TAFT'S CAMPAIGN MANAGER GOT PART OF PROFIT.

EMPEROR KILLS WOMAN AFTER SON'S WEDDING

MORSE HAS CHECKS—CANNOT GET THEM BECAUSE OF RECEIVERS—GLASS LIGHTS ON JEROME SHOWN AT TRIAL—SECRET SERVICE MEN DISGUISED AS MARSHALS GUARD SICK JUROR TO HIS HOME—TRIAL COLLAPSES—ADJOURNMENT UNTIL AFTER ELECTION.

With an alacrity that was more than a remarkable coincidence, Gordon Wendell, juror in the Morse trial, a relative of United States District Attorney Dorr, who was associated with Ellhu Rod, because ill yesterday when the Geo. R. Sheldon's name was insistently mentioned in connection with the investigation. Closely guarded by Secret Service men, he was removed to his home and the trial adjourned until after election.

Charles W. Morse has in his possession a letter signed by George H. Sheldon, treasurer of the Republican National Committee, acknowledging the receipt of a check sent him by Morse, the check representing Mr. Sheldon's share of the profits of one of the Morse ice pools. Mr. Morse has in his possession a copy of his checkbook which records the fact of a check having been sent Mr. Sheldon for his share of the profit of a speculative pool in American ice stock.

The complete chain of records concerning absolutely the acknowledgment of a letter signed by George H. Sheldon, treasurer of the Republican National Committee, acknowledging the receipt of a check sent him by Morse, with one of the ice pools is now among the documents of the National Bank of North America, which have been ransacked by the United States government's expert accountants to get evidence against Morse and Alfred H. Curtis for use at their joint trial on charges of having criminally violated the national banking laws.

Morse's lawyers expected to be able to examine yesterday the records of the bank, but Receiver Charles A. Hanna, a United States bank examiner, still remained in charge of that institution, although all the creditors have been paid off in full and the stockholders at a meeting on Wednesday, signed an agreement to take possession of the bank in place of Mr. Hanna. This agent, John W. McKinnon, arranged to furnish the required bond of $750,000, but for some reason the matter was not acted upon yesterday by Comptroller of the Currency.

Other disclosures showed that of all the Tammany leaders Morse lurked into his ice pool, ex-Mayor Van Wyck was the only one to escape "with the goods."

Morgan J. O'Brien, formerly Justice of the Supreme Court, was another dupe of Morse by means of stock of the Bank of North America.

The developments of the trial shed a brilliant light on the failure of District Attorney Jerome to prosecute the Geo. R. Sheldon in the summer of 1904, when it was the price of the necessity for $5 to $10 a ton in order that Tammany chiefs might take millions.

The following letters by President Oier of the American Ice Company are extremely interesting.

"I have just gotten back from a long talk with District Attorney Jerome. He seems to be a perfectly calm sane man, and approaches the matter in a sensible, businesslike way.

Two days later, August 9, he wrote: "We are not yet through here in New York, because the District Attorneys for Queens and Kings Counties may decide to bring the matter before their respective Grand Juries when they meet, and we shall probably not find them as broad-minded as Mr. Jerome, but more inclined to indict than to convict."

Orders for next Saturday's special campaign issue of The Call, should reach this office before Friday, October 23, in order to insure prompt delivery. 50 cents a 100.

STRAW VOTES FOR STRAW MEN

EMPLOYEES OF THE FULLER CONSTRUCTION COMPANY BEING ASKED TO EXPLAIN WHY IT WAS THAT 51 PER CENT OF THE 7,000 MEN ON THE PAYROLL OF THAT CORPORATION REFUSED TO TAKE PART IN THE "STRAW" VOTE CONDUCTED BY THE "WORLD," AS STATED IN THE CALL YESTERDAY, SAID THAT IT WAS VERY SIMPLE. THE "WORLD" HAD PROVIDED ONLY FOR THE MEN TO VOTE FOR TAFT OR FOR BRYAN, AND A VERY LARGE PROPORTION OF THEM, HAVING MADE UP THEIR MINDS TO VOTE THE SOCIALIST TICKET, NATURALLY REFUSED TO GO ON RECORD FOR EITHER OF THE OLD PARTY CANDIDATES. THIS, THEY SAID, WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR A LARGE PROPORTION OF THE APPARENT APATHY.

TO-DAY IS CITY CLUB DAY AT THE BUDGET EXHIBIT. THE NOON MEETING WILL BE ADDRESSED BY GEORGE MCANENY, PRESIDENT OF THE CITY CLUB.

