who later joined the party, coming on the scene with the period starting in 1910, that brought the first socialist electoral victories of any magnitude in Milwaukee, Wis., and a few other localities. Both Russell and Benson proved the thinnest intellectual froth. Russell was a jingo from the beginning of the war. In spite of this fact he nearly became the party's candidate for president in 1916. He was replaced, however, by Benson, who held to a pacifist anti-war stand until 1918, when he quit the party "because of its attitude toward the government during the war."

That the socialist party has not changed is shown by the fact that many of these renegades are now being asked to contribute and are actually offering their contributions to a symposium on "The Problems of American Socialism" appearing in The New Leader, the party organ in New York City. The socialist party leadership has not changed. The working class has changed. It has brushed the reformist socialist leadership aside and developed as its revolutionary expression, a Communist leadership, that has won mass support in many instances and is developing it on an increasing scale. Ruthenberg was the symbol of this leadership. Its organized expression is the Workers (Communist) Party. Ruthenberg and his party both measure satisfactory progress achieved by American labor in the face of great problems and obstacles resulting from the developing class war.

"Shingle Weaving Is a Battle" IN THE BRITISH COAL MINES

(From a Worker Correspondent.)

NOTE.—Copy of a letter sent from Mansfield, England, Jan. 25, 1927.

COMRADE:—Since I saw you in London last September many great changes have taken place. You will perhaps remember meeting me at the Headquarters of the Minority Movement, London. After we had dinner and had a talk with some Russian comrades who were at another table. After that we went to the Miners' Offices in Russell Square, where we packed. You were soon to leave for America, and I for Russia with the Miners' delegation.

I was much impressed by the co-operation and now take the opportunity of telling you of conditions here.

Along with many other fighters, I am victimized, cannot get work anywhere, have been unemployed since last May 1st. I am getting no union help because we have no union funds. Unemployment benefits are stopped because we refused to take work in a new way at an old mine which is deep, wet, and hot, and a two and a half miles journey underground. Of washing the coal face it is found only two feet four inches thick. This would mean kneeling and sitting down in water. In addition, this pit starts to wind cold by 6 A. M. To do this we should have to get out of bed by 3 A. M. and leave Mansfield not later than 4 A. M. For this we were to receive 11 shillings a day (approximately $2.75) after spending 9 shillings (approximately $2.25) each week on bus fare and 15 shillings (approximately $3.75) for rent, and pits here are only working 3, and 4 days a week. You can see the impossibility of accepting such work. Because we refused such a rotten offer, all benefits ceased.

I have been in the habit of going to the colliery at which I worked prior to the stoppage, to collect money for victimized miners. To get there I had to go on the miners' train. To put a stop to my collecting and thereby increase my hardships, the coal-owners wired to the station master telling him not to book me on the miners' train. This is victimization de luxe.

To make matters worse for us here, 60% of the county miners' organization officials has gone over to the coal-owners and negotiated a separate agreement, which was accepted, and forced on our exhausted comrades. This was followed up by forming a company union with this reactionary social-democrat as leader. Spencer is his name. As a consequence, the Nottinghamshire Miners' Association which has been established and recognized for years by the bosses, is now refused any recognition whatever. But I am pleased to say that in spite of all the propaganda and bribes, the men refuse to join this new union. Spencer is having a rough time wherever he goes. The miners in Nottingham will not accept Spencerism.

I am sorry to say that just at a time when I am most needed in the district to combat the growth of reaction, I shall be compelled to leave the district through lack of financial assistance. On leaving, all my Trade Union and Labour connections, which it has taken years to establish, will have to be surrendered. It is a tragedy to the revolutionary movement here in Mansfield.

Our next great fight is for One Union for all mine-workers—a task we are just getting busy with. Conferences are being held in various parts of the country. I am organizing one in our town for March 12th, when one union will be the chief item on the agenda.

