COLUMN LEFT! Communists the Heirs Of the Revolution of '76

Following is a section of the pamphlet by Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist Party, entitled, "Who Are the Americans?" The pamphlet may be obtained at the Workers' Bookshops for one cent.

By Earl Browder

The revolutionary tradition is the heart of Americanism. That is incontestable, unless we are ready to agree that Americanism means what Hearst says, slavery to outlived institutions, preservation of privilege, the degradation of the masses.

We Communists claim the revolutionary traditions of Americanism. We are the only ones who consciously continue those traditions and apply them to the problems of today.

We are the Americans, and Communism is the Americanism of the Twentieth Century.

This does not mean, of course, that we Communists raise the slogan of "Back to 1776." Such reactionary stupidity was committed by the LaFollette "third party" movement in 1924, typical as that movement was of a class-grouping (petty bourgeoisie refusing to ally with workers) that had lost its historically progressive significance. That was no more in the spirit of our revolutionary forefathers than it would have been for the Declaration of Independence to proclaim, "Back to the Republic of Rome."

To each day its own task; that of 1776 was to free a rising capitalism from the fetters of a dying feudal system, enabling it to expand the productive forces of mankind to a new high level; that of today is to free these tremendous productive forces created by capitalism, which are now being choked and destroyed because they have grown too big to live longer under capitalist property relations.

Americanism, in this revolutionary sense, means to stand in the forefront of human progress. It means never to submit to the forces of decay and death. It means constantly to free ourselves of the old the outworn, the decaying, and to press forward to the young, the vital, the living, the expanding. It means to fight like hell against those who would plow under the crops in our fields, who would close down and scrap our factories, who would keep millions of willing toilers, anxiou to create the good things of life, living like beggars upon charity.

Americanism, as we understand it, means to appropriate for our country all the best achievements of the human mind in all lands. Just as the men who wrote the Declaration of Independence had been nurtured upon the French Encyclopedists and the British classical political economists, so the men who will write our modern declaration of independence of a dying capitalist system must feed themselves upon the teachings of Marx, Engels, Lenin and Stalin, the modern represen-

In the words of a famous American whose memory we love, we say to Mr. Hearst and all the red-baiting cohorts of Wall Street: "If this be treason, make the most of it.

This is how we American Communists read the history of our country. This is what we mean by Americanism. This is how we love our country, with the same burning love which Lenin bore for Russia, his native land. Like Lenin, we will fight to free our land from the bloodsucking reactionaries, place it in the hands of the masses, bring it into the international brotherhood of a World Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, and realize the prophetic lines of Walt Whitman:

"We have adhered too long to petty limits . . . the time has come to enfold the world."

George Washington---American Revolutionist

By Harrison George

Throughout the United States, today will be celebrated as the birthday of George Washington-the Father of His Country.

The central fact of Washington's life—and this is the one thing that all the capitalist eulogies of him today will strive to minimize-is that he helped to organize and wage a revolutionary war against tyranny and oppression. Washington used revolutionary mean, to overthrow the monarchist-feudal domination of England and set up a new system of government, democratic republic.

Whatever the contradictions in Washington's life (and recent researches have done much to shatter the Sunday School fairy tales about him), the fact remains, and Karl Marx recognized this in his famous letter to Lincoln in 1865, that the American Revolution led by Washington was the first to fight under the slogan of democracy, and stimulated the revolutionary outbursts in Europe

Of course, great as was the role of Washington in bringing to birth the republic in which we live, the American revolution was fathered by the social forces of that day. Without understanding them, one understands nothing of the birth of our republic and the outstanding role Washington played in it.

colonial provinces were all alike—though in different ways—completely subjected to the strangling exploitation of England. To enforce this exploitation, endless tyrannical acts were inflicted upon the colonial peole, and thus gave in a revolutionary war

The British "Navigation Acts" required that most colonial products be exported only to England. This naturally gave England a monopoly in supplying goods consumed in the colonies. To make it doubly sure, goods other than British goods that might come to the colonies. And was made in spite of the law, but was allowed because it consumed molasses from British West Indies.

Pig iron might be made, but not made into ploughs, guns or knives. It had to be made into these things in England and sent back. Spinning and weaving, except for home se, was forbidden.

All this stifled the growth of industrial development in the colonies. And the producers of tobacco in Virginia were helpless against the fraud of their agents or "factors" in England, who took their tobacco, sold it at cheating prices and robbed them again by paying high prices for the manufactured goods sent to Virginia.

In fact, prices of imported goods in the American colonies were five or six times their value. And this weighed heavily not only upon the merchant class of New England, but a simple honesty that made him the ant an environment and against it hit the mechanics of the coastal center of national unity. He was cities, the farmers and common people even harder. It placed not in the sense of the stupid fairy needed goods entirely beyond their grasp. It made life a bitter primitive fight for existence-needlessly. And to add to this endless outrage was the closing of the westreal way penning up the small farmers and artisans in a slave pen depriving them of the then natural outlet of free land to the west, and subjecting them to the abuses of usury, high prices for goods they bought, low prices for goods they sold, a slave standard of living for free labor of mechanics, and total deprivation of rights from 2,000,000 people who were, more than those lity of freedom and a better life.

Marx on the Revolution of 1776

In the historic letter of the International Workingmen's Association (First International, formed in 1864) to Abraham Lincoln, Karl Marx, who drafted the letter, referred to the Revolutionary War of

Although dealing primarily with the issues of the Civil War period, the letter acclaimed the fact that the establishment of a democracy in America gave "impulse . . . to the European revolution of the eighteenth century."

The letter declared in part:

"... On the very spot where hardly a century ago, the idea of one great democratic republic first sprang up, whence the first Declaration of the Rights of Man [Declaration of Independence] was issued, and the first impulse given to the European revolution of the eighteenth century . . . the working men of Europe feel sure that, as the American War of In-

In June, 1775, Washington was named as Commander-in-Chief of the army of farmers and mechanics who had battled the British in Boston. At once he renounced the salary of $500 that the Continental Congress offered him. He had already offered to raise a thousand men at his own expense and march to aid the colonials at Boston.

This sort of honesty was most unusual and both his valor and his faith turned all eyes upon him as the leader of the Revolution. It is of Europe, mindful of the possibi- a tribute to his character that his declined throughout the years of in determination and bulldog tenacity that fought on even when discouragement was blackest.

The peculiarity of the American Revolution was that there was practically no old established feudal system here, and this led to a situation where the contradictions between the masses and the bourgeois revolutionaries who were in the leadership were fewer than in any and Whiskey Rebellion, and we had a situation where the common soldiers who fought in the Revolution mortgage usury of the rich. tent of his political activity.

