Allan L. Benson Discusses the big Chicago Teamsters' Strike and Shows where the Government Comes in.

When engaged in any undertaking that is worth while, it is never bad strategy to pause for a moment and "take stock," as it were.

Dewey drew off his ships during the battle of Manila, it will be remembered, to ascertain how much ammunition was left in his magazines.

And at this time it is vastly more important that the striking Chicago teamsters should look the situation squarely in the face and be guided in their future actions by what they see.

For the battle now on in Chicago, it is but the fragment of a world-wide contest that is fraught with far greater consequences to the human race than was any battle that was ever fought on sea or land with iron-clads or armies.

Because the struggle in Chicago is a phase of the conflict between the class that MAKES wealth by its labor and the class that TAKES it after it is made by the very laws that the workers themselves have voted into being.

What, then, is the situation that confronts the Chicago teamsters?

Briefly, we should say, it may be summarized as follows:

For reasons that are at least satisfactory to themselves, a certain number of teamsters have decided that the material interests not only of themselves but of certain other members of the working class will be best promoted by the refusal of the teamsters to go about their usual duties.

And, on the other hand, a certain number of individuals and firms have decided that the material interests, not only of themselves, but of certain other members of their class will be best promoted by acquiescence in the refusal of the teamsters to work.

So far, so good. But this much, in itself, does not constitute an issue and therefore does not create a contest. The issue is created and the contest precipitated by the determination of the employers to get other men to take the places of the strikers—and the determination of the teamsters that other men shall not be permitted to take their places.

The outcome of the struggle, therefore, depends solely upon whether the attempts of the employers to import strike-breakers and keep them at work shall meet with success or failure.

And it is upon this all-important phase of the struggle that the striking teamsters of Chicago and the working class of the whole country, for that matter, should rivet their attention.

In speculating upon this phase of the matter, two facts are of supreme importance:

such interference; AND IF THE STATE MILITIA CANNOT PREVENT IT, THE UNITED STATES ARMY WILL.

Is there any doubt that if the United States army should attempt to prevent the strikers from interfering with the strike-breakers it would SUCCEED?

Is there any doubt that if the emergency shall arise, President Roosevelt will send enough federal soldiers to COMPEL observance of the laws, whether that army be 1,000 or 100,000 men?

Of the correct answers to these questions there should not and CANNOT be any doubt.

The strike-breakers who are pouring into the city by nearly every train have gone there to work.

AND THEY ARE GOING TO WORK.

If the Chicago police and the state militia combined cannot enable them to work, THE UNITED STATES ARMY WILL.

This is a sharp, clean, pulsating FACT, and it is better to reckon with it now than later.

The strike of the teamsters' must, therefore, because of its own inherent weakness, FAIL.

It must FAIL just as the packers' strike failed.

It must FAIL just as the New York subway strike failed.

It must FAIL just as every great strike of organized labor against organized capital must henceforth fail.

It must FAIL because capital has met organization WITH organization; because it has applied the Farley process to the simple task of drawing enough men from the great army of the unemployed to break ANY strike and shifting them from place to place upon the industrial chess-board as they are needed.

But if these facts be conceded—and we do not see just how they can be refused—where lies the remedy?

Must American labor be ground down farther and farther until it wallows in the dust of the road?

We think not.

The remedy is at hand to be used wherever labor has the intelligence to use it.

But the remedy lies NOT in the autonomous or industrial unions that have served a very useful purpose up to this time.

It lies NOT in the application of the stone and the bludgeon to strike-breakers—fragments of the great army of the unemployed—who go to Chicago at this time NOT because they like to tempt death for a pittance, BUT BECAUSE THEIR NECESSITIES ARE SO GREAT THAT THEY ARE WILLING TO UNDERGO ALMOST ANY TORTURE TO GET THE WORK THAT MEANS BREAD FOR THEMSELVES AND THEIR FAMILIES.