In Appreciation of Ruthenberg's Services.
Editor, Daily Worker.—To show a small fraction of my appreciation for what our Comrade Ruthenberg did for my class (The Workers), I am sending $1.00 for as many copies of his pamphlet "The Workers (Communist) Party" as you can afford. Girl Studies Effect of Alcohol Wanda Blanchard, junior at Woodrow Wilson High School, Long Beach, Calif., is studying the effects of alcoholism and heredity in the rats of the Biology department of the school. She is shown in the photo feeding Genevieve, white rat, the favorite of the department. The effect of alcohol stimulation on both the rats and their progeny is noted by the class members.

By CARL BRANNIN.
"Shingle-weaving is not a trade; it is a battle. For ten hours a day the sawyer faces two toothed steel discs whirling around two hundred times a minute. To the one on the left he feeds heavy blocks of cedar, reaching over with his left hand to remove the rough shingles it rips off. He does not, he cannot stop to see what his left hand is doing. His eyes are too busy examining the shingle for knot-holes to be cut out by the second saw swirling in front of him.

Saw Sets Pace.
"The saw on his left sets the pace. If the singing blade rips fifty rough shingles off the block every minute, the sawyer must reach over to its teeth fifty times in sixty seconds; if the automatic carriage feeds the odorous wood sixty times into the hungry teeth, sixty times he must reach over, turn the shingle, trim its edge on the gleaming saw in front of him, cut out the narrow strip containing the knot-hole with two quick movements of his right hand and tussle the completed board down the chute to the packers, meanwhile keeping eyes and ears open for the sound that asks him to feed a new block into the untrusting teeth.

Unprotected Hands.
Hour after hour the shingle weaver's hands and arms, plain, unarmored flesh and blood, are staked against the screeching steel that cares not what it severs. Hour after hour the steel sings its crescendo note as it bites into the wood, the sawdust cloud thickens, the wet sponge under the sawyer's nose fills with fine particles. If "cedar asthma," the shingle weaver's occupational disease, does not get him, the steel will. Sooner or later he reaches over a little too far, the whirling blade tosses drops of deep red into the air, and a finger, a hand or part of an arm comes sliding down the slick chute.

Most Lose Fingers.
Thus wrote Walter V. Woehlke, editor of the Sunset Magazine in 1917. Except for the supplanting of the ten-hour day by eight hours, through organization, the description of the working life of the sawyer is much the same today. Ask any mass meeting of strikers here for a show of hands and concrete evidence will be afforded of the awful hazards of the industry.

Ninety-five per cent of the workers have lost one or more fingers, but so long as a thumb and one finger remain, even the little one, a man can still battle with the saws for a livelihood. I asked one man what compensation he had received for a missing digit. Two hundred and fifteen dollars was the answer. No wonder strikers say that it would really be a blessing if the mills should remain closed and the workers forced to find their living in some less hazardous industry than the making of shingles. But under the present industrial system there are too many men for the jobs. And there's the rub.

Pitiful Low Wages.
Wages in the shingle industry are pitifully small considering the dangerous nature of the work. The workers of Gray's Harbor are on strike to resist the attempt of the bosses to reduce wages still further. Payment is on a piece-work basis and the strikers declare this will be eliminated when their union is stronger. Skilled workers receiving an average of from $5 to $6.50 per day the bosses would cut to $4.10 and $5.90. The sawyer receives from 17 to 20 cents per thousand for the shingles, which the consumer buys at $4 or more per thousand.

Always Cutting.
The packer receives a little less. Day labor, relatively unskilled, the boss would cut from $4 per day to $3.50. The former wages may be a trifle higher than those paid in some other shingle districts but the increased cost of living in Gray's Harbor more than makes up the difference. Food is from 15 to 20 per cent higher than in Seattle.

