DEFEAT THE MURDER DRIVE! SPREAD THE STRIKE!

CURIOUS over the stubbornness, the great and growing strength of the textile strike, now going into its third week, the employers and their government, nationally and in every state of the strike, are mobilizing their armed forces of murder to terrorize and shoot the textile

Despite the act that A. F. of L. leaders such as MacMahon and Rieve in some places, acted as a brake on the strike, the militancy and heroism of the textile strikers, especially in the South, has made the strike a tremendous and powerful weapon in the fight for the workers' demands. Gorman and MacMahon, unable to carry through their N.R.A. agreements, unable to put over N.R.A. arbitration, are compelled to enter into a bitter, wordy battle with General Johnson. But while they talk, while words fly, the employers are girding their forces now for the most ruthless, murderous attack on the strikers, for the most determined drive to smash the strike. The real test of the strike, the fight for the workers' demands against starvation, against the most miserable conditions, and for union organization, are go-

- AN EDITORIALing to be settled on the picket lines and at the mill

The employers, to justify their new murder at tacks, are trying to brush aside the question of the real issues of the strike-the just demands of the workers for higher wages, lower hours, against the speed-up, and for union recognition. The New York Times, organ of the big employers, the bankers who dominate the textile and other indutries, is openly appealing for the most brutal savagery to break the strike. In an editorial on Monday, to the tune of tramping feet of thousands of troops in the textile mills, to the voice of Roosevelt in Rhode Island, and the governors in other states meeting with the employers to break the strike, this bosses'

"The country is also coming more clearly to see that the strike was ordered less to redress grievances or advance claims than to make a demonstration of the power of the textile workersespecially their power by strikes and intimidation to unionize the Southern cotton mills. The real issues having thus been made plain, the people will at least know what the dispute is about, and what the critical test of the strike during the coming week will actually mean."

TEXTILE workers, you see how the employers' government mobilizes its troops to shoot you down, when you strike for your just demands against starvation conditions. You see how the employers' press tries to brush aside your demand. They talk about a "demonstration of power of the textile workers." Yes, more power of the workers is needed-more power to end the rotten, slavery conditions. More power to build the unions, to make the strike effective, to win the workers' demands! You see how they already try to justify your murder in the eyes of the public by eliminating with a wave of the hand the real demands which your convention voted on, which represents the wish, the need, the desire of every textile worker suffering from the most horrible conditions.

Now that the employers and their government forces have girded for a mighty effort, at the cost of your lives, to break your strike and defeat your demands, it is more than ever necessary to close and tighten your ranks. On your side is the militancy, the bravery, the splendid organization, the effectiveness of the strike up to now. On your side is the working class of the whole country. The strike must be spread now with greater energy than eyer before. The answer to the mobilization of the armed forces of strike-breaking must be: Close down every mill in the country! Increase the mass picket lines. Picket every mill, Forward with the flying picket squadrons. Mass your forces on every mill still open or partially running-and close it down! Make the strike one hundred per cent effective, and you will win your demands, despite every effort to send you back into the mills under worse conditions than before.

Reach the militiamen and agitate among them about your strike, how the employers are trying to use them to force you back into starvation conditions. Urge the militiamen not to be strikebreakers and to shoot you down.

Call out every branch of the textile industry. Spread the strike! Call out the hosiery workers, the dyers, every organized or unorganized workers. Call out every branch of the textile industry in answer to the murder concentration of the bosses, in answer to their efforts to break your strike and defeat your demands.

The mass flying picket squadrons have proved to be the most efficient means of the workers to shut down the mills. Do not give up this weapon, but increase its power. The employers and their

Ely, like Governor Green, of Rhode Island, has stepped forward with the slogan of "The Right to Work." This is the slogan under which the strikebreaking measures are being taken. Green spoke to the intellectuals' delegation of "freedom and liberty" and stated he will protect the right "of the textile workers to work, and of the mill owners to operate.'

The Chambers of Commerce throughout New England and the textile manufacturers' associations are getting out reams of propaganda in the press along similar lines. The troops and guards are being praised for "protecting the right to work.