The remedy, as we have said, lies not in any of these directions.

But rather does it lie in the direction of the ballot box.

That is the word that strikes terror to the capitalist class whenever it is spoken in earnest by workingmen.

Workingmen are told by their capitalist friends that "good" labor unions are all right; and there are sometimes even favorable press notices in capitalist papers for labor leaders like Mr. Gompers when they come to town.

But the capitalists never have a good word for anybody who proposes that the workingmen, who constitute an overwhelming proportion of the population, SHALL UNITE IN VOTING A TICKET THAT REPRESENTS THE INTERESTS OF THEMSELVES.

That is always reprehensible from the point of view of those who import strike-breakers.

Yet, did it never occur to you that the things that some men fear are the very things they ought to get? Burglars are not alarmed at the proximity of old ladies' sewing societies, but they ARE much afraid of the police.

To sum the situation all up in a word, the working class is suffering from unjust laws—laws that it made itself, by the way, by voting for political principles that were formulated to give some men advantages over others.

So long as those laws remain, the conditions that are the fruit of them will remain.

When unjust laws are replaced by good laws, the evil results of the unjust laws will disappear.

But unjust laws are wiped out in congresses and parliaments—not in labor union halls where strikes are engineered.

III. Profit in its entirety is Derived from the Exploitation of Labor.

In Marx's illustration of the process through which the capitalist exploits the worker, the view of that process is limited, for the sake of greater simplicity in the demonstration, to the operation of converting 20 pounds of cotton into 20 pounds of yarn. But this ought to be quite sufficient, since the same process applies with similar results to the production of the raw material and machinery. Nevertheless, I shall here extend it to these two fundamental items in order, first, to correct an important error of statement made by Comrade Ashplant concerning the actual cost of production, and, subsequently, for other purposes.

Let us first sum up the proposition as developed by Marx.

To the mill owner (personally) the cost of his operation is 27 shillings in gold. But the exchange value of the product is 30 shillings, for the simple reason that social labor time is the actual measure of value, and that five days of social labor are equally required to produce either 30 shillings of gold or 20 pounds of yarn (including cotton and worn out machinery).

For the raw cotton and the spindle worn out, embodying four days of social labor, the mill owner has paid full value to other capitalists, namely, 24 shillings. But for the labor power that has in one day converted the cotton into yarn, thereby producing an additional value of 6 shillings, he has paid only 3 shillings; hence—and hence only—his own profit of 3 shillings.

By these figures (which of course are hypothetical, but any change in which would not affect the reasoning) the rate of labor exploitation is one-half (or 50 per cent) of the value produced by the wage worker. Applying this rate to the raw material and machinery bought of other capitalists by the mill owner at their actual exchange value of 24 shillings, we would find that the total cost of production of the yarn, in wages paid by the capitalist triunity to the agricultural laborer who produced the cotton, to the machinist who produced the worn out spindle, and to the spinner who converted the cotton into yarn, was not 27 shillings (as erroneously stated by Ashplant), but only 15 shillings, or 50 per cent of the value of the yarn.

Now let us suppose that these various transactions between capitalists on the one hand, and between them and their respective wage workers on the other hand, instead of being carried on upon the money plan of settlement, are carried on upon the barter plan, each of the parties involved receiving his share in yarn. How will the result look?

The quantity of yarn produced is 20 pounds. Its labor cost is 10 pounds; namely, 8 pounds to the workers who produced the cotton and the spindle, and 2 pounds to the worker who spun the cotton into yarn. The profit is also 10 pounds, divided in the same proportions of 8 pounds to the employers of the labor that produced the raw material and the spindle, and 2 pounds to the mill owner.