High Rent.
A dilapidated four or five room house, unfurnished, will rent for $22.50 per month. Water, light, etc., is extra. Board at one of the company hotels for single men is $10.50 per week. The fact that most of the strikers now have to buy their groceries on credit boosts the living costs still higher. While the merchants thus far have extended credit freely there is a disposition now on the part of some of them to cut this off. Ninety per cent of the strikers are married men with families and the problem may become acute. The strikers are endeavoring to raise money locally but they need help from the unions in other cities. Have your union vote a monthly contribution at its next meeting and send same to International Shingle Weavers' Union, 305 Eighth St., Moquiam, Wash., R. E. Lovelace, Treas.

Sure Thing Sportsmen

By SPECTATOR.
Those who appreciate the humor of the "Honest John" title adopted by a thousand Main Streets thousand politicians will find an added source of entertainment in the alibis offered by defeated ring favorites. The sting of the trouncing, actually handed to the suckers who swallow the balldoo prepared by subsidized sports writers, is cleverly healed.

Swelling Swells.
Thus, the slight swelling noted in Jack Delaney's thumb after his unexpected defeat by Maloney last month became a fracture. And the light heavyweight's unexpectedly poor showing was due to worry over his wife's illness. When Tom Gibbons took the count in his bout with Gene Tunney in June, 1925, the upset was accounted for by the "fact" that one of Gibbons' children was ill. In an earlier fight with the champion, Dempsey, Gibbons' had stayed the limit. When Tunney kayoed Bartley Madden who had lusted with Harry Wills, sports writers proclaimed the "fact" that Madden's pugilistic star had outworn its brilliance. After a decent interval of "retirement" Bartley came back and recently defeated "Soldier" King.

Useless Bribe.
Recently the writer was in the office of a manager who had just returned from an up-state club where one of his meal-tickets had decisively trounced a local favorite son.

The manager bemoaned the fact that he had been so uncertain of his proteges worth that he bribed the two judges to give his man an edge in the event of a close battle.

Facts like these may be received with amazement by the unsophisticated. The Rialto and all local fight clubs buzz with talk of a similar nature. Albany knows all about it—Governor Smith makes an occasional gesture. But recall that the fair-haired boy of metropolitan politics,

Mayor "Jimmie" Walker, was the father of the bill bearing his name which legalized boxing in this state, and also recollect that "Tex" Rickard and Humbert Fugazy, millionaire sports promoters, are among Walker's strong backers. They and other "sportsmen" can connive and manipulate with impunity.

Nobody was ever hurt by a commission "investigation" and its inevitable whitewashing. And, so far as the press is concerned, it would take a light stronger than the one carried by Diogenes to locate a sports scribe or cartoonist on one of the metropolitan dailies who is not properly instructed and provided for by the publicity department maintained by the promoters.

Nefarious Trades.
Broadway has its pimps and prostitutes—and also its promoters and their press agents. And the public receives a generous closing of sugar-coated purgatives. Sometimes these take the form of "benefits," similar to the one staged in Brooklyn last summer when practically not a cent went to the charity involved.

Hooked In Sports.
When a fight is framed the charmed inner circle pass around the word that it is "in the bag." As far as the public is concerned the whole business is "in the bag" and the bag encloses every one of the fight fans who swallow the stuff provided by the prostitute press. The American boob is hooked in sports as well as in business and politics.

Prison Break Foiled.
AUBURN, N. Y., March 17.—A second attempt to escape from Auburn Prison by Lillian MacDowell, alias "Cat Eye Annie," international known jewel thief, was revealed today after her removal from the prison here to the state hospital for the criminal insane at Matteawan.

WOMEN'S HOME WORK MAKES CHILD SLAVES

(By Student in Workers School Journalism Class.)
Sweated home sewing is cheating children of workers in New York and the suburbs of their schooling. Six year old Michael's teacher made this discovery on his visit to his home.

This bright little fellow had made a good start in school. However, after frequent absences he began to lag behind. In a few weeks he lost his standing altogether.

Sweat Shop Helper.
Answering the questions of Michael's sorely tried teacher, the mother said, "I keep him home to help with the baby."