WATCH FOR VOTE ANNOUNCEMENT MONDAY.

WATER FAMINE COMING.

Water is thirteen cents a gallon around Cornwall-on-the-Hudson. Highland Falls has to beg its water from the dairy-men here to take their cattle ten miles in some districts to get water and streams and ponds are drying up in many Hudson River districts through the long drought.

BURFIEND WILL PROTECT MEETINGS

Inspector Will Hold Police-men Responsible.

There Will Be No More Repetitions of the Wednesday Night Affair at Grand and Willet Streets on East Side—Officers Will Be Tried on Saturday for Their Unofficial Conduct.

Socialist meetings on the East Side in future will be thoroughly policed and any policeman who either refuses to stop rowdism or takes part in it will be called to answer before Inspector Burfiend. This statement was made by Inspector Burfiend himself yesterday when his attention was called to the free-for-all fight started by the police of the 13th district, at the corner of Grand and Willet on Wednesday night. The police who engaged in this melee will be tried before the inspector on Saturday afternoon.

"Socialist," said Inspector Burfiend, "have just as much right to hold street meetings as either Republicans or Democrats, and I intend personally to see that they receive the necessary police protection wherever they may meet in my district."

That Inspector Burfiend means what he says is beyond all question, and in future if there is any trouble at any of the Socialist meetings, provoked either by the police or by rowdies, the police in charge of the meeting will be held strictly accountable by the Inspector, and the policeman who work under him know what this means. A general order was sent out by him yesterday stating that all political meetings, Republican, Democratic or Socialist should have equal police protection, that no preference should be shown in any case and that rowdism at meetings must cease.

This is the first time that the Police Department of this city has made an effort to protect the Socialists as they should be protected. The credit for this action is due to Inspector Burfiend and Lieutenant Ryan, of Headquarters, who are using every

RUSSIAN HORRORS

The following letter, written by the wife of a practicing physician in St. Petersburg to her sister in this city, sheds considerably light upon the reasons for the terrible devastation wrought by the cholera in that unfortunate city.

"The cholera received a very warm reception in our city. This last epidemic, like the Russo-Japanese war, clearly demonstrates how ignorant and uneducated we still are and how much we are still lacking in all branches of knowledge.

"There have occurred and are still occurring such horrors that will seem absolutely incredible to you when I tell you about them.

"Apartments where people died from cholera were left without disinfection for three and four days. In the cholera barracks the patients were given unboiled water to drink, although various investigations have proven the waters of the Neva and its tributaries to be contaminated with cholera germs.

"Our bradys is being prepared in the government distilleries with unboiled water and you know well what enormous quantities are being consumed daily. Sausage factories where we knew were a few cases of cholera were not only allowed to continue in business but no attempt was made to disinfect them.

"The editors of the papers received instructions of the Sanitary Committee and upon the activity of the municipal government in general, under threat not only of heavy fines but of total suppression of their papers.

"The cause: 'Cherchez la femme,' the wife of the chairman of the Sanitary Committee, is the sister of Belgardt, and Belgardt is the chief of the press department.

"One man whose daughter fell sick with cholera came to the barracks to visit her and found in the morgue a coffin with the inscription that she rested his daughter. He had her buried beside the grave of his late wife. Two weeks later he received news from the hospital requesting him to come there to take his convalescent daughter home.

A slight mistake but very characteristic of our whole mismanagement. No wonder there broke out such a panic."

BRADY IN HOSPITAL

"Scab" Taxi-Cab Did It—He Will Not Sue.

No one seems to know just how it happened, but at any rate William Brady, the show man and proprietor of "A Gentleman from Mississippi," is in St. Vincent's Hospital with a dislocated arm and the chauffeur of the machine that either hit him or in which he was riding was treated at the same time for a scalp wound. One thing, however, is certain and that is that the driver of the machine was a "scab" and that the vehicle belonged to the New York Taxicab Company.

Of course Mr. Brady, who makes his living by catering to the public, and who is just as willing to sell a dollar seat to a union man as a millionaire, would not ride in a "scab" machine. Leastwise policy would not force him to do such a thing, but there are two stories about the affair, and one of them has him riding in the non-union vehicle.

One report of the affair is that as Mr. Brady was riding down the street in one of the "scab" cars the machine was attacked and the chauffeur steered it into the curbing depositing both the theatrical man and himself on the sidewalk. This story is denied by Mr. Brady's representatives.