This profit, as a whole, cannot by any conceivable operation of exchange, or by any operation whatever, short of a new miracle of the loaves and the fishes, be expanded into more than 10 pounds; nor can it be contracted into less. In the mercantile scuffle between the capitalists who partake of it, the mill owner may succeed in increasing his own share from 2 pounds to 3 pounds, thereby decreasing the share of his capitalist brothers from 8 pounds to 7; and conversely. But the profit, as a whole, remains 10 pounds, and it all comes from having bought for 10 a labor power that has produced 20.

Again, let us take another industrial group of capitalists and workers; the party has just passed a rule that it may have to sometime break.

Since writing the above, the New York Worker comes to hand with the admission that some such emergency as this might arise to upset present plans and rules. "We can conceive of such circumstances as would justify and even compel coalition of the Socialist party with some non-Socialist party, temporarily and for a definite purpose," it says. This matter of tactics is one that ought to be well discussed and calmly deliberated over.

Jack London's Experience with the "Cultured" Public

STRIKING SENTENCES FROM THE INTRODUCTION OF HIS FORTHCOMING BOOK ON CLASSES IN AMERICA. - RISE OF SOCIALISM.

When I was a youngster I was looked upon as a weird sort of creature, because, forsooth, I was a Socialist. Reporters from local papers interviewed me, and the interviews, when published, were pathological studies of a strange and abnormal specimen of man.

But the times changed. There came a day when I heard, in my native town, a Republican mayor publicly proclaim that "municipal ownership was a fixed American policy."

And then came the day when Socialism grew respectable,—still a vagary of youth, it was held, but romantically respectable. Romance, to the bourgeois mind, was respectable because it was not dangerous.

435,000—an increase of nearly 400 per cent in four years, the largest third-party vote, with one exception, since the Civil War.

And far be it from me to deny that Socialism is a menace. It is its purpose to wipe out, root and branch, all capitalistic institutions of present-day society.

As yet, to the average bourgeois mind, Socialism is merely a menace, vague and formless. The average member of the capitalist class, when he discusses Socialism, is condemned an ignoramus out of his own mouth.

It surely is time that the capitalist knew something about this Socialism that they feel menaces them. And it is the hope of the writer that the Socialistic studies in this volume may in some slight degree enlighten a few capitalistic minds.

Socialist Officials Under Capitalism.

By A. G. SANI TLEBEN, California.

From the Basler Nachrichten, a BOURGEOIS paper of Switzerland, not biased against Socialism, I find the following remarkable statements on practical experiments of municipalization as enacted in some communities of Italy:

"First we have to speak of the actions of the municipal council of Reggio Emilia, which municipalized one of the other: the gas plant, the slaughterhouse, the sale of meat, the ice plant, ice storage plants, the drug stores, and of late the bread production. In this city, whose municipal council is composed of Socialists, not only the bad experiences with the work of private parties or corporations, but also doctrinaire considerations may have been deciding in favor of communalization.

"Considerably ahead in the production of bread alone are the cities of Catania and Palermo. Here, as in all other southern parts of Italy, bread is the principal food of the not well-to-do population. In Catania, a city of 160,000 inhabitants, the necessity of municipalization of the bread produce arose out of the practices of a speculative consortium causing frequent rises in the price of bread, or in cases of strikes of the miserably remunerated causing bread famines, and furthermore out of awful hygienic conditions and fraudulent happenings which to stop there was no prescription of the law or of the police ordinances.

"A municipal committee examined the justification of the demands by a practical experiment comprising all departments of the manufacture of bread, and came to the conclusion that, calculating in also a solid profit, the price stipulated under municipal regime only 30 centimes (6¢ per 2 pounds), whilst the price of second quality has gone down to 25 centimes (less than 5¢ per 2 pounds) and for third quality to 20 centimes (less than 4¢ per 2 pounds) per kilo. Furthermore today the difference between the price of grain and the price of flour in Palermo is only 5 Lire (little less than $1), whilst in the years 1900 to 1902 it averaged $3.84 Lire ($1.72 $).