In Lowell this morning mass picket lines ranging up to 400 kept all Lowell's mills closed.

Then Mr. Bishop, President of the U.T.W. in Fall River, went in to the mill owner. The mill owner asked what the strike was about. Mr. Bishop said that it was for 30 hours work and 40 hours pay. The mill owner said about the Communist Party, knows that before he closed the mill would Mr. Bishop let him finish his work for two days, and Mr. Bishop said, "O. K.,' finish your work for two days, then you'll have to close." It is a printing mill, and Mr. Bishop was not even ashamed to give the news to the paper. Leaving a mill opened during a strike! And the workers were so mixed up they walked away bewildered from the picket line. Even the cops couldn't understand what was what. Something else happened in town. CHANGE

IT IS clear that Elmer Rice, in his new play, "Judgment Day," has familiarized himself with the outward characteristics of the Reichstag trial and even with some of the more recent events in Germany, such as the growing disintegration of the Storm Troopers.

But he has given us only the shadow and not the substance of fascist rule. In his desire to avoid the charge that he is writing "propaganda," he has substituted "a Slavic country in Southeastern Europe" for Nazi Germany. He has substituted a vague, amorphous "People's Party," for the heroic vigorous Communist Party of Germany with its concrete program for the fight against fascism and for the liberation of the German masses. This so-called "People's Party" has no program other than a vague appeal for "justice" and a pathetic plea in the face of "tyranny."

Instead of a towering Dimitroff we find a pallid Khitov, who acts like a bellicose college boy; his chief characteristic an almost exhibitionistic matching of wits with the witless prosecutor.

Dimitroff in the Hands of a Playwright

A SIDE from all other considerations, there is no doubt that the trial of Georgi Dimitroff and his comrades provides more dramatic material than can be found in all the courtroom scenes of the American Theatre for the past 20 years. For this reason, if for no other, it is easy to understand why one should have looked forward with such eager expectancy to Elmer Rice's new play.

Rice is an expert theatre man. His previous plays have shown an increasing political consciousness. Joseph Freeman, in concluding a thoughtful analysis of Rice's work, in an article in the current issue of New Theatre, observed that "it is worth considering now, whether Rice, who has grown so steadily, if unoriginally, from the clever melodrama of 'On Trial,' to the honest, burning social indictment of 'We, the People,' will grow still further."

A Melodramatic Plot

THE plot-Three people are on trial for their lives, in "Judgment Day," charged with conspiring to assassinate the Minister-President, also called the "Dictator." The action is laid in the chamber of the High Court of Justice. The defendants are George Knitov, fashioned presumably on Georgi Dimitroff. The other is Lydia Kuman, the wife of Kuman and a co-worker of Khitov. The third defendant is Kurt Schneider. The first two defendants, Khitov and Lydia Kuman, are members of the "People's Party," while in Schneider you immediately recognize Van der Lubbe, the Dutch imbecile and provocateur, who was the tool of the Nazis in the Reichstag fire trial.

In the first act you find a weird courtroom scene in which five members of the High Court of Justice are listening to testimony against the defendants. One of the chief witnesses is a down-at-theheel waiter, who testifies that he overheard the three defendants, including imbecile Kurt Schneider, plotting the assassination of the Minister-President, one evening in the cafe in which he worked.

Following the testimony of the waiter, Lydia Kuman takes the stand. She acts the part, not of a revolutionist conscious of a class purpose, but of a woman unjustly accused. The exaggerated "poignancy" of her acting was oftentimes almost embarrassing.

Goering in Full Regalia

ONE of the high points of the play is the appearance of General Michael Rakovski, the Minister of "Culture and Enlightenment," who undoubtedly represents Goering, judging by his fine plumage and his demoniacal manner. He takes the witness stand against the defendants of the People's Party, and arrogantly demands to know why the judges find it necessary to take his valuable time in the trial of such creatures as the defendants. (Shades of Goering at the Leipzig

The audience knew that the curtain was about to fall in the first act when the woman defendant is told that her husband, Kuman, hanged himself in his cell. Piercing shrieks from the woman who attempts to shoot one of the guards standing nearby, a medley of noises and terrific confusion, end the act.