The other tale is from Mr. Brady's office, where they employ a quantity of press agents. This one is to the effect that Brady was crossing the street when a red taxicab dashed along, struck him and knocked him down, inflicting injuries which have kept him in the hospital since last Tuesday.

Just how running over Mr. Brady would inflict a scalp wound on the chauffeur could not be learned at his office, as it was said there that they had not heard of the latter's misfortune.

Further, it was learned that Mr. Brady did not want the matter published, as he did not intend to sue the taxicab company. "Not that he is interested in the company," was given as the reason.

The "Red Special" left this morning for St. Louis where preparations have been made to hold the greatest Socialist demonstration ever seen in the southwest.

SULLIVANS INVEST NAME IN D. T. DOPE

SAYS "T. D.'S" COUSIN CORNELIUS ABSORBS CHEMICAL CO.

SALOON MEN BLACKMAILED INTO SELLING CURE FOR THE HEAD OF THE MORNING AFTER-THE-NIGHT BEFORE—INVENTOR OF FORMULA SENT OUT OF TOWN WHILE ABSORPTION PROCESS IS ON.

That the Sullivan family of expert utilizers of pull in Tammany lost no opportunity of graft is shown in the operations of the Sullivan Pharmacal Company.

Incidentally it shows that losing their regular source of income, the City Treasury, they have invaded the field of the cheap swindler who trades upon the credulity of those not posted in politics.

Planning to force the credulous saloon keepers of New York to buy their goods, "Big Tim" Sullivan and Cornelius J. Sullivan have organized the Sullivan "Drug" Company in corporation in advertising company of child gambling fame.

Cornelius J. Sullivan is also president of the Sullivan Pharmacal Company; "Big Tim" is a director in this concern, which boasts that the saloon would not dare to refuse to handle this company's products.

This latest enterprise of the Bowery Senator is preparing to put on the market a Sullivan whiskey, a Sullivan mineral water and a Sullivan brown mixture, the sale of which is to depend upon the credulity of the purchasers of the Sullivan's political downfall. Liquor dealers are to be "asked" to sell these products with the expectation that none dare refuse.

Behind the business the "pull of "Big Tim" looms exceedingly large. The Sullivan "Drug" Company incorporation is laid bare in a letter by W. F. Boothe, a chemist for some time associated with the Sullivan in putting up a bromo mixture.

The Sullivan's froze him out as soon as they had learned from him the secret of the mixture, and took away his stock holdings in the enterprise. He was lured on, he says, by the

BOOKING WILL GO IN LOUISIANA

New System to Be Operated in That State.

By M. BLAIR COAN.

According to the Locke Bill passed by the last session of the Louisiana Legislature, no betting with devices is allowed on any horse race track within the limits of the State. Individual betting, however, is allowed and in such a way that the system which will be used in the ninety-day meeting there this year will be almost as advantageous as the old method of books, so far as the bookmaker is concerned.

The trouble in Louisiana which brought on this legislation was first that a great many of the trusted employees of the State and city of New Orleans got the habit of betting the public money and losing it. This is not different from conditions in New York except that in New York the defalcations are covered up, while in Louisiana, who made racing possible in this method of secrecy. As soon as an official is found "going wrong" on the track he is removed from office and prosecuted. For this reason the facts are always before the public.

The second cause was the fact that professional gamblers like Louis Cella got control of the tracks and employed foreigners for all good paying positions, instead of natives of Louisiana, who made racing possible for them. All a resident of New Orleans could get at the track was a position as gate-keeper at three dollars a day and sometimes not that.

Every one of the officials was from another section of the country. Now, to appease as much as possible, a local racing organization has been formed, and in future New Orleans people alone will be employed. The City Park track will be run and the Fair Grounds, on which the jockey club had only a lease, will be closed.

The system to be put in force on the track will be almost the same as bookmaking, but as it is stopped under the new law, as individual betting is all forms is allowed. Inspector William J. O'Connor and Chief Detective James W. Reynolds have notified the track officials that any infringement on the law will result in certain arrest of every one concerned. Every one knows in New Orleans that O'Connor and Reynolds will keep their word, and there will doubtless be no attempt to depart from the original plan.

The plan is like this: The track will appoint about a score of official bet takers and will be responsible for their honesty. They will take individual bets, taking the names of the bettors. This is defined as individual betting under the law, and money will be deposited at the time the bet is made. In this manner a person who wants to book can make as many individual bets as he can find takers at any odds he feels justified in giving, and the only difference between this and the old state system used there last season will be the track will hold the money instead of the bookmakers.