"In Palermo it was a flour mill owner and grain merchant grown overpowered by buying out the mills of weaker competitors who dictated arbitrary prices of flour the prices of bread and thus forced the municipal council to communalize the flour and bread production, after attempts to induce him to change his position towards the public interest had met with a complete failure.

"In the production of bread alone are the cities of Catania and Palermo. Here, as in all other southern parts of Italy, bread is the principal food of the not well-to-do population. In Catania, a city of 160,000 inhabitants, the necessity of municipalization of the bread produce arose out of the practices of a speculative consortium causing frequent rises in the price of bread, or in cases of strikes of the miserably remunerated causing bread famines, and furthermore out of awful hygienic conditions and fraudulent happenings which to stop there was no prescription of the law or of the police ordinances.

The Passion of Socialism.

"Since economic ends determine the movements of mankind, and since mankind is necessarily partitioned into economic classes, it is manifest that class interest must be the backbone of the Socialist movement. But it does not follow that class interest is to be its animating spirit. In the living body the body structure is out of sight; the fair surface is what appears to the eye of others and to the consciousness of the creature itself. So, in the progressive social movement, class interest may be regarded as the structure. But it is not the sense of class interest which arouses moral enthusiasm. It inevitably associates men in efforts toward common aims, but it does not awaken in them that passionate fervor which makes for a regenerative movement. The true heart and spirit of the movement is the passion for social justice. And this passion is diffused throughout the great body of a class only when it sincerely and righteously identifies its interests with the interests of all men."—Mass and Class, pp. 253-254.

Gleanings from Busy Socialistic Fields!

It is reported from St. Louis that admission to the party has been denied a certain notorious Dr. Fry, a professional disorganizer. There are others!

IN YANKEE LAND. Comrade W. J. Bell of Tyler, Texas, has been made temporary state secretary.

Comrade George A. Little has been elected national committeeman from New Hampshire.

Comrade F. G. Strickland will be the speaker at the big river excursion to be made by the St. Louis comrades July 9.

The Crestline head hunting resolutions have been endorsed by a number of village movements throughout the country.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox says that she found a large amount of Socialist sentiment during her recent trip to California.

The impossibilist Referendum now says the impossibilist Socialist Voice of Oakland, Cal., is a "populist sheet." That's too funny!

Cincinnati comrades have issued a circular of warning against a Referendum League, and against "reform" movements in general.

The comrades of New York held their city convention on Tuesday, choosing candidates and preparing for a vigorous municipal campaign.

The Socialists of Chicago will make a lake excursion to Milwaukee on the big whaleback steamer, Christopher Columbus, on Sunday, July 25.

Comrade Ida Crouch-Hazlett, who has been doing propaganda work in the East, will return to the West in a week or so, beginning in the state of Washington.

Comrade Dan White of Massachusetts has been secured by the comrades of Connecticut to put in four months of agitation work in that state.

The contest over the party name in New York is not yet over. Beaten in the appellate court the Democrats have now appealed to the Court of Appeals at Albany.

It now transpires that the passage of the infamous Minneapolis head-hunting resolutions was accomplished by a trick. But we are all comrades just the same—and honorable gentlemen!

Comrade Walter Thomas Mills will be the speaker this year at the annual Wisconsin Social-Democratic picnic at Schlitz Park, Milwaukee. If there ever was a whirlwind speaker, Mills is the man, and he gives his hearers not a whirlwind of wind, but a whirlwind of good, unmistakable logic.

The Crestline, Ohio, head-hunting resolutions have been endorsed, since last report, by Fostoria, Seneca county, O., and Shelby, Richland county, O. Thus far no action has been taken at Smith's Crossroads, O., or Punkville Siding, Posey county, Ind.

Impossibilism is getting pretty rampant in the movement throughout the country and it especially shows its strength when a head-hunt is on. Patience will cease to be a virtue before long and an outraged decent membership will arise and throw off the element that is poisoning the party and making it ridiculous in the eyes of sensible people.