For his part in the revolutionary uprising against England, Washington was hated by the Tories of his day, and the Royalists urged many times that he be hanged as a "tool of Satan." The Tories and Economic Royalists of our time, Hearst, Coughlin, and the Liberty League pretend today that they admire and love him. But they would have joined in the cry of their Tory ancestors to hang him. Many of the diatribes of the Tories against Washington sound exactly like the screaming red-baiting of Hearst and Coughlin today against the Commu-

After the Revolution, Jefferson urged that the promises of the Revolution to the artisans and landless poor be kept. The Federall 's fought against this, and in this fight Washington leaned too heavily on the advice of Hamilton rather than on Jefferson. Washington permitted the reactionary Federalist leaders to make use of his moral authority for their purposes.

An important point for present-day fight to help Madrid is the fact that Washington had the highest regard for the brave men who came from all parts of Europe to help the fledgling democracy in its struggle against tyranny. He loved Lafayette, Steuben from Germany, Kosciusko from Poland, and many others. Later, many Americans went to France to help the French people fight their revolution for democracy. The army Washington led was a true people's army, made up of ragged soldiers from the ranks of the poorest strata in the colonies, mechanics, small tradesmen, farmers' sons, and landless artisans. At Valley Forge, and in many another battle, the propertyless soldiers of Washington's people's army endured the greatest hardship. It is a great tribute to Washington that he never wavered during these dark days, and that he was able to hold the loyalty and devotion of his

Naturally, the social forces would have produced a revolutionary war for independence. But the role of Washington was that of a leader and organizer. Certainly Washington's administrations, (he had two) left the common people much disappointed. And this was probably because of Hamilton's influence. Paine, who passionately sang Washington's praises through the years of war, wrote an open letter to him of savage criticism.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 21.-After failing to prevent installation of the new progressive slate of officers in the Madison Federation of Labor (Central Labor Union), building trades leaders here announced they would carry their fight to the executive council of the American Federation of Labor.

At the Madison Federation's meeting Monday night, the building trades forces attempted to challennge the election held two weeks ago, but this effort was overwhelmingl defeated. Sol Reist, painter, then announced that the election would be protested to the executive council of the A. F. of L. on a claim that it violated a provision of the A. F. of L. constitution.

The building trades action was directed particularly at Cedric Parker, Newspaper Guild delegate n the Federation, who was elected treasurer of the Federation. This was admitted privately after the meeting by building trades leaders, who cited Parker's openly expressed C. I. O. sympathies. They pointed out that Parker has frequently attacked William Green and the executive council through his column, "Workers' Week," which is carried in the Capital Times.

WHAT THE MINERS WANT

New York seems far away from Nanty-Glo, Pa., or The Plains, Ohio, or the little mining towns of Logan County, W. Va. But it is in New York that the negotiations over the wages and conditions of the soft coal miners for the next two years is taking place-and it is here that the discussion will be resumed on next Wednesday.

It was in New York, also, that I learned what the soft coal miners want for these two years and why they want it. Thomas J. Kennedy, general secretary of the United Mine Workers, told me all about it for more than an hour. He was full of the subject and re readily quoted facts and figures to show that the miners' demands were imperative for any sort of modest living and that the coal industry could easily meet these demands.

Kennedy is Lieutenant-Governor of Pennsylvania, elected in the progressively growing landslides which have placed Pennsylvania in the Democratic column for the first time since the Civil War. He thinks constantly, however, in terms of the mining community and of the miners' problems. He can spin out for hours examples taken from this or that mining community, very frequently in the anthracite region; for it is from the anthracite that about the bituminous coal situation and about what the miners want for their new contract in the soft coal fields.

The case of the soft coal mmers, as presented by Kennedy, is a simple one. It can be put briefly as follows:

1. The demands made by the miners through the United Mine Workers are for conditions which are sorely needed. They are a further step toward getting the miner on his feet, after the chaos and wretched exploitation of a few years

2. The soft coal industry can easily meet these demands. Talk of competition from other fuels is beside the point, as soft coal is the cheapest of all fuels for commercial purposes and 86 per cent of the bituminous coal is used commercially, in manufacturing plants and the like.

"What is it that the soft coal miners want in their new agreement?" Kennedy, biting at the inevitable cigar that is always with him, answered: FOUR POINTS

"We are asking for four things, all of which are easily realizable. We want that 30-hour week and 6-hour day. At present the miner works 35 hours per week, with the 7-hour day. We want the basic rate for laborers raised from $5.10 in the South and $5.50 in the North to $6 per day in both sections, That would be $1 per hour. It would mean more money at the end of the week for less hours

He continued to speak through his cigar, emphasizing the next point:

"We want a guaranteed minimum annual wage of $1,200 per year, reached through the provision that the basic rate shall be paid for 200 days per year, whether the men work that amount or not."

Then he added: "We want two weeks' vacation with pay. The miner is certainly entitled to that. And," with great seriousness, "we want a commission to study the problem raised by growing mechanization, which should report back on the re-arrangement of hours and wages to meet that mech-

The United Mine Workers, he made it plain, is not fighting the machine; the union, on the other hand, insists that as the machine comes into the industry, that the problem of "technological unemployment" be met promptly by shortening hours, increasing wages, and other like measures.

THE PROBLEM OF THE MACHINE

"The machine system," he stressed, "needs a growing market to keep it going. At the same time, unless the unemployment which results now from the introduction of machinery is met, that market will be cut instead of increased. In other words, the machine system will commit suicide under those conditions, and the whole pyramid will topple with another collapse."

The machine is still "in what you might call an experimental stage in the bituminous coal industry," he stated, "but we know that once the machine comes in as it is doing today its use will spread. The union intends to cope with that problem before it becomes an overwhelming menace."

I remarked that that was a refreshing attitude in comparison to that of some of the craft unions, which had committed hari-kari by opposition to the machine and by refusing to organize machine workers. He smiled at that, and continued:

"More than 60,000,000 tons of bituminous coal were mined by machinery last year. This is about one-eighth of the total bituminous production. In some states the increase in the use of machinery was as high as 300 per cent in that one year alone. In the Pocahontas field of West Virginia, the big Inland Creek Collieries are now completely mechanized. In Montana and Wyoming, smaller mining states of course, the operations are mechanized practically 100 per cent. That has cut the personnel of our miners there almost in half. So far, the coming of the machine has always meant displacement of

INQUIRY COMMISSION

The commission which the United Mine Workers wants, Kennedy stated "would get the facts both on tonnage rates and day rates under the machine, compare them with the rates at non-machine work. and also learn definitely of the exact number of men displaced. From these facts recommendations would be made and demands could be formulated." "The coal operators say they cannot stand these incerased wage and lowered hour demands of the miners. What about that?"