This is the new system, and it will not in any way hinder the old time bookmakers.

GLOVER AND BONNER AT BROWN'S "GYM."

The star bout at Brown's Gymnasium on Tuesday evening, October 27, between Billy Glover, the Boston lightweight, and Jim Bonner, of Summit Hill, Pa., promises to be interesting. Glover has not in a long time had a good fight, and Bonner has trained hard for his coming up and considers that the result will be different.

BOUNDED OFF.

The star bout between Frankie Madon and Harry Ferris, scheduled for the main attraction at the Princess A. C. last night, was called off through orders from the Building Department, which said that the hall was unsafe. This is the first time that the authorities have stopped the bouts at this club. The officials made a number of improvements, but yesterday were notified that there would be nothing doing.

SOCIALISTS DEFEAT SALVATIONISTS

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 22.—The local Socialists have just taught a salutary lesson to a Salvation Army crowd who have been speaking at the same street crossings as the Socialist agitators and amusing themselves by slinging mud at the Socialist party candidates.

Sunday evening, while Ralph W. Tillotson, Socialist candidate for state senator, was addressing a meeting, a Salvation Army speaker called Eugene V. Debs a swindler, a scoundrel and a rogue. Tillotson stepped down from his platform, giving it to T. Farmer, entered the Salvation Army audience and challenged the speaker to substantiate his slander. He was answered with, "I wouldn't debate with 'he devil'."

Tillotson now took the Socialist platform again and as the army's meeting broke up challenged the army speaker to debate on his slanderous charge against Debs. This was answered by a mighty uproar on the part of the audience of over 2,000 people, while the army officer made faces at the Socialist speaker.

At this period a heavy police thug approached, roaring out, "I'll break up this meetin' fer youse!" and arrested Tillotson and Farmer. Over a thousand people accompanied the patrol wagon to the station and upon the speakers' release a few moments later on ball they were given an ovation.

The crowd was led into Labor Temple Hall where a monster protest meeting was held. The call was Socialist lawyers the army officer was crowded.

The following morning Tillotson and Farmer appeared before police court. The Salvation Army was there and so was a large crowd of Socialists filling the corridors. At the cross-examination by the Socialist lawyer, the army officer was forced to acknowledge that he did abuse Debs.

The Alderman discharged the Socialists and sternly rebuked the army officer for public slander. The Socialists of Erie county and city are in splendid fighting trim and will continue to defend their rights.

BROOKLYNITES COURT NEW "MERRY WIDOW"

By HARRY CHAPIN PLUMMER. Few light opera productions there are nowadays that are vociferously applauded by their audiences as much for the vital strength and beauty contained in their scores as for the individual and ensemble work accomplished by the singers appearing therein.

Lehar's operetta combines the sprightliness of melodic fancy demanded by American comic opera audiences with the accurate perception of the possibilities of instrumental and choral treatment of a subject however light and frail, possessed by the schooled musician.

A new Sonia made her bow in the Brooklyn production—Miss Ruby Dale, whose voice, while disappointing at first, improved as the opera progressed and developed admirably in her part as "Sonia" in the second act. Her dancing of the famous waltz was the best that has been seen in the New York presentation.

SOCIALISTS TALK TO HARLEMITES

An enthusiastic Socialist meeting was held last night at 116th street and Lenox avenue. Although the night was chilly a large crowd was present and listened attentively to the speakers.

BE ON HAND BY 5 O'CLOCK NOV. 3

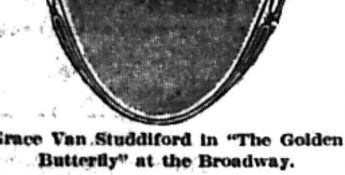

All voters who are in line at polling places in New York city at 5 o'clock, the official hour for the closing of the polls on election night, are to be allowed to vote this year, whether they be ten or 200, according to an agreement perfected yesterday between the Corporation Council, Police Commissioner Bingham and the Board of Elections.

THE THEATRES

Hippodrome. Nothing disturbs the great prosperity of the Hippodrome and its big successes. Its spectacles, ballet and circus took a firm grip on popular favor and crowded twice daily houses are the rule right along at the huge playhouse.

At the Astor Theater "The Man From Rome" will be presented. The play is a comedy in three acts and is a masterpiece of the Frenchman, but not only in the Frenchman, but in the American, who has retained in his lyrics the essential qualities that long have distinguished the writers of Vienna.