The June number of the International Socialist Review, which completes the fifth year of its publication, is one of the very best numbers it has ever issued. The opening article is a translation of a discussion by Karl Kautsky of "The Differences among Russian Socialists." Kautsky attacks the position which has been taken by many Socialists that the Terrorists are the real center around which any unity of Russian revolutionary forces must be grouped.

He gives the historical origin of the various parties and shows in how remarkable a manner the one country that was long supposed, even to some extent by Marx himself, to be an exception to the Marxian laws of historical development, is now giving a striking exemplification of the working out of these laws. Carl D. Thompson considers "Wisconsin and her Critics," giving the Wisconsin side of the present controversy. The editor tells what he thinks about the same subject editorially.

ACROSS THE POND.

The "Dziennik Poznanski" reports that on a single day in April thirty-six Jewish and sixty other Socialists were executed in the citadel of Warsaw, Russian Poland. The faces of the Jewish Socialists had been disfigured before the execution to make the victims unrecognizable.

Socialism is steadily advancing in South Africa. Organizations have been formed in several towns and at Durban, the chief city in Natal, a little paper, the Socialist Spark, is being printed. The news that Olive Schreiner, the famous author, has joined the Socialist movement is being received with satisfaction.

Significant of the kind of marksmanship that is expected of soldiers in battle is the fact that Russia is placing orders for 400,000,000 rifle cartridges. That is enough to kill every man, woman and child in Japan and China, or every adult male in the world. War is something more than "hell"—it is vaudeville.

In January 823,856 paupers were reported in England and Wales. For the last five years we have the following figures for paupers: 1901, 707,446; 1902, 720,446; 1903, 742,938; 1904, 769,029; 1905, 823,856. Of these 823,856, but 256,346 are in the workhouses, the remainder being succored outside. Of the registered 128,182 paupers of London, 77,493 are in workhouses.

The trend of the Australian labor movement towards Socialism is, according to "Justice," London, stronger than hitherto reported, the convention of the political party league held at Sydney having with 80 against 50 votes decided to place the labor party upon a more Socialistic basis. The opposition came mostly from labor M. P.'s, who were afraid for their own political prospects, but Comrades Cann and Morrish met successfully all objection, whilst T. C. Watson, the former premier minister and head of the short-lived labor ministry of the Australian Federation, courageously stood with all his influence for Socialism, which he had been fighting hitherto.

Albuquerque, New Mex., May 22. Social-Democratic Herald. Gentlemen: THERE IS A CERTAIN MINING COMPANY IN YOUR CITY THAT OUGHT TO BE MADE TO SHOW ITS HAND.

Jolts for Thoughtless Men

"The most fascinating women are those that can most enrich the every-day moments of existence."

A woman who spends half her time in her kitchen, doing work we can do for her, can't find time or energy to be attractive.

If she has to worry about keeping down expenses, she can't very well look cheerful.

It wins the Heart of the Cook

There's no jest about gas saving AT LEAST A THIRD on fuel bills, and making the burden twice as easy for the housewife.

WE MAKE IT EASY FOR YOU TO BUY A GAS RANGE BY PAYING $2.00 A MONTH.

He loves his wife—she's thoughtless, that's all.

GOOD ADVICE. Purchase a House Safe of Hibbard & Richardson Co. and have your 'Safety Deposit Box' at home.

ton. This is entirely untrue, and they know it, and through their mismanagement the deeds have not been put on record, and they have sold several thousand dollars of stock, and they are claiming some of those in charge have got away with the funds...

I want it to be understood that the claims are good prospects and no doubt will make mines, if developed, and some of them are very true fissure veins, but do not run high on the surface...

Now appears a man in this city who is trying to get those who have given deeds to the c'ire company and received stock for them (as the deeds are not recorded), to redeem the same claims to a certain man, known as S. W. Young...