Later we see the justices of the High Court of Justice deliberating on the verdict. As two of the judges (liberals of the old school) reveal their unwillingness to order the defendants executed, the Minister death verdict in the interests of national security." One of the dissenting judges caves in, but the other, after making a passionate speech on behalf of "liberty" and "justice," persists in his decision and says that he is willing to face the consequences. Besides, says he, he has lived long enough.

The last act is brought to a dramatic climax by the appearance of the Minister-President himself (the "Leader"), who is brought in on a wheel chair. Like the "Minister of Culture and Enlightenment." he stalks to the witness stand and roars the charge that the defendants tried to kill him. A moment later, Kuman, the leader of the "People" Party," who according to the prosecution, had committed suicide in his cell, makes his appearance after several of the green-uniformed guards, apparently sympathetic to the "People's Party," had helped him enter the place disguised as a priest.

"Shoot him!" demands the "Leader." The guards remain unmoved. One of the judges-the Man Friday of the Minister of Culture and Enlightenment, whips out a revolver. His "liberal" colleague struggles for the weapon. In the scuffle, the Leader himself is shot, and my vague impression is that the "liberal" judge then committed suicide.

Elmer Rice's Advance

ON THE basis of "Judgment Day," I think it is fair to say that Rice has advanced, from the viewpoint of showing sufficient political sensitivity to realize the dramatic possibilities of a bold play against fascism. But I don't think he has succeeded for a number of reasons.

It is easy to accuse a playwright of being conscious of box-office receipts, but I don't think that will explain the inadequacy of "Judgment Day." Elmer Rice has shown that he is willing to fly in the face of the commercial traditions of Broadway. He produces his own plays and often loses money on them, something which he might have avoided if he joined the Broadway twaddle writers.

I believe that the fatal flaw in Rice's approach lies in his insistence on being a mere insurgent in the theatre. In going to social issues for his plays, he reveals his fundamental liberalism. This is painfully clear in his play, "We, the People," which deals with the disintegration of a lower middle class family in Detroit in the face of the crisis.

The Trap of Liberalism

DICE shows great insight in character delineation, in portraying the K habits and petty-bourgeois viewpoint of the auto foreman and his family. He is masterly in depicting the increasing disillusionment of this family in the face of unemployment and hunger. But when, in the final act of "We, the People," Rice shows the unemployed foreman's son facing a framed murder charge growing out of a demonstration, the playwright turned the play into a mild "protest" meeting of the Civil Liberties Union variety.

In "Judgment Day," too, Rice has shown his unwillingness or his inability to portray characters as representatives of contending classes. In "We, the People," the dismissed liberal college instructor pleaded for a return of the "principles of the Declaration of Independence." In "Judgment Day" the Dictator is shot by a member of the High Court of Justice, whose principles of bourgeois liberalism prevented him from approving the death penalty for the accused leaders of the "People's Party" on the technicality that they had not been indicted for treason.

Evasions Are Fatal

THE real heroes of the play are not the defendants of the "People's Party." The hero is a liberal member of the High Court of Justice -the dead spittin' image of Supreme Court Judge Brandeis-who shot the "Dictator" dead and then immolated himself upon the shrine of the "People's Party." This, I think, shows the nature of Rice's thinking and indicates where his hopes for the future seem to lie.

As in "We, the People," Rice fails to see the political logic of his own sharp-eyed observations, so that in his latest play we find him writing about "dictatorships" and blandly ignoring all the basic political and economic issues out of which dictatorships arise.