Edgar Selwyn in his dramatization of "Pierre of the Plains," enters upon its third week Monday at the Hudson Theater, here he is attracting the lovers of good acting in a spirited play. The sensational duel in the third act is received nightly with enthusiasm that brings many curtain calls.

Grace Van Studdiford in "The Golden Butterfly" at the Broadway.

Edgar Selwyn and his company, who are playing in "Pierre of the Plains" at the Hudson Theater, spent last Sunday at the theater, where moving pictures were made of the entire performance.

During either the first or second week in November Liebler & Company will produce at the Majestic Theater in this city, Paul Armstrong's play, "Blue Grass."

Mr. Percy G. Williams has announced that Mr. Arnold Daly will positively appear at the Colonial Theater October 26 in Mark Twain's sketch, "Becoming an Editor."

of October at the Colonial, as previously announced. I prefer this sketch to the others of Mr. Daly's repertoire, because "Becoming an Editor" is farcical and lively and therefore a good vehicle for vaudeville use. Telegram, nor do I propose to do so. So far as I am concerned, the matter is settled.

BRIDGEPORT FOR DEBS

Workingmen There Tired of Old Parties.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 22.—The growth of Socialism in this city is strikingly indicated by a news article featured Wednesday on the first page of the Bridgeport "Evening Post." The article reads, in part, as follows:

"A plague on both your houses." That seems to be the position of many of the workingmen in this city regarding the two old parties in the Presidential campaign, according to one or two experienced politicians who have been trying to find the lay of the land in two large East Side factories, the Union Metallic Cartridge Company and the Singer Sewing Machine Company.

"According to one observer, the majority of men in these factories do not care to talk on politics from a Democratic or a Republican standpoint, but are now interested on Socialists and Prohibition.

"Same Old Stuff." "In the opinion of this politician there will be a very large increase in the Socialist and Prohibition votes in November, more especially the Socialist."

"Debs talks something that interests us," they said. "The other parties are talking the same old stuff and we are not interested." This is the situation as an experienced politician says it and it looks for something to drop in November.

Against Roosevelt's Course. "In an effort to find out the cause of this favorable view of Debs this observer found several men who ascribed it to the course pursued by President Roosevelt in the past seven years.

"No attempt was made to find out just what particular line of conduct had promoted this feeling. The opinion given was that the actions of the present administration and the disclosures that have followed have cultivated a feeling in favor of the Socialist candidates, and this observer is now ready to believe that Debs will receive a surprisingly large vote one week from next Tuesday.

Further evidence in support of this movement may be found in the large number of Debs buttons worn by the third party was ever before so largely represented in button and badge emblem as in this city in this campaign.

Debs Made Votes Here. "It is now admitted by observers that Debs made a large number of

GREAT PROPAGANDA WORK IN NEWARK

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 22.—The Socialist party campaign committee is making strenuous efforts to place literature into the hands of every voter before election day, and in order to do so has called for volunteers to come to the party headquarters, 236 Washington street, to-morrow evening to help in the work.

Already scores of active Socialists have responded to this call to action and it seems probable that Saturday's distribution of leaflets will be the greatest piece of propaganda work ever carried out by the Socialist party of Essex County.

POOR MATERIAL FOR BRITISH ARMY.

If there be any doubt that physical deterioration in the submerged classes is more serious than it used to be the report of the Army Medical Department pins one down between that opinion and the conclusion that the army is recruited from a lower social stratum. "Average British recruits," the report says, "are not only the youngest but in the poorest physical condition of those in any civilized army. They cannot stand work which did not injure well fed conscripts of twenty years of age; still less can they face exercises which would do harm to robust men." They are in fact from "want of food and from the cigarette habit such miserable specimens of humanity that it takes two years to make men of them. The report confirms what we said the other day, to the effect that a British army is painfully produced from the army of the British unemployed; as many as 95 per cent. of accepted recruits are hopeless "out of work." There is a good deal going with the conditions that make these degenerates and the report gives one to think furiously; but the larger question raised by it is whether any amount of training and selection can produce an efficient army out of such material.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Under Socialism every child will receive the most nourishing food and will have every chance to make himself strong in body and mind.

No flag have we, nor nation; Nor cult nor creed have we; The wide world is our country, Our clan—humanity.—Selected.

votes when he was here. It is thought that if he should come again the results would be still more satisfactory to the Socialists, as many men who did not hear him then are now inquiring about him.