E. W. Marksbury, one of the Stockholders.

The fact that the new grand jury is made up of bourgeois entirely, that the working class, the only class not mixed up in boodling, is left off entirely...

According to the Daily News the street railway company has gotten possession of some of the city's water bonds and is prepared to go into the courts to require the city to pay back the water funds...

The Milwaukee central committee passed resolutions last Monday protesting against the unsocialistic action of the national committee in the so-called Berger case.

The city central committee of Racine will give a picnic in the New Union Park in that city on June 25. The park is just north of the city limits and is large and well suited for a good big celebration.

Carnival Ticket List. Previously reported... $2252.17. Paul Neumiller .75, Tony Hesse 1.50, Wm. Mueller .50, Jos. Kruta .25, E. Kelhoefer .50, J. Huseby .50, Wm. Dapper 1.50, Emil Hoffmeister 1.00, Otto Weber 1.00, Jos. Schmidt .75, Aug. Bolt .25, Aug. Megeburg 1.50, Anna Scharnek 1.50, Wm. Luehring .50, Fred. Texas .50, Jos. Korbel 1.50, Jos. Heim 1.50, 17th Ward Branch 2.25, Christ. Dunn 1.50. Total... $2271.42.

In the issue of May 20th, the 5th Ward Branch was credited with $5.25. This was an error. It should have been the 6th Ward Branch.

Boating at Waukesha Beach. For boating Pewaukee Lake is unexcelled, its smooth waters, its facilities for safe boating make it an ideal place for boating and fishing.

WARNING! AN INJUNCTION!!

We have just received positive evidence, from a source we cannot at this writing make public, that every union and branch secretary in the city of Milwaukee WILL BE SERVED WITHIN A FEW DAYS WITH A WRIT OF INJUNCTION...

IT IS DOUBTFUL IF THERE WAS EVER SO SWEEPING A PROCEEDING, AND WORKERS IN LABOR'S CAUSE MAY WELL STOP AND ASK THEMSELVES "What may we not expect next?"

For some time there have been rumors of this thing, but we had supposed it would amount to nothing more than rumor. Of the intention we had no doubt, but questioned whether certain people would dare to make the attempt.

As to what is to be done in the premises, we cannot yet clearly advise, but when the exact nature of the proceeding is known it is quite possible that it may be found the better part of valor to abide by its mandate.

A word of caution: STAND YOUR GROUND LIKE MEN AND AWAIT DEVELOPMENTS.

THE THEATER.

ALHAMBRA THEATER.

For the coming week starting Sunday afternoon, the Alhambra will enter into its second successful week of "Stock." The play selected for the coming week is Oliver Goldsmith's delightful comedy "She Stoops to Conquer."

Edith Evelyn in "She Stoops to Conquer."

Milwaukee stage, the Alhambra's new leading man, Mr. Harry Glazier, who is considered to be one of the best stock actors in the country today.

BIJOU THEATER.

Jesse James and his gang of outlaws who terrorized Missouri have been the theme of several stage productions, but none of them has had the dramatic worth, elaborate stage setting or refined effect of "The James Boys in Missouri."

Miss Gay Errol in "James Boys in Missouri."

bandits have been on the blood and thunder order, but the present production is a clean melodramatic play with no features that could offend.

STAR THEATRE. Washburn's Vaudeville Company will be the next attraction at the Star Theatre starting Sunday afternoon.

GRAND THEATER.

The crowds are increasing every week at the Grand Theater (Third near the Avenue) and high class entertainments are presented.

Comrades, Attention! The Sheboygan comrades have arranged for a picnic at Sheboygan, June 18th.

A customer said the other day: "If a man can't be suited at LACHENMAIER & CO., where can he be suited?"

It's about so. For instance: If you are looking for a suit of any particular material, we have it.

If you want a suit for business, dress or any occasion, we have it.

It's not only the young men who come here for good clothes, but the middle-aged men also. Our Department for Boys and little Toddlers is thoroughly complete.