"Well," he answered, slowly, "we think the industry can readily stand these demands. The operators on the whole are in better condition than they have been for years. Take the Pittsburgh Coal Company, the largest company dealing in commercial bituminous coal. It has had good years since 1934 and has made good profits. Besides, we say that the extra cost per ton in this case can be passed on the industries which buy the product. You must bear in mind," he repeated, "that 86 per cent of bituminous coal is used for commercial purposes and only 14 per cent is used domestically.'

"But the operators talk of competition from fuel oil and other products. What of that?"

"That is not really to the point," he said. "Fuel oil is not used instead of soft coal because of price. When it is used, it is because of luxury and convenience. In other words, a certain number of concerns would use fuel oil, regardless of price. As a matter of fact, bituminous coal in America is the cheapest in the world. That is because of the greater efficiency in production here. The output per man per day in this country is five tons; in England, on the other hand, it is not two tons.'

"All of this talk about oil being able to compete with coal doesn't come from the oil companies," he said, smiling, "it comes from the people selling the oil burners. Why, at the time that the Philadelphia City Hall was putting in oil instead of anthracite, the Atlantic Refining Company was changing from oil to anthracite. And Ed Cox, who is chairman of that refining company and a leading Republican politician in Philadelphia, declared that in the first year the greater cost of oil over anthracite in the heating of the City Hall was more than $60,000.

And anthracite, he emphasized, is costlier than "The operators say that these present demands will increase their costs 55 cents per ton. We think it is less than that, and we are generally right in our calculations. However, at the present time, the operators are lucky to get $2 per ton at the mine, because of their own disorganization. If we assume that they will get $2.50 at the mine per ton, that would not compare in cost in any way to natural gas and fuel oil. It would still be much cheaper. "This whole use of oil is tricky, anyway. The price of oil is scheduled for a big jump shortly. At $2 per barrel, the price will be prohibitive compared to bituminous coal. Even at $1.35 per barrel,

He also pointed out that the production of soft coal last year was increased to a total of 464,000,-000 tons, in comparison to from 350,000,000 to 400,-000,000 tons up to 1934. That increase took place despite so-called competition with other fuels.'

MINERS' LONG FIGHT

The demands now being made are a logical development of the progress in the miners' conditions since 1933, Kennedy stresses, and they are essential to put the soft coal miner on his feet. It was not a pretty picture that he painted of what the miner had gone through. "Before the organizational drive which accompanied the NRA," he said, "every kind of wages was being paid. In some places, they were as low as $1.50 per day. There were all kinds of working hours, no observation of any standards, no checkweighman. In many cases, payment was by the car instead of by the ton, and in some sections of the South there were no wage scales at all."

"We began in 1933 to organize in the South and in certain parts of Pennsylvania and continued to extend unionization. We started to build up wage scales and conditions from then on. The basic rate in 1933 became $4 per day for laborers; in 1934 it rose to $4.50 and in 1935 to $5.50. There was a 40 cents per day differential between the North and South in 1935, so that the basic rate for laborers was $5.10 per day there. At one time, the difference was as great as $1.50 per day, but we cut it down and now we are trying to eliminate it altogether."

The union, having accomplished these gains, now means to push on to a guaranteed annual minimum wage and to the other things which the miners need immediately.

Kennedy concluded with a reference to the fight being put up against the company union in the Frick Coal Co. in Western Pennsylvania, That is the chief weak spot of the miners' union. "We are making headway there," Kennedy stated, "but it is a hard, uphill fight, with the company using every weapon at its disposal."

ALL LABOR WATCHES PARLEY

That led him to refer to Billy Hynes, who is president of the Favette County miners. District 4 of the U. M. W. of A. "Hynes is a fighter," Kennedy declared, "and he has just gone through a harsh experience. He was beaten up in Saginaw by the detective agency mob of the automobile companies and has been in pretty bad shape."

I said I would like very much to see Hynes and learn of what took place at Saginaw. "That would be fine," Kennedy said, as we parted. "He is here now, for these negotiations. He will be glad to see you." Arrangements were made to see Hynes this

That made the present soft coal negotiations in New York seem closer not only to the coal towns but also to the battle fronts in the auto industry. What the miners are now striving for, through their powerful union, is being watched by more than the 400,000 bituminous miners. The eyes of many other workers are on it, expecting that the results to be won by the United Mine Workers, added to the outcome of the General Motors battle, will stimulate victory for the union in their own fields of labor.

The Committee for Industrial Organization, with its militant organizational policies, has brought the coal miners, auto workers, steel workers and all other working people closer together. What the 150 miners' union representatives are now seeking to win for the coal diggers in the bituminous fields, and what Kennedy referred to in his talk with me, are of the deepest concern to all the workers in the United States in this crucial year 1937.

Modesto Spy In Confession

Was Given $600 for Frameup Testimony by Standard Oil

(By the Maritime News Service) LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21 .- James Scrudder, chief prosecution witness in the Modesto Standard Oil frameup, told a State Assembly investigating comfmittee he "lied" when he confessed his trial testimony was perjured.

Scrudder insisted he testified truthfully at the trial in 1935, saying his confession was made to mislead questioners. The confession was recorded on dictaphone records in the home of William Briggs, film studio employe.

In the confession, which led to the Assembly investigation, Scrudder admitted that eight maritime union men convicted in Modesto of reckless possession of dynamite were framed

He told the investigating committee, however, that he was "suspici" ous" of Briggs and others who were asking him questions, and "lied to lead them on.' But he admitted receiving $600 from Standard Oil after the trial, plus a $5-a-day job. He admitted also he was being guarded by a private detective, W. J. Gordon. The latter acknowledged that Standard Oil hired him to "protect" Scrudder. The investigation will resume in San Francisco, where Scrudder and another prosecution witness, Harold Marchant, were acting as "undercover men" for Standard Oil during the 1935 tanker strike, when the Modesto case broke.

Members of the investigating committee are Assemblymen Jack B. Tenney, Inglewood, John G. Clark and Kent H. Redwine, Los Angeles, Paul A. Richie, San Diego, and Seth Millington, Gridley.

Administration sources indicated today that public hearings on the court question would begin soon and that opening of Senate debate within two or three weeks would be sought.

Sen. Theodore F. Green, Rhode Island Democrat, defended the Roosevelt plan, in a nationwide radio broadcast tonight.

The Supreme Court fight means one thingthat the reactionary cliques around Hearst and the Liberty League, defeated so badly in the November elections, are determined to reverse the elections. and the mandate for progressivism given by the American people.

In emphasizing this point, Earl Browder, secretary of the Communist Party, in his vigorous and lucid statement on the Court issue (see Daily Worker, Saturday, Feb. 20) clarifies the position which American labor and all progressive forces must take in the present fight.