Loss May Be Equalized. "As to which of the old parties will lose the most by this movement, if it amounts to as much as these observers now think no one can say. One or two think the Republicans will lose the most. Still others think the loss will be about equal. Still others declare that the Democracy will suffer, and there you are."

A DOCTOR'S PRESCRIPTION.

By JOHN R. McMAHON.

Once there was a man who was feeling badly and who went to a doctor. After examining him carefully, the doctor said: "You have a serious disease. It has run on a long time. You inherited it in a latent form and it has developed virulently of late. It will require a thorough and revolutionary treatment."

QUEER TELEGRAPH POLES.

Along the telegraph line from La Paz to Oruro, Bolivia, there are no growing trees and wood is so difficult to find that even the ordinary household furniture of the natives is invariably made not of wood but of dried mud or adobe. So when the war broke out between Chile and Bolivia and a telegraph line became urgent it was adobe that was chosen for the telegraph poles. These pillars were built in stone foundations and measured about five feet square at the base, with a height of about fifteen feet. The total length of the line was 156 miles.

Among other curious telegraph lines is the growing pole line erected in Uganda by an English engineer, who could not find any deadwood which would withstand the white ants, and hit upon the idea of transporting growing bark-cloth trees to the side of the roads and using them as poles. In the Dutch East Indies growing trees are turned to account also. But there a wire is stretched across the road between the trees on either side, and the insulator is suspended in the middle, and the line is thus over the road and clear from vegetation.—Chicago Tribune.

QUEER BIRD HOMES.

"Queer Bird Homes" is the title of an article published recently in Germany by Harry Maas, ornithologist, in which many instances are cited to show that the tastes of birds as to their habitations vary. A swallow's nest under the eaves of a railway passenger coach he speaks of as most peculiar. Not so much because it was a car, but because this particular one made daily trips between two places. Being on the move about half the time, it was hard to say when the swallows were flying homeward. The nest remained undisturbed and a little family of three finally emerged from it. He quotes from "Kormos," in which a nobleman relates that for twelve years a goldenfin pair came regularly to his garden and built a nest out of forget-me-nots. The habit of the birds was so well known that a bed of the little flowers was cultivated expressly for them. In the historical museum of Soletta, a city in which watchmaking is the chief industry, there is a bird's nest made of watch springs. It was discovered in a tree, where it had been built by a wagtail pair. The little feathered architects used the metal for the outside and to hold the soft lining.

Recent events on the East Side show clearly enough that the people of that region have this question to decide on Election Day: Shall the Black Hundreds of Russia be duplicated in New York, or shall the rising tide of hooliganism be stemmed before it becomes too strong?

THE HOOLIGANS BROUGHT TO BAY.

of sweatshop bosses, landlords of foul tenements, labor-grinding contractors, lawbreaking capitalists of all sorts, and of dive keepers, professional gamblers, cadets, fagins, sneak thieves and burglars, with the political hold-up organization known as Tammany Hall has long ruled the East Side even a little more ruthlessly and a little more profitably to itself than it has ruled the rest of the city.

This year, as never before, the rule of Tammany Hall in the East Side is seriously menaced by the growth of the Socialist party.

The political masters of the East Side, as well as the reputable and disreputable exploiters and criminals to whom they sell their protection have been driven to desperation by the danger they see before them that Hillquit may be elected to Congress, Panken to the Senate, and Stokes, Hunter, Pine and Mally to the Assembly, thus breaking their power once and forever.

In this extremity they have resorted to exactly the same methods that the Autocracy has used in Russia to crush the awakening revolt of the disinherited. They have taken into their pay a small army of loafers, hoodlums and thugs—fellows drawn from the most degraded strata of the population—and have set them to work to break up Socialist meetings, assault Socialist speakers and workers, and generally to terrorize all who do not bow to the rule of the Murphys, Sullivans, Ahearns and Goldfogies.

And, just as in Russia, the uniformed "defenders of law and preservers of public order" have got their unofficial but binding instructions from the "men higher up" as to the course they are to pursue. They are to be on the alert for every chance to disturb and hamper the Socialist work of education and organization.

Wednesday night gave a good example of the working of this system. A serious riot occurred. The police were to some extent actual participants in that riot. They looked on and grinned while burns beat up orderly citizens and insulted women in the street. They gave notice to the lawless elements that they had full license to go the limit in attacking the Socialists.

If, by hook or by crook, Tammany carries the East Side districts next month, the people of the East Side must expect to feel the full weight of gang rule. There is but one hope. That is, to see that an overwhelming plurality of votes is given for the Socialist ticket, for the whole Socialist ticket, from Debs and Hanford down, and that the votes are counted and the Socialist candidates in those districts seated.