I have no doubt that Elmer Rice intended "Judgment Day" to be a weapon in the world fight against fascism. But his evasions of concrete class alignments weakens what might have been a great play.

usual with films produced fight in the Soviet Union, "Mass Strug-gle" is probably historically accurate and certainly ethnographically correct down to the smallest detail. The film's simply avowed propagandistic purpose provides a thrill which one never experiences in for "entertatinment." Soviet movies can be so effectively propagandistic because they have no need for the distortion of historical fact or perspective. Thus, when the leader of the peasant revolt, facing execution, turns on his landlord captors and tells them that some day someone will rise to make them answer for the oppres-sion and torment they inflict on their serfs, he is making no melodramatic prophecy. Viewed in historical perspective, his utterance is a mere statement of fact. And the scornful incredulousness with which

This pamphlet by the editor of the Daily Worker, written during the first week of the present textile strike, constitutes an authoritury struggle of the Ukrainian serfs tative statement of the position of anew by the Ukrainian landowners, talist press and the U.T.W. officials

Hathaway shows that the Communist Party fights for one basic thing in the present strike, namely that those policies are pursued in the strike that will guarantee to the workers better wages and an end to the stretch-out, the demands specified in the recent U. The Arms Cesspool

DFFORTS are already being made, as pre-L dicted in the columns of the Daily Worker, to smother important testimony in the arms investigation in Washington. Senator Nye has promised not to ask the du Pont brothers the extent of their political contributions. "Desiring not to embarrass candidates in coming elections," says a United Press dispatch, "the committee decided to postpone such disclosures.'

The great munitions manufacturers are not separate and apart from the great basic industries, the great banks and the government; on the contrary, they are inextricably intertwined with the wealthy capitalists and ruling class politicians. These are not "merchants of death" standing apart from the government and the decisive sections of the ruling class; they are simply that part of the ruling class whose merchandise happens to be lethel instruments. No effort of Senator Nye can change that situation, can make it appear that the du Ponts are somehow different than the rest of the ruling class and its government. They are all implicated-the Morgan and Rockefeller banks, the U. S. Steel, the War Department and other parts of the governmental apparatus.

Mr. Nye and his committee would try to make it appear otherwise, but no worker should be fooled. Nye and the capitalist politicians sense the great anti-war spirit that is abroad in the land, the anti-war sentiment that pervades millions of farmers and lower middle class people, the section of the population whose interests Nye and his committee pretend to represent. To them Nye says that he has discovered the roots of war -a special group of wicked capitalists who manufacture arms. To solve the problem he proposes that the government take over munitions manu-

But every worker should ask himself the question: Are not munitions made for armies and are not armies the means of carrying out govern-

Did not the War Department know all about the manufacture of these arms? Did it not use these arms to kill Nicaraguan workers and peasants, to collect the debts of the Chase National Bank in Haiti, to fight the Chinese Revolution, yes, to shoot down strikers at the textile mills and docks of the United States?

THE workers of the United States must see this traffic in death, this monumental racket, as part of the whole diseased capitalist system. To do away with the arms racket, one must do away with the system that breeds war, the captialist system, and set up a revolutionary workers' government, a Soviet Government. Only thus can that cesspool of international intrigue and corruption—a tiny whiff of which the arms investigation afforded us-be done away with.

The Daily Worker urges all workers and other anti-war fighters to demand in ringing tones that the munitions investigation be carried on without concealment. Every single document must be brought to light. The name of every individual connected with the manufacture and trade of munitions must be given publicity.

Workers should demand that the hearings be broadcast over the radio networks. Let us see where the taxes wrung out of the masses go. Let us see who profits by the sale of tear gas used

Workers must use this occasion to demand a 100 per cent tax on munitions profits—these vast funds to go for unemployment relief and insurance, for bread and not for bullets.

Demand an embargo on all shipments of munitions to fascist Germany and to Japan for war on the Soviet Union!

Give the most energetic support to the forces which are fighting the munitions makers and the system of which they are a part! Support the Second U. S. Congress Against War and Fascism in Chicago September 28, 29 and 30. Get your union, fraternal society or cultural organization to send delegates!