"True enough," said Browder, "the steps proposed are the minimum without which no progress at all is possible. . . They express President Roosevelt's genius for finding the middle-of-the-road. They are not radical, they do not go to the roots of the question, they leave the main problem

"But," he emphasizes, "as a measure slightly relieving the present intolerable veto of the Supreme Court against all progressive legislation, Roosevelt's proposals must receive the unanimous labor and progressive support. . . Therefore, anyone who brings forward any proposal on the Supreme Court today as an alternative to the President's proposals is automatically helping the Liberty League, the

These words are the key to the present historic fight on the Supreme Court issue, an issue which has arisen at every period in American history when the rising movement of the people collided with the usurped power of the court tyranny.

In the Supreme Court fight, the reactionary forces of Hearst-duPont-Liberty League, are ganging up once more against the American people. But this time their forces are more inclusive than in November, and their strategy and organization better worked out.

In this new fight against the people, the Hearst-Liberty League reactionaries are hiding behind their latest allies, using in the forefront of their offensive the "radical"-talking Senators like Wheeler and Bone, and the formerly pro-Roosevelt press like the New York Times and the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain. In this new fight, stooges like Landon and Coughlin, mouthpieces for reaction, are still used for the attack, but are not placed in the front-line where the resentment of the American people could strike them a blow as in November.

This stark fact—that the same fascist-like enemy which was defeated in November now is pulling all the strings behind the furious opposition to Roosevelt's Court proposals, must dominate the thought and action of all progressive and labor forces in the present fight.

If there was any doubt that the Liberty League-Hearst crowd was preparing for a new assault against democracy in this country, then the clocklike speed with which the fight against the Roosevelt proposals was organized should dispel all doubt. When, on any issue, have the State legislatures throughout the country been mobilized with such concerted and rapid energy as on the opposition to the Supreme Court proposals? Just observe the way in which the Bar Associations, the Chambers of Commerce, etc., have been swiftly swung into line to gang up on the prorgessive, and protect the tyranny of the Supreme Court.

The struggle bids fair to outdistance the elections in the intensity of the fight and in the issues to be determined. For, the Supreme Court fight now becomes a test as whether the American people can retain their November victory and carry forward, or be robbed of it by the fascist-like cliques they defeated in November.

If the mandate given by the American people for social legislation and progress is to be carried through then the Supreme Court fight must be won. If the Hearst cliques win, then the carrying out of the November mandate becomes impossible. This is the main issue in the present fight.

The fight against changing the Court thus becomes a fight on the part of the reactionaries to curb the powers of Congress, to block social legislation, to restrict democracy, to encourage antilabor, anti-progressive measures in Congress and the States.

The cry of the reactionaries against "dictatorship," their sudden support for a Constitutional amendment which they lashed at "Socialism" in November, are part of their basic strategy to overturn the results of November. Their demand for an amendment is a piece of trickery calculated to throw a monkey-wrench into the fight for immediate changes in the Court. This is a trick to postpone action for many years. Their cry about "dictatorship" is a blatant piece of hypocrisy, since it is these Hearst-duPont forces which admire Hitler and Mussolini, and would like to Hitlerize America. This is a cry to divert attention from the fact that the Supreme Court oligarchy is the real dictator in American governmental politics.

But, if the Hearst pro-fascist cliques are marshalling their forces, so are the forces of the people marshalling for action. The people recognize their old enemy of November, and are preparing to deal

The Labor's Non-Partisan League, for example, which in November saw no need for an independent national convention, has indicated its intention of calling a national convention on the Supreme Court fight. Similarly, Senator Norris' call for a conference on March 18 will include sections of all progressive and liberal forces in American life. Large trade union groups which in November refused to act in a bold and independent manner, today are girding for action against the Liberty Leaguers. The masses are thus pressing forward in the fight to points beyond the November line-up. This will surely bring them farther along on the path toward a coalition of all forces of American anti-fascism into a Farmer-Labor Party, the American expression of the People's Front.

All progressive and anti-fascist forces now have the job of getting behind the LaFolletes and Mavericks in Congress, the progressives who see in Roosevelt's proposals not an alternative to more drastic steps, but the opening wedge, the first step in the fight to curb the court and restore to Congress its legitimate powers. It is our job to unmask "radical" talk of Wheeler and Bone in the Senate in opposition to Roosevelt's proposals, and which, whatever their intentions, makes them tools of the fascist cliques around Hearst and the Liberty League. Because of their blindness to the immediate issue, their liberalism becomes a tool of the worst reaction.

American labor in its trade unions and other organizations, as well as every enlightened, socially conscious group in the country, must now concentrate on defeating the Liberty Leagues, Hearst, Coughlin, Landon, on winning the first stage in the fight to repudiate the intolerable tyranny of the Supreme Court dictators.

Place all pressure on your representatives to defeat the reactionary clique opposition to the Roosevelt court proposals!

The hope that the women of would use their newly granted civil equality to advance civilization was expressed today by Margaret Sanger, well-known fem-inist and founder of the birth control movement.

Writing from Chandler, Arizona, o Bishop Francis J. McConnell, vho is chairman of The North American Committee to Aid Span-ish Democracy, Mrs. Sanger joined with outstanding American women in many fields of activity in heraldng the decree issued last week by Minister of Justice Juan Garcia Oliver, at the temporary Spanish capital at Valencia, abolishing the "archaic privilege" of their husbands and awarding to women a civic equality "without limits other

Said Mrs. Sanger: "The Spanish government in granting civil equality to women is only doing what is consistent with principles of Socialist liberal thought throughout the world. The Spanish women have a great responsibility in using this power to advance civilization by curbing the Fascist ideas and ideals of women as pack animals and breeders. "The action of the Spanish Loyalist government in giving complete civil equality to the women of Spain,' said Miss Hurst, "is in my opinion eloquent commentary on the liberated thinking that has at last succeeded in getting strong hold of a country that has been languid about availing herself of certain of our more glorious prerogatives of modern times.

A prophecy that Spain's newly emancipated women will further the cause of world peace, came from the terrible carnage that is going on in Spain, there is one gleam of hope: that in the granting of civil equality to the women of Spain there may never again be any such bloodshed, since the women of the world have dedicated themselves to world peace.

The Loyalists have by this act lined up with the progressive democratic countries of the world ,according to Mrs. Alexander Brin of Minneapolis, president of the National Council of Jewish Women. Mrs. Brin declared that "lovers of democracy must rejoice in the step taken by the Spanish government in giving equality to its women. By taking this position as to the place and rights of women the Loyalists have lined up with the progressive democratic countries.'