The moment is critical. Let no effort be spared.

The Republican "Sun" is rivaling the Democratic "World" and the Hearstite "American" in claiming for its particular backers the credit for the expected release of Jan Pouden, the Russian revolutionist whom the authorities wanted to send back to be tortured and murdered by the Czar. All three of these papers were audibly silent about the Pouden case for more than eight long months, until the Socialist and union organizations and papers forced it upon public attention. If Root could get the full credit of freeing Pouden, it might go a little way toward balancing the disgrace attaching to Taft for hobnobbing with Nicholas the Bloody and drinking the health of the defenders of the Autocracy.

Chanler says he does not wish to see the anti-gambling law repealed. He winks the other eye as he says it—meaning that a law which is not enforced does no particular good or harm to anyone. The difference between electing Chanler and electing Hughes is that, if Hughes is chosen, an attempt will be made to enforce the law against gambling, while all the labor laws on the statute books will remain unenforced, as they are now; while if Chanler is elected, the anti-gambling law as well as the labor laws will be a dead letter. We understand that gamblers and moralists may have their choice between the two eminently respectable candidates. As for workingmen, if they want to have labor laws enforced, they will have to look to Wanhope to enforce them.

Holy John Wasmaker exhibits a "model home" which, with its furnishings, costs only $300.00. If the average workingman would be frugal and industrious, work steady and save all his money to buy a home, he could have such a model dwelling within five hundred years.

HOW TO VOTE.

By ROBERT HUNTER.

This is a great year for the independent. If there is anything in the world the voter wants that he won't have a chance to cast a vote for this fall I can't imagine what it could be. He can cast a vote for Taft, the Father of Injunctions, the friend of Wall street, and for Aldrich, Cannon and the other men who like things as they are.

He can cast a vote for Bryan, to whom things as they are seem not bad enough. He can vote to put into power the Southern Democrats who have whipped labor to the finish and have put it into a proper condition of servitude. He can vote for a political machine which puts its bosses into the Senate, or for a political machine whose bosses are too modest, disreputable and avaricious to come into the open.

He can vote for William R. Hearst, who has a little party all his own. It does not cost anybody a cent except William, and anybody that says anything favorable of the party can get his picture in the papers. In this time of unemployment William will put me to work, send them to conventions and take care of them otherwise. The principles of the party are William R. Hearst, its platform is William R. Hearst, its manager is William R. Hearst; and if there is anything in the party that has any other name it has not appeared in the public prints. Anyone who wants to will have a chance to vote for that great party.

Then there are the Prohibitionists. There is much to be said for them. They are feared by at least one interest, and they themselves support their own party. They are radicals in their way. They believe in confiscation, not the taking over by the State of the breweries and the saloons—Heaven forbid that—but the abolition of them, which would make them worthless the day the prohibitive legislation was passed.

And then there is Tom Watson, who talks like the French Revolution and acts like a bleating lamb. Someone has said that the Populists nominated Watson to confound those foolish persons who did not believe in the resurrection of the dead. Well, anyone who wants to can vote for the resurrection of the dead.

And then there is Wharton Barker's party. It is called the American or some such thing. It must be all right. Nobody knows much about it. But if people are willing to vote for William R. Hearst why should they not vote for Wharton Barker? One name sounds as sweet as the other, and as for political principles certainly those names signify volumes.

of the sweat and toil and love of a multitude of workers. It is the product of men's misery. But, like many another union made product, it is avoided by certain good union men, who prefer to smoke in secret a good non-union cigar. They prefer the companionship of numbers, and the ballot is secret, so some of them will vote for either Injunction Bill Taft or Pro-Anti-Injunction Bill Bryan.

Most of the newspapers are unfriendly to the Socialist party. For a long time they kept workingmen out of the unions by telling them what criminal organizations they were. And now they keep a good many workingmen out of the Socialist party by telling them what a criminal organization it is.

Besides its principles are hard to understand. You cannot put them in one single word like Hearst or Barker or Bryan. And then the other parties are business propositions—like a free show on the Bowery. It does not cost you anything to get in—although your pockets are picked when you come out.

But there is a tremendous attraction in a free show; few people can resist it. And what a show there will be in November! The Fat Boy will be on exhibition. The Feebles Silver-tongued Orator will regale the crowd. The Yellow Kid with his gold tooth will do a song and dance. The Fire Eater of Georgia will swallow flaming swords and blow hot flames. The Thin Man in the Frock Coat will plier with the merry crowd to keep sober—and smash the saloons.