The Strategic South

THE strike situation in the South is growing more tense. The employers and their government machinery are getting ready to strike another bloody blow at the strike. Every available National Guard regiment is being mobilized for instant action. Gangs of hired thugs and deputies are being formed by the employers, with the full support of the Governors in the Carolinas and

The South is getting ready for more spilling of workers' blood. This is Roosevelt's South, his party and his most loyal supporters. In the shedding of Southern workers' blood it is Roosevelt who is re-

They are striking at the South because they think that in this way they will smash the unity of the textile battle lines

The employers are not slow in seeing that the U. T. W. officials made very little strike preparations in the South. The employers, though disagreeably surprised by the tremendous sweep of the textile strikers' militancy, still think that they will be able to crack the Southern workers first with

Thus the fight in the South is becoming more and more strategic.

ESPECIALLY important is the question of the unity of the workers, of organized with unorganized. Negro and white. The employers will surely try all their old tricks of dividing the workers with the poison of race hatreds and other

But they will do this only the better to rob and exploit each section of the working class separately. White and Negro workers belong together in solidarity, each assisting the other to win better wages and working conditions.

The mass marches and picket lines must be increased. To slacken on the mass picketing for one minute would be to weaken the strike and

The flying squadrons, pulling out the lower mills, still have their work to do and must not under any circumstances be allowed to slow down,

The Southern Worker, P. O. Box 576, Concord, N. C., the paper of the Communist Party in the South, which rallies the workers for effective struggle, needs support. Rush it aid!

Keep the mills closed. The terrorism of the employers and the government can be met by the mass organization and picketing of the workers.

U.T.W. Leaders and the Youth in the Mills

CLASSIC example of how the U.T.W. A leaders discriminate against the youth is seen in Paterson, N. J. Here, from 3,000 to 4,000 throwsters, almost all of whom are youth, are still working in the throwster mills. So far, the U. T. W. leaders have refused to call them on strike. In this manner, the U. T. W. leaders are creating a breach between the young and adult textile

In this, they are also aided by the fact that the throwsters went back to the mills after fighting militantly in the last national silk strike without any union organization and without any demands won. The U. T. W. leaders callously them when the time for settlement came, both with regard to the improvement of their conditions and the organization of their craft.

Remembrance of this action doubtless still rankles in the minds of the throwsters. But even despite this bitter memory, the throwsters are anxious to strike. In all the mills, the throwsters are waiting for the strike call or for a flying squadron to pull the mills.

The Young Communist League in Paterson correctly calls upon the throwsters not to wait for an official strfike call and not ai wait until a flying squadron is sent to picket the throwster mills. It calls upon them to strike now on their own initiative, elect their own rank and file strike committees and become part of the huge national tex-

It calls upon them to figrht for the following demands: Guaranteed minimum wage of $18 for a 30-hour week with a six-hour day; no Saturday work, workers to be notified a day before lay-off; improved sanitary conditions.

Throwsters! Strike all the throwing mills in Paterson! Elect rank and file strike committees! Mass picketing in front of every throwster mill! Reject all arbitration! Stay out until your demands are won!

Defeat the Murder Drive! Spread the Strike!

whelps cry that this means "outsiders" are invading the mill towns. When they scour the underworld of the whole country to bring in strikebreakers and gunmen to shoot you down, these are "patriots," they are not "outsiders." When they mobilize troops from every part of the state, these are not "outsiders."

IN VIEW of the concentration of the bosses' forces I in this mighty effort to break the strike, it now becomes a thousand-fold more necessary for the whole labor movement in the country, for the whole working class to stand behind the textile strikers. Remember, workers: a defeat for the textile strikers will be a blow against you. The force and the power of the whole toiling population must be thrown behind the textile workers, to help them

This is a fight of the whole American labor movement. This is a fight of the whole employing class and its government and armed forces against the textile workers. There must be solidarity protest meetings in every mill town and surrounding territory. The trade unions everywhere should immediately take steps to come to the aid of their striking brothers. In Hazleton, Pa., the whole working class went on a one-day general solidarity strike. This helped to close down the mills.

We must help now to rush relief to the textile strikers. The whole labor movement should be mobilized for this task. Why do Green, Woll & Co. remain silent? These gentlemen pull down handsome salaries and incomes of from $20,000 to $30,000 a year. Why don't they issue an appeal for relief for the textile strike. The history of the American labor movement shows they could easily raise from four to five million dollars. Every union man, yes, every worker and friend of labor in the country would contribute. Yet they do not act.