Legislative Letter, Published by Communist Party, Proposes Concrete Measures to Maintain Peace—Write Your Congressman Today

Declaring that discussion on new neutrality legislation before Congress has reached a crisis, the first issue of the Legislative Letter, published by the Communist Party, proposes concrete measures for collaboration of the United States with other nations to help maintain world peace.

The present neutrality act expires May 1, and numerous proorial ceremony this morning was posals are being offered for a revision and extension of the law. Revealing that the previous legislation speeded the danger of war rather than allayed it, the Legislative Letter after showing how the various proposals such as the 'cash-and-carry" amendment, are really un-neutral features, puts forward the Communist Party proposals in lieu of so-called neutrality legislation to help keep American out of war. Y. C. L. Pre-Convention Discussion

The Building of an Enthusiastic Mass League

By John Marks (State Organizer, Illinois Young

Communist League)

The question I wish to deal with is one which Gil Green emphasized in his report: building and improving the quality of the Young Communist League. We have discussed how to make the Y. C. L. a normal, average organization, with a constitution, by-laws and regular rules of procedure. It is necessary, however, to pose another problem how can we make the Y. C. L. stand out in contrast to all other organizations, or to put it in another way how can we give the Y. C. L. its own personality.

In carrying on our recruiting, we are often confronted with the question, what value is there in belonging to the Young Communist League? We have not answered this properly in many cases. Our appeal has been limited. We often deal with abstract idealism, we merely promise youth a future socialism. True enough, a youth movement must appeal to ideals, but if it offers little more than that, its power of attraction is greatly narrowed. We must offer youth something more than the International Workers Order, the American Student Union, and other organiza-

Pittman Act Puts World Peace in Peril

· In the haste to rush through an innocentsounding "neutrality" law by May 1, the lives of millions of Americans and the cause of world peace is being put in jeopardy.

Senator Pittman, author of the "neutrality resolution" against Spanish democracy, has already published the draft text of a new neutrality law proposed to take the place of the resolution which expires May 1.

Outside of incorporating the anti-democratic Spanish "neutrality resolution" as a principle, there is little fundamental change in what is offered to the American people as a permanent neutrality law.

The most distinctive feature of the new neutrality law proposed is its UN-NEU-TRALITY.

If the peace of the world is the desideratum, then a neutrality resolution which dictates that an aggressor and its victim are to be treated alike is not neutrality either in name or in fact. It is a menacing invitation to the Fascist aggressor powers to continue their provocation, with the assurance beforehand that American democracy will not collaborate with other democracies to help maintain world peace.

To counteract the aid afforded to the Fascists in Spain by the "Spanish neutrality resolution," Senator John T. Bernard, with the support of 17 other representatives has proposed a resolution to prevent arms shipments to the German, Italian and Portuguese dictatorships. Here is a specific act, to fit a definite danger of world war, that should receive the backing of every peace-loving individual in the United States.

But the Pittman so-called "neutrality bill" should be tabled as a menace to world peace. In its place, the Communist Party proposes that the only way to keep America out of war is to help keep war out of the

The Communist Party proposes that in the event of the danger of war, or an actual war between two or more nations, the Kellogg Peace Pact be invoked. Collaborating with other signatories of this pact, the United States can then enforce an embargo against the aggressor power, the nation threatening world peace. Such an aggressor can be defined as that state which first declares war upon another state, or which uses its armed force, with or without declaration of war, to invade another state. Furthermore, an aggressor should be defined as an armed party or faction which by insurrection seeks to overthrow a democratic gov-

The Pittman neutrality resolution should be rejected as a distortion of what the American people understand by neutrality. The peace which the American people so ardently desire to maintain can be preserved by collective action under already existing legislation and treaties.

NOT Quack "Remedies" And NOT Neglect

· Cancers cannot be cured by quack and dangerous "remedies." Reputable medical authorities have affirmed that, over and over again. Neither can they be ended by that neglect that allows them to grow from day

The same rule applies to labor racketeering, as evil a growth within the trade unions as cancer within the human body. In New York at the present time we have seen a trial progressing, in which widespread racketeering is charged to certain former leaders of the American Federation of Labor food workers' unions and to certain bosses. In the midst of the trial, we now witness the murder of Norman Redwood, disclosing an unhealthy relation somewhere between employing interests and corrupt union elements in other A. F. of L. unions.

We have had plenty of other examples of the despicable use of unions for racketeering purposes in the past, in the long roll of Brandles, Commerfords, Brindells and others of their ilk. At this moment, however, racketeering is not only preying on the union memberships. It is also being used as an excuse, ironically enough, by the same capitalist interests which breed racketeering, to force incorporation of the unions and to attack the militant drives of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

These Big Business Racketeers of the American Liberty League and the other Open Shop interests cry out for the virtual destruction of the unions, through incorporation, as the alleged means to end racketeering. They are proposing nothing more nor less than quack and dangerous "remedies." The unions must fight such effortsincluding the entering wedge brought forward by Assemblyman James Wadsworth, Jr., in the New York legislature - to the finish.

Labor racketeering owes its origin in every instance to corrupt collusion between employers and corrupt labor leaders. It comes from the employing interests, is nurtured by them, and finds its ground in those unions led by class-collaboration officers. That is the root that must be struck at, if racketeering is to go.

It is a notorious fact that William Green and the class-collaboration leaders of the A. F. of L. executive council have winked at racketeering. And why? Because labor racketeering flows logically and almost inevitably from their own policy of building the unions through the bosses' favor and not through the workers' drive and strength. This method is that which permits the racketeering cancer to grow by criminal neglect.

We note the testimony of Irving Epstein, one of the defendants in the cafeteria racket trials, to the effect that President Joseph P. Ryan of the Central Trades and Labor Council, turned a deaf ear to protests against Dutch Schultz "taking over" Local 302.

What has Ryan to say about that? What has he done to wage war on labor racketeering? This same Ryan was wined and dined by the big employing interests for his war upon the "reds" in the International Longshoremen's Association, those very progressive elements which would rid the unions of racketeering and reactionary leadership. What has Ryan done about the pier loading racket, which flourishes in the centers of the I.L.A. on which his own power depends?

Those class-collaboration labor leaders who condone labor racketeering or engage in it are notorious for their war upon the "reds." They are the enemies of any progressive forces that rise up within the unions. They are the pampered pets of the American Liberty League and Open Shop interests who cry out for labor incorporation.

Big Business, which breeds labor racketeering, will not clean out this cancerous growth from the unions. It is the trade union membership and honest trade union officials and organizers who will do that necessary job.

Detroit: A Message To Craft Unions

· American Moneybags have made much use of the old French proverb, "Nothing succeeds like success." They are now learning that it can be applied also by the workers.