"You see I must go after this work and take it back." She pointed to a huge pile of coat linings.
"Oh, I am so busy," she said, passing her hand distractedly over her head. "What with this sewing and the housework and all, I just can't always manage to get him ready."

All do Home Sewing.
"All the mothers in the neighborhood take home sewing from the factory," said the head teacher. "They have done it all the years I have been here. Why we had one family where the boys used to go to sleep in school. We found out that all these boys helped nightly with this work."

Stagger Under Bundles.
Michael's teacher has gotten used to the sight of women and children staggering along under a load of cut out clothing. This is work that the wives of workers can do and at the same time try to look after house and children.

BOOKS

A WORKERS' PLAY.
"The Machine-Wreckers," by Ernst Toller. Alfred A. Knopf, New York. $2.
We have our post of the revolution in Ernst Toller. Toller is the proletarian's own dramatist, writing with a burning pen of the workers' struggles and aspirations. He is no slinger of fine phrases or painter of pretty pictures, sitting aloof in a quiet room far from the fight and composing. No! Toller's finest works were written, seated on a hard stool behind steel prison bars. And he was behind those prison bars because of his active participation in the memorable revolutionary uprising in Germany during the Spartacan struggle. Surely a fine schooling for a revolutionary artist.

This play is a dramatic version of the uprising in 1812 of the English Luddites against the introduction of machinery in the weaving industry. Hundreds of weavers, skilled craftsmen with a trade, are thrown out of work and replaced by one "iron man." There is no more necessity for trained mechanics. Women and children can do their work for smaller wages and labor longer hours. The weavers strike in protest. Not only savagely exploited, but they feel their manhood has been insulted by this dumb iron monster, feelinglessly taking their places. The weavers are left to starve with all its attendant miseries. Their wives sell their bodies for a bread crust and their children begin to resemble bony skeletons. Finally they gather at the factory and in blind fury smash the machines and their leader who counsels patience and international organization. The military arrives with the usual results.

Here is red meat for a real Workers' Theatre. The play cries for expression. There are three or four scenes which will cause the blood of every worker to rush faster and his heart to beat madly. Come on you new playwrights in 52nd street; show us what you can do.
A. Resika.

STILL MORE ABOUT "THE NEW MASSES".
"It seems to me," writes Lawrence Williams, "that Benjamin Weiss in his letter about 'The New Masses' commits a flagrant injustice against the magazine. With all its faults, I don't think 'The New Masses' is one-tenth as black as he has painted it. He seems to be entirely oblivious to the difficulty of doing what 'The New Masses' has attempted to do and the courage that it requires to buck not merely a social and economic order, but a debased artistic sense that extends to the vast majority of the people who are hostile to the capitalistic system."
"I want to ask Mr. Weiss what he expects 'The New Masses' to do. Granted that Waldo Frank and Kreymborg are not proletarian writers (whatever that may be), can he suggest others who are more 'proletarian'? Artists are not autonomous creatures, but the products of specific societies. 'The New Masses' has been attempting to function in a society which is not proletarian, and in that society it has been trying to discover proletarian tendencies. That these tendencies are frequently vague and obscure is not the fault of the magazine. And if certain writers who have no interest in the class struggle deliberately write in a manner that seems sympathetic and succeed in imposing on the editors of 'The New Masses,' it is the writers who have dishonored themselves and their art, not the magazine.

"I agree with Mr. Weiss that there should have been something about China in the last issue and that there should be a more unified expression and support of specific working-class struggles. But this doesn't mean that discussions of sex are irrelevant and fatuous. The fact that sex has been overwritten in novels and vulgarized in the tabloids doesn't mean that it is unimportant. It seems to me that any discussion of a new social and economic order must make some provision for a reorientation of the relations between the sexes, which are at present to so large an extent based on the conception of private property. Perhaps the editors phrased it rather pedantically when they called it 'the correct revolutionary proletarian attitude towards sex,' but that doesn't invalidate the discussion itself.

"Personally 'The New Masses' has meant a great deal to me and I should hate to see it cease publication. There is no magazine in the country like it."