MERICAN Federation of Labor members, all A friends of labor, every worker, take steps now to collect relief. Collect food in your territory. Send it to the local strike committee. If you are not in strike territory, send the money to the strike committee in Washington.

Act now to declare your solidarity with the textile strikers by collecting relief to aid the strikers stick until they win their just demands.

In every strike area, mass demonstrations, including every workers' organization as well as strikers, should be organized to go to the Federal relief agencies and demand the immediate granting of strike relief. This can be accomplished. It must be done. Everything must be done to safeguard the fighting strength of the workers.

Communists! As leading fighters for the victory of the textile strike, in this situation of the tightening of the class lines, of the sharpening of the battle, it is your duty to be most active in the mass picket lines, on the flying squadrons. Everything must be done especially by the Communists to close down every mill. The mobilization for relief, for demonstrations

U.S.S.R. Industry Makes Great Gains as Capitalist Crisis Deepens

(Special to the Daily Worker) MOSCOW, Sept. 17 (By Wireless). The national economic summary for August, and another of the first eight months of this year show a ew rise in Soviet Economics.

Important branches of Soviet industry, from January to August of this year, increased their output as compared with the same period last year:

Coal, by 25.9 per cent; oil, by 17.2 per cent; peat, by 19.1 per cent; iron, by 51.2 per cent; steel, by 44.4 per cent; bars, by 36.7 per cent; aluminum, by 316.5 per cent; Ural copper, by 34.1 per cent; automos, by 34.1 per cent; tractors, by 32.3 per cent; engines, by 20.5 per cent, freight-engines, by 63.8 per

These facts again and again demonstrate the correctness of Stalin's vords at the 17th Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, when he said that the present crisis in capitalist economy will not lead to new booms in capitalist industry. The curve of bourgeois economy is again going downwards. These figures and facts, and the progressively encouraging details of ocialist economy in the Soviet Union, demonstrate that the U.S. S. R. is the only country in the orld which is free from collapses and retreats, and always moves for-

(Special to the Daily Worker) MOSCOW, Sept. 16 (By Wireless). Rowdyism, club-law and violence ipon Soviet citizens, employed by the Chinese Eastern Railroad, in Manchuria continue.

In a number of stations, Japanese oldiers recently evicted Soviet employes from their quarters under the pretext that the quarters were for military occupation. Brutal beatings are common, even the women being subjected to them. At Station Ugunor the wife of the Soviet citizen Shustov was beaten by Japanese soldiers because she refused to vacate her apartment to the military. Similar cases also occurred at other stations. Cuban Union Chief Urges Protest Here

NEW YORK. - A special appeal through the Daily Worker has been issued to workers in the United States by Cesar Vilar, Secretary of the Cuban National Confederation of Labor, in behalf of the workers of Cuba.

The appeal urged American workers to send messages of protest to General Batista and Jefferson Caffery, U. S. ambassador, in Havana, against the arbitrary police seizure of the tobacco workers center in Havana, against the occupation the revolutionary trade union printing plant by military police and against the arrest of eleven workers.

The Daily Worker urges organizations throughout the country to rally to the support of the Cuban workers' struggle against this new wave of Wall Street-Mendieta terror. Send telegrams and letters of protest to Jefferson Caffery, C. P. of Spain Cuba, and to General Batista, commander-in-chief of the Army,

Soviets Prepare Plans for Official Opening of Huge Ukraine Plant

(Special to the Daily Worker)
MOSCOW, Sept. 17 (By wireless). -Soviet Ukraine is now preparing for the official opening of the enormous heavy machine construction plant at Kramatorsk. Some of its shops are already open, and have been in operation since last year—the iron foundry, with a capacity of 30,000 tons; the cover of seizure of a shipment of foundry, whose capacity of 36,000 tons of castings makes it the largest in the world.