Detroit is a case in point. The significant victory of the sit-down strikers in the General Motors plants has stimulated organization in many other crafts and industries. Unionization has become contagious.

There is the Detroit News. For years it has been a notoriously anti-union newspaper. The Printing Pressmen's Union has made numerous efforts to get a good foothold there. All of these attempts have failed. That is, they did fail - until last

Then, the pressmen sat down, spurred on to do so by the sit-down successes all about them. The newspaper lost a couple of editions. In double-quick time, the management settled with the union. That foothold which had been tried for these many years was attained in a few hours.

In his dispatch from Detroit in our Saturday's issue, George Morris gives a striring resume of what is afoot in the way of organization, in the wake of the great automobile campaign. Five thousand workers are sitting down in 12 Detroit plants.

Four cigar factories are thus affected. The Bakery and Confectionery Workers International Union have such strikes on in pie and cake bakeries. There are bed springs manufactories so tied up, and stamping works and upholstery and refrigeration supply plants. Sit-downs have been settled in food products, frame and carving, and in other lines of work, upon terms favorable to the strikers.

Thus, we see on the wave of the big organizational campaign in the dominant industry in the Michigan metropolis that many other workers are being organized and are winning their strikes. This was bound to be the case. When the giant trustified industry that dominates the scene begins to be unionized successfully, the miscellaneous trades follow in short order-if proper advantage is taken of the situation.

Members of the craft unions connected with the American Federation of Labor can now see definitely what a great benefit the drives of the Committee for Industrial Organization are to their respective unions. The C.I.O. is forging ahead in the mass production industries. But each advance that it makes is a mighty stimulus to workers in the miscellaneous trades to organize. Waiters, waitresses, barbers, printers, painters and the rest receive new courage to raise the banner of unionism.

The C.I.O. campaign, as the Daily Worker has emphasized, is not only for the benefit of the mass production workers. It will also

World Front

- By HARRY GANNES

· The hand grenades thrown at Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, Mussolini's Viceroy in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, was a way of telling the world that the Ethiopian people are continuing the fight against Italian Fascist domination.

True, the battle of the Ethiopian people is a defensive and retreating one, but carried on long enough, paralleling the anti-Fascist battles elsewhere, particularly in Spain, it can become the straw to break the Italian Fascist camel's back.

It is hard to conceal the fact in Italy that the Mussolini dictatorship is jittery over the latest Ethiopian incident. The fear is frankly expressed that the explosion might be the signal for an uprising in the territories already dominated by Mussolini's murderers. Whatever the truth, Mussolini is faced with the prospect of sending more troops to Ethiopia when his Spanish ally, Franco, is virtually on his knees begging for reinforcements, despite the so-called blockade.

Since the Italian government has not published a financial statement for more than a year or, that matter, any statistics whatever on its economic condition, we may with safety infer that every million lira of added war expense helps dig a hole underneath the fascist dictatorship.

Even with complete military rule over Ethiopiaa matter of years yet, if ever-this colony would be the hardest African country to exploit. As the latest events prove, the native people are the first obstacle, even though counted in the Italian press as "conquered." With time, the Ethiopian masses will learn new tactics also. Second, the geography of the country makes railroad construction the most costly in the world; and third, the capital requirements are entirely beyond the possible financial capacity of Italy.

A little while back the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, in its Information Service, essayed an approach to the Spanish situation. The result is one of those "on-the-one-hand-and-then-on-theother" attempts that the fascists prefer next to outright support. The author of the Information Service's editorial on Spain seemed to miss the fundamental fact: Here is a fight of democracy versus fascism Liberal on so many other points, it is surprising that the Federal Council of Churches of Christ should be so hesitant on this fundamental issue of democracy and world peace.

"Any estimate of the Spanish situation at the present time," says the Information Service, "must necessarily be unsatisfactory at many points because of the impossibility of making judgments based on facts."

Whatever the contradictory reports from day to day, the fundamental facts can not and have not been denied. The present government of Spain was legitimately elected by a popular vote on February 16, 1936, when the majority of the Cortes members were chosen from the slate of the People's Front. On July 17, five months after the elections, the Fascists in Spain, together with the Army officers, and assisted by Hitler and Mussolini, began a murderous civil war against the democratic government. Can any of this be denied by anybody?

We wish to draw the attention of the Federal Council of Churches to the conclusion on the Spanish situation of so host le a force to the people of Spain as "The Investors' Review" of Great Britain. On January 23, 1937, "The Investors' Review," a publication catering to speculators and financial gamblers, declared with regard to Spain:

"The plain and indisputable fact is that a majority government (not nearly so Red as it is sometimes represented) against which the puppet Franco re-

To stand aside now is to permit Hitler and Mussolini unhampered to determine the outcome of the uprising against Fascism in Spain.

Nor can anyone simply with a shrug of the shoulders escape from the plain meaning of defeat or victory of the democratic government of Spain. Victory for Fascism is a defeat for democracy everywhere and brings the day of war nearer to everyone. Even Secretary of State Hull recognized the fact that "war anywhere threatens peace everywhere." The loss of democracy anywhere threatens liberty bring tremendous gains to the craft unions.

In contrast to this healthy development repudiate the strikebreaking policies of the reactionary executive council, and demand that these be changed—in the interests of unity and of the welfare of the American in Detroit and other places, William Green and the A. F. of L. Executive Council continue their dog-in-the-manger policy of injuring the labor movement. Their decision to "study" the "legality of the sit-down strike," with a view to condemning it, comes at the same time that the United States Chamber of Commerce has the same strikebreaking move on foot.

For their own welfare, the members of the craft unions can do nothing more effective than rally to the support of the C.I.O. and its great drives in automobile, steel, textiles and other industries. They can also

Trotzkyists Revealed as Breeders Of War by Moscow Trial Evidence

By MAX BEDACHT-

ARTICLE II.