CELEBRATING WITH THE AMBASSADORS.

It is highly probable that the two million six hundred thousand readers of the SATURDAY EVENING POST are beyond regeneration; that the psyche of these readers corresponds in level to the bilge and pie-in-the-sky material contained in its pages, but it may be instructive to make a brief examination of the species of canard gobbed hook and sinker by the more ignorant of the farmers, and that portion of the wage slaves which has deluded itself into a belief that it has something in common with the capitalists. A very recent spurge on the Nicaragua question by that disciple of Kelloggism, Richard Washburn Child, who, unless I am greatly mistaken, at one time served as an ambassador from these states, will serve in this instance.

Mr. Child makes a long-winded and platitudinous rejection of the accusation that Kellogg & Co. are imperialists, with ears straining to hear the clink of golden kale jingled in the hands of Morgan & Co. Any intelligent person who has escaped the obviously capitalistic curriculum in our public schools will have only a snort of disgust for the Rev. Child. For, after several thousand words, we are only more convinced that Kellogg and Cal are imperialists.

He wants us to take particular notice of the facts. That alone, he intimates, would convince one that the Saint from Minnesota is a humane and far-seeing gentleman. What the facts are is common knowledge to nearly every one by now. He also asks the two million six hundred thousand readers of the Post if we want to see a foreign country controlling the Latin-American states. In his tremendous effort to make a good case for Cal he raises the dubious red herring of a foreign nation only too willing to grab control of these Latin states. Of course terrible Bolshevism is also working its insidious propaganda. . . . We must, he urges, even protect the citizens of these republics when the republic itself arms. He accuses Mexico of supporting a revolution in Nicaragua, by sending arms and ammunition into the territory parceled by God to the exploitation by the U. S. A. He has conveniently forgotten that what the U. S. is actually doing is helping a revolutionist, Diaz, and attempting to suppress Dr. Sacasa, the constitutionally elected president. The adult Child has forgotten many things. But it will hardly matter. The readers of the Saturday Evening Post will hardly notice or attempt to correct any error.

I suppose Mr. Child includes this passage in his argument against the aforementioned accusation: "Will we say goodbye, Panama Canal; au revoir Magdalena Bay; adios, Fonseca; farewell, Nicaragua Canal?" That, in effect, is the essence of imperialism. Get the Nicaragua Canal before England will get it. . . . It might be well to ask here if the U. S. is so intent on being the new Messiah will Nicaragua be the first party to benefit from the proposed canal, or will the United States? And will the United States benefit with the consent of the Nicaraguans and at their expense? The fact that there is a revolution seems to suggest that Diaz is given aid by imperialistic United States because he will make no objections to exploitation. And that Dr. Sacasa is such a nit-wit as to believe that Nicaragua land should belong to Nicaragua. That is to say that Nicaragua should herself realize on her natural resources, and not the United States. The trouble in Mexico amounts to this: Calles believes that the people of Mexico should be benefited by her natural resources; while the United States imperialists believe that the Standard Oil Co. should benefit.

The workers should, indeed, look at the facts. But they can hardly expect to get accurate impartial facts from Child. His facts are all ambiguous. You can look at them and be convinced that the United States is wrong, but if you are a reader of the Saturday Evening Post your psyche would already have been prepared to accept the view that the United States is right.

This article is probably one of many that will soon be issued, subtle propaganda to prepare you for the next war. We shall soon undoubtedly see many profound articles and editorials "proving" that China is in the wrong. Yes, we may soon expect impartial and accurate reports to the effect that the Nicaraguans, Mexicans, and Chinese are cannibals, crucifiers, rapers of helpless women and children, and all the rest of the bilge that convinced so many people that the last war was fought for democracy.

Organized labor should present a solid front against the imperialistic activities of "our" government. If they don't—we will soon enough bathe once again in blood, in order to preserve the inalienable rights of the capitalists to rob whatever countries they please.