The Most Burning Question ---Unity of Action

-By BELA KUN-

(Eighth Installment) THE UNITED FRONT WITH THE COMMU-NISTS REPELS THE PETTY BOURGEOISIE FROM THE PROLETARIAT"

HE Populaire of July 17, 1934, published the draft resolution which Frossard and his intimate comrades of the Right Wing of French Social-Democracy put forward in the National Council of the French Socialist Party against the acceptance of the Communist offer. In this draft we read as

. . Merely in order to co-operate with them [i.e., the Communists-B.K.], the Socialist organizations cannot surrender their contact with all the democratic elements, which constitute the enormous majority of the French population."

Citizen Frossard cannot be accused of inconstency. During his brief stay in the Right Wing of the Communist Party of France, he was just as much opposed to the united front with the Social-Democrati Party as now, when he occupies a place the Right Wing of French Social-Dem fulfilling the function of connecting link with the Neo-Socialists and fulminating against the united front with the Communist Party. It was this same Frossard who, while still in the ranks of the Communist Party of France, wrote as follows against the leadership of the Communist International, gainst its directives for the struggle for the united

"For the international Convinnist front the following holds true: The bridges have been broken; we shall not restore them, nay, not even by coming to terms shall we make this appear desirable in the eyes of the masses."

Now, too, Frossard wants to break down the bridges between Social-Democratic and Communist workers, though it is now from the other bank that he is trying to do this. We do not want to force our organizational principles upon the Social-Democratic Parties, but we cannot avoid mentioning that we Communists did not tolerate in our ranks such an attitude to the united front, to the fighting unity of the working class.

Now, however, let us come to the point, to the question whether the unity of action of the working class, the fighting unity of the Social-Democratic workers with the Communist workers is repelling all democratic elements from the working class. Under the term "democratic elements" we are to understand the urban petty bourgeoisie, poor and middle peasants, office employes and professional

The Social-Democratic worker, or even the Social-Democratic functionary, whose mental horizon is not limited by the frontiers of his own country, would do well to begin by comparing the successes of the Social-Democratic and of the Communist policy in the ranks of these democratic elements on the basis of concrete examples-Russia on the one hand and on the other hand, Germany tariat under the leadership of the Bolshevik Party has made it possible for the Russian working class, numerically a very small proletariat, to lead dozens of millions of poor and middle peasants, broad strata of the office employes and a part of the intelligentsia into the struggle against the big bourgeoisie, the feudal nobility, into the struggle for the power of the proletariat. Today, thanks to the Bolshevik policy, the great majority of the poor and middle peasants in the Soviet Union are collective farmers, conscious builders of the socialist economy. The urban petty bourgeoisie in the Soviet Union are freed from the exploitation of the banks and cartels, united in industrial co-operatives by means of assistance, financial and otherwise, from the state. With tremendous exertions the Bolsheviks have succeeded in saving large sections of the old intelligentsia for socialism. It would be absurd to assert today, as was alleged by many Social-Democrats formerly, that a working class comparatively small in number and the still smaller Bolshevik Party are capable of directing a state and of building up a new socialist economy by means of terror, against the will of the great majority of the population. On the contrary, it has only been possible to carry out this task because the Communist Party has known how to pursue a correct policy in relation to the middle classes. It has been able to do so precisely because the majority of the working class, nay the whole proletariat, has been and is behind it. Only because of this has it been able to throw into the scale the strength of the whole working class in order to lead the middle strata in town and country and to make concessions to the peasantry when the economic situation, the relation of forces between classes, rendered this necessary.

Why has not the relation of the middle strata in town and country toward the working class been the same in Germany and Austria as in Russia? Why did not the broad strata of the urban petty bourgeoisie, of the poor and middle peasantry, take the side of the proletariat when the question of the struggle between labor and capital was raised? Why did they take the side of the fascists, of finance capital, of the great landowners?

The Social-Democratic Parties in Germany and Austria have alleged that the tactics of the Communists repel the petty bourgeois strata in town and country from the working class. We Communists have already said: The petty bourgeois policy of the Social-Democratic Parties renders it impossible to draw over the urban and rural middle strata to the side of the proletariat.