Socialism cannot be built in one country, said Trotzky. The peasantry of Russia, he asserted, could not be made an instrument of socialist construction. This peasantry, it is true had made common cause with the workers against their common enemy the landlords and capitalists. But, assured Trotzky us, that is where the revolutionary mission of the peasantry ended and where the antagonism between the proletarian state and the peasantry

Because of this theory Trotzky opposed the policies of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union and its leader Stalin. This policy called for a parralel effort of rapid industrialization of production in general and of rapid collectivization of agricultural production in particular. Trotzky made a bid for leadership in the Communist Party in the Soviet Union on the basis of his program against Stalin and his program. The party rejected this bid of Trotzky decisively. The masses of the Soviet Union rejected it with equal decisiveness. For Trotzky it was always more important that he should be proven right then that the revolution should be right. It was natural, therefore, that he should grab every possible straw in an effort to keep his theories floating. Every act of sabotage committed kulaks against the collectivization of agriculture and against agricultural collectives was joyfully accepted by him as a proof of his being right. Conscientious revolutionists condemned such acts as dastardly crimes against the worker's state. From welcoming acts of sabotage it was only a short step to organiz-

COLLECTIVIZATION ADVANCES

Then came the great advance in the building of Socialism in the Soviet Union. The narrow horizon of capitalist ideology in the peasant masses, upon which Trotzky based his theories, broke down, as the tractors, the gang plows and the harvesters of the farm collectives broke down the fences around the individual parcels of land of the peasants

The very process of building Socialism accomplished what capitalist apologists had always declared to be impossible: it changed "human nature." The narrow capitalist individualism of the peasantry was transformed into socialist collectivism. Thus the efforts of building socialism made by the Communist Party of the Soviet Union under the leadership of Stalin created its own conditions for success. In spite of Trotzky and his theories, Socialism was being built in the Soviet land. Marx, Lenin, and Stalin were proven to be right. Trotzky, as so often in his life, was proven wrong.

The process of collectivization of agriculture changed the human nature of the peasants of Russia, but the success of building socialism could not change the human nature of Trotzky. If the issue had merely been the best method of building socialism could be built at all under existing conditions, the issue would have been finally and decisively settled by the success of the policy of the Communist Party and its leader Stalin. But it was not in the "human nature" of Trotzky to fight on the basis of such an issue. For Trotzky the fight was around the issue of Trotzky and Trotzky's prestige. The issue Trotzky fought about was not the success of socialism but the success of Trotzky.

STEP BY STEP

In the course of this fight Trotzky had become the gathering point all the capitalist vultures and jackals in and out o fthe Soviet Union. These lovely creatures still hoped for the day on which they could fatten on the dead body of the Soviet land and its defeated working class. Trotzky became the leader, as well as the tool, of these creatures. So, although the conditions had changed on which Trotzky had based his theories and predictions, he clung to both. Since he could no longer depend on conditions to prove his theories and to realize his predictions that socialism could not be built in Russia, he began to create his own forces and his own conditions for the defeat of socialism in the Soviet Conspiracy became his method, sabotage, assassination and treachery became his means to this

We need not the midwifery of hypnotism, of drugs, nor of mystic powers, to explain the metamorphosis of the Trotzky of yesterday into the pitiful and despicable traitor of today. Trotzky's development is logical. It can be traced from phase to phase; it started with the egg of his theory that socialism could not be built in Russia, entered the caterpillar stage of an organized opposition faction in the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, went through the cocoon stage of uniting all opposition elements against Socialism in the proletarian state of the Soviet Union and ended up with the emergence of the finished poisonous scorpion of a counter-revolutionary organization, carrying out sabotage and assassination within the Soviet Union and conspiring with fascist murderers against the Soviet Union

by Ellis

BREEDERS OF WAR

But Trotzkyism is not only fighting against the Soviet Union. The labor movement everywhere is fighting for the worker's interests, is defending the worker's rights, is attacking fascism and is fighting against war. Trotzky and his coconspirators, the Trotzkyites, play a treacherous role not only against the position of working class power in the Soviet Union; they play this role against the worker's positions and organizations everywhere.

The last years of capitalist crises and the resulting mass misery of the workers have weakened the usefulness of the open agents of capitalist reaction within the ranks of The workers are the workers. awakening. They move toward independent political action. move toward militant industrial unionism. They move toward becoming an ever more conscious force for progress.

In this emergency of capitalism Trotzkyism comes to its rescue Under the cloak of revolutionary virtue Trotzkyism tries to play the role of saviour of capitalism in the ranks of the workers. The Ryans, Hutchesons, and Wolls are becoming more and more useless for the capitalists in this role because the workers are rapidly losing confidence in them.

That is why capitalism and its journalist agents go through their many contortions in efforts to save the memory of Trotzky as a revolutionist.

We, however, see Trotzky and the Trotzkyites as the trials in Moscow have revealed them—as treacherous counter-revolutionary allies and agents of capitalism and fascism, and as breeders of war.

'Labor's Strength In Unity'

Brooklyn, N. Y.

Editor, Daily Worker: Smalltown was the name of the town. And it was a small town. Old Man Small was the Mayor, President of the Bank and Owner of the mill in which most of the town folks worked.

Hank, my friend, worked there. So did Hank's father before he kicked off on account of pneumonia. It seems as though a lot of men died in Smalltown from pneumonia. Maybe it was because it was always 100 degrees in the mill. And while we worked that damned freight door would be opening and closing all the time and the cool wind would come rushing in, sending chills down our backs.

One cold day a couple of us went upstairs to tell the boss we couldn't keep working because of the draft and freight door. It was giving us stiff necks and pains in our chest and backs. The boss told us that we knew what we could do if we didn't like it. We went back to work. Hank got sick with pneumonia. I was sitting there chewing a muffin and looking at a copy of the Small-. town Scribe which reported that J. M. Small left for Florida last night at 8:30 P.M. for an indefinite period Further in the corner I read that Hank Danter died last night at 8:30 P.M. in the Smalltown Hospital. He is survived by his wife and three children.

The only way to prevent these useless occurrences of loss of life and grief is to organize the workers. Labor's strength lies in its unity.

Brooklyn, N. Y. Editor, Daily Worker:

For the past four years, I have been a cashier in a number of theatres throughout the boroughs. I used to work full shift at a very low wage, seven days a week. I had very little organizational experience, but I became acquainted with other cashiers, and with the cooperation of the ushers we signed petitions demanding double shifts and higher wages. The manager of one particular theatre posed as a sympathizer, but being afraid that he may lose his job if he was involved told the boss and had me fired.

Immediately the boss notified the theatre agency of my "red" activities. However, the fight was continued. We won. The great majority of theatres now have two cashiers.

MEN OF JAPAN SEE A LIGHT

By MIKE GOLD-

TOW impossible it is, in the capitalist press, to get even the simplest facts about the life of the people of different lands. The reporters get all their news from the official government bureaus. They send us, uncritically, the pompous lies of diplomats and tyrants. They never seem to have the slightest contact with the people of a country. The things that are said in the factories and streets are a closed secret to these highly-paid correspondents; yet this secret world of popular thought is what finally determines history. But these ignorant, unimaginative, cynical reporters never know what is about to happen; they are wise only after the event.

Take Japan, for example. There was a cabinet blow-up recently, and the world was amazed to read of the passion and courage with which the fascist-militarists were attacked in the Diet. Evidently the workers and liberals of Japan were

But this was no sudden explosion; it was the reflection of a big popular movement that has been going on for years. Millions of Japanese hate their own militarists; and a Popular Front against fascism is in formation. But you would never learn this secret shared by millions of people from a reading of the capitalist press.