And we repeat now that precisely the petty bourgeois policy of the Social-Democratic Parties was mainly responsible for the fact that these strata have been repelled from the working class, in contrast to Russia, where the proletarian policy of the Bolsheviks against capital, against the big landowners, has drawn these strata into the struggle against capitalism.

Hearst Visits Hitler What Did They Say? - ' Not Far Wrong

MILLIAM RANDOLFE W HEARST, chief purveyor of yellow journalism in the United States, failed to give his American readers the greatest story he ever came across. That is, his own interview with the No. 1 Nazi butcher. Adolph Hitler.

Hearst, who has no compunction in printing the diaries of other perverts and murderers, giving the most intimate details of their life and conversations, stooping ordinary burglary in order to get the information, refuses to mention one word of what went on between him and Hitler.

"Visiting Hitler," he told the Associated Press correspondents in Berlin, "is like calling on the President of the United Statesone doesn't talk about it for publication."

CUCH modesty, however, did not prevent Mr. Hearst from utilizing the first page of every one of his many newspapers to print the filth of Alfred Rosenberg, chief of the Foreign Political Department of the

Knowing both the views and deeds of Hearst and Hitler we cannot be far wrong in reporting their conversation as follows:

HEARST: This is one of the greatest moments of my life, your excellency. I have always admired you, and in my own way have done the best I could to carry out your great historical task, the fight against Bolshevism.

HITLER: Heil! I am very happy to make your acquaintance. Ac-cept my thanks for your service to the spirit of Fascism in your press. The very high ideals of your journalism proves that at least you in America are not in the pay of the Third International and of the Jewish intellectuals. Let me compliment you on your expert job in San Francisco. I see our methods have penetrated even to the Far The Vigilantes, you know, remind me of the early days of the organization of the Storm Troops. Splendid work your papers did against the Red Menace, Herr Hearst

HEARST: We have only begun, Fuhrer. The real task lies ahead. We are all confronted with two alternatives—either maintaining our system by whatever means necessary-we may not have to do exactly as you have; historical conditions are different-or succumb to the savagery of Bolshevism. HITLER: Precisely. You have also understood our chief world task. That is wiping out the root and source of world Bolshevism, the scourge of the civilized world, Soviet Russia. Some of our best friends, Britain, Italy, France, don't seem to understand us in this regard. We are the wall of civilization between the Bolshevist East and the capitalist West. The damned Bolsheviks have suc in helping to isolate us and to surround us with a ring of hostile nonaggression pacts. But there must war. We must burn them out with fire and blood. HEARST: There is no other way. My papers never lose an opportunity to fight against Bolshevism, whether in the United States or in Russia. Just now in the United States a tremendous wave of strikes are being directed against us by the Third International. Our workers do not appreciate what we have done for them, what a wonderful country they live in. Bolshevism is raising its ugly head; and we must smash it. I agree with youall our efforts should be bent primarily on ending the scourge at its worst point, in the Soviet Union.

HITLER: I have always felt in ou a kindred spirit, a true son of the purest blood of our race, the last troop of great knights in the battle for civilization in its greatest crisis. I know we pursue different methods. Democracy is not for us. You can still utilize it; but the day will come when you, too, will have to look for your great leader, when the old forms must crumble, and the dictatorship of your great industrial families, of your aristocratic barons of finance, such as my friends, Krupp and Thyssen, must seize destiny by the forelockor else the Red Tide will pass over

HEARST: We are already posing the question. We have begun by a series of articles against Communism. You will notice that my newspapers are the most implacable foe of the Red scoundrels, of strikes, of labor organizations. The trade unions are becoming too outspoken, and the leaders seem to be weakening against the red uprising in the unions. My paper has already fought union labor. We must now organize our Liberty Leagues to smash them, even as you have, my

HITLER: You can always count on our advice and counsel. I would suggest that you establish closer connections with Dr. Rosenberg's agents in the United States. They will be of immense service to you. HEARST: I thank you with all my heart. May I suggest in your propaganda that you soft-pedal the open war preparations. You know arm for peace. In this world of