No, siree, the blighters don't even know their own bloody business-or maybe they know it too well.

In the Darkest Hours

Japan was moving more rapidly to a social revolution than almost any other country until 1933. Then the fascists began to clamp down; and in proletarian literature, the repression was symbolized by the murder in a Tokio police-cell of that youthful genius, Takaidsi

This was indeed one of the saddest events in recent history, which is so full of fascist horror and murder. Kobayashi was the young Gorki of the Japanese Revolution. Proletarian literature had become one of the two main currents of modern literature in Japan, and Kobayashi was its leader.

"Broken is the staff of the flag of revolutionary literature," mourned some of the proletarian writers who gathered at his grave. And in a year, in fact, the Japanese Union of Proletarian Literature dissolved. This was due, not only to the repressive measures of the police, but was also a result, largely, of the defeatist attitude of the group which headed the Union at the time.

Everything seemed lost; it was the darkest year in the history of Japanese revolutionary literature. Reactionary circles, now that the Union was dissolved, began a series of attacks a la H. L. Mencken and James Farrell, asserting that this was the end of something that never should have existed.

A few traitors, former members of the Writers' Union, even began to write about their "accursed" past, going into details about their "inner struggles" as revolutionary writers, returning to Japanese nationalism in the sickening manner of our type of such worms like Gilbert Seldes and Harold Stearns.

These "confessions" they called a new trend of psychological realism in literature. At the same time, a flood of cheap fascist-military "literature," a la Floyd Gibbons, was let loose over all Japan.

Yes, it looked like the end of all that is dear to an honest revolutionary author, and then as if to defy the very gods of treachery and gloom, a book of short stories, called "Prison," appeared. They were written by the promising young writer, Kensaku Simagi.

How to Win a Second Prize

Simagi had spent four years in jail for his principles, and his stories were all concerned with the life of political prisoners.

During the past eight years there have been some 30,000 such prisoners in Japan. The theme has been a favorite one in Japanese literature. But Simagi's stories broke away from the schematic writing that had been the bane of revolutionary literature.

"He has succeeded in creating some extraordinarily live characters," writes the theatre director, Seki Sano, from whose report I have gathered these facts. "None of these revolutionists is depicted They are full-blooded real men. weep in moments of profound misery, suffer agonies because they vacillate, undergo fearful inner struggles. Simagi avoids both sentimentality and pessimism."

It was no wonder that the Japanese Society for Literary Relations, whose membership consists of the most prominent bourgeois authors, decided to award this book its second prize for the year. The decision was annulled by Matsumato, ex-chief of police and organizer of the Society, who declared "it is inconvenient to award a premium to a writer who is struggling against the present social order.'

But the book has had twenty editions. And it has given courage to hundreds of other writers and intellectuals in Japan. And Simagi has taken up the banner that fell from the hands of the murdered young Kobayashi.

"We are suffering, but we can see a light," said Simagi in a recent essay. "By struggle a way out will be found."

All this fascinating account of the course of Japanese literature I did not read, of course, in any one of the literary newspapers or magazines our bourgeois intellectuals put out in such profusion. They always fail to tell us the most important news in the world.

The report appeared in "International Literature," published in Moscow, city of world truth.

Where East and West Meet

We, the people of the different lands, need to know more about each other. America and Japan may one day be thrown into a war against each other by the capitalists. Let us constantly learn more about our comrades, in such future misery, the mournful and hungry people of Japan.

This bunk about the differences between western and Oriental psychology! There is one of the great lies used by the capitalists to make war. Does the foregoing account of Japanese literature sound different from what happens in Germany or America?

I was reading the life of Hokusai the other day. He was a famous Japanese artist who lived around the year 1800. Having no contact with the west, he yet followed the exact line in art of the western revolutionaries. He was the first Japanese artist to break with the feudal tradition, to leave off painting courtiers and their beautiful concubines.

Hokusai painted the Japanese people; the fishermen, carpenters, water-carriers at their work; the proletarian mothers and children. The intellectuals despised him for it; now he is considered the father of modern Japanese art. Some of his social studies are bitter as Hogarth's, and show the contrasts of poverty and wealth. Hokusai to-, day could be drawing for the New Masses or Daily Worker.

And he was a Japanese who lived 150 years ago, at the time of So much for racial differences!

A DIFFERENT KIND OF CROWD

By Lester Rodney

HERE have been lots of crowds at the New York Hippodrome. The quaint old palace on 6th Avenue has been filled for the circus, for opera, for championship boxing and wrestling events.

But there never was a crowd there quite like that of Friday night for the basketball games for Spain. That crowd was completely unique.

Never before had a sports event been completely ignored by the capitalist press--and yet drawn 3,500 people into the Hippodrome. If you don't think that's something you should have seen the frankly amazed looks on the faces of the cynical boxing and wrestling promoters lounging in the lobby and corridors.

Something New Under a Roof

You wouldn't be risking your reputation if you said that the floor of this same Hippodrome had never before been deluged for twenty solid minutes with coins of all denonimations-pouring down in a veritable rain of pennies, nickels, quarters, halves and dollars from the heavens of the balconies and mezzanines.

That was the response to the brief appeal for contributions to the victims of fascism in Spain.

The old arena had never seen labor's own teams battling it out while labor's own band played and labors' own cheerleaders led roofraising cheers.

And to cap the evening there were two great professional teamsnot just going through their usual paid paces. They were caught up by the spirit that flowed from the upper reaches of the dimly lit gallery down to the horseshoe stage. They played with enough speed, skill and verve to make their professional managers mumble, "Why, the dirty bums have been holding out on us!"

It's difficult to decide which of the three games were the best. There was the opener-in which the I.W.O. came from behind to upset the Furriers. It may not have been art, or even top notch basketball, but it was real, spirited athletic competition and received as such. It may have been the second game-in which the girls of Locals

22 and 91 of the I.L.G.W.U. had the house by its collective ear. Or was it the great exhibition of skill put on by the ex-collegians and professionals who contributed their services to the fight against fascism? It may well have been at that, for no one was seen to leave the place till the last field goal was sunk-it was after midnight and the doors and exits were wide open.

A Real Thrill

And best of all was the fact that you couldn't forget for a moment that it was all for the grimly battling defenders of world democracy in Spain. There were no banners proclaiming it-yet you knew.

Row on row on row of dimly discernible faces fading into the upper reaches of the arena-and you knew they were all there for the same reason. And when the thrilling tune of "No Pasaran" came over the loud speaker system you could feel fists clenching. No, there never was a crowd in the Hippodrome or any other large

There are going to be more and more of them in days to come.