And across the way there will be another tent. But you don't want to know what's in there. For you'll have to pay to get in.

A LIGHT THAT MUST PREVAIL.

Socialism is to me a very great thing indeed, the form and substance of my ideal life and all the religion I possess. I am, by a sort of predestination, a Socialist. I perceive I cannot help talking and writing about Socialism, and shaping and forwarding Socialism. I am one of a succession—one of a growing multitude of witnesses, who will continue. It does not—in the larger sense—matter how many generations of us must toll and testify. It does not matter, except as our individual concern, how individually we succeed or fail, what blunders we make, what thwartings we encounter, what follies and indequacies darken our private hopes and level our personal imaginations to the dust. We have the light. We know what we are for, and that the light that now glimmers so dimly through us must in the end prevail.—H. C. Wells, in the Independent, Nov. 25, 1906.

NAMELESS HEROES.

There are countless heroes who live and die. Of whom we have never heard; For the great, big, brawling world goes by, With hardly a look or word; And one of the bravest and best of all, Of whom the least can boast, Is the man who falls on duty's call, The man who dies at his post.

While his cheek is mantled with manhood's bloom, And the pathway of life looks bright, He is brought in a moment to face the gloom. Surrounding the final night, He buoyantly sails o'er a sunlit sea— And is dashed on an unseen coast— Till the ship goes down at the helm stands he— The man who dies at his post.

Who follows the glorious tide of war And falls in the midst of fight, He knows that honor will hover o'er And cover his name with light; But he who passes unsung, unknown, He hears no applauding host; He goes in the dark to his fate, alone The man who dies at his post.

Who bears with disease while death draws near, Who faces his fate each day, Yet strives to comfort and help and cheer, His comrades along the way, Who follows his work while he yet may do, And smiles when he suffers most, It seems to me is a hero true— The man who dies at his post.

There are plenty to laud and crown with bays The hero who falls in strife, But few who offer a word of praise To the crownless hero of life, He does his duty and makes no claim; And to-night I propose a toast To the silent martyr unknown to fame, The man who dies at his post —Denver News.

WHERE ARE YOUR SPOKESMEN?

How is it possible that in Congress to-day there is never an elected representative of the class which holds nine-tenths of the voting strength of this country? Where is the spokesman of the working class? What have they been doing with their ballots? Where is the spokesman of the farmer? There are a hundred to spring to their feet if capital is endangered. Why are they so silent in regard to labor's wrongs. They are elected by the ballot of labor. Why then do they not see the baby fingers plying the needle in the sweatshop; why do they not hear the cry of the miner in the dark; why do they not hear the patter of the little feet amid the roar of looms in the South?—Franklin H. Wentworth

THE LILY OF THE BOG.

By FERENC HERCEG. (Translated by Thomas Seltzer.)

SYNOPSIS.

Juriska, an aristocratic young man, engaged to Adele, the daughter of a poor conventional professor, becomes interested in Jessi, a beautiful flower girl. His friend in the meantime lost heavily at cards and Juriska forged his father's name to a note covering that debt.

The next day he entered at random the office of a well-known maker of artistic wrought iron. Juriska knew the manufacturer only by name, but he told him as much of his past as he deemed necessary. Then he asked him for work. The manufacturer listened to his story to the end with waxing interest.

"You are right in casting about for work. Your proposition comes at a very favorable time. I have many good workmen, but I can use several more, and if you want to I will put you in the locksmiths' department first. Later you can learn the higher branches of our craft. Your advancement will depend upon nobody but yourself."

Juriska did not lose a day in taking up the work, and was soon standing among the other smiths and locksmiths of the factory. His powerful muscles, which excited admiration even in this Cyclopean workshop, his skill at rough work and his silent demeanor obtained for him the respect of his fellow workmen. He came early in the morning and left late in the afternoon.

Once, after he had been in the factory for about two weeks, he had to take the place of the foreman, who were elsewhere engaged, and supervise several workmen in setting up an iron grill about a grave. Putting a few instruments in his pocket he took the tramway to the cemetery to which the grill had already been carried by the workmen. For a while he watched them fastening the main supports in the holes in the corners of the marble slab. But one of the men had taken too much whiskey on the way over, and was handling his material very awkwardly. So Juriska threw off his coat and went to the work himself.

He knelt at the edge of the grave and did not notice that two women in deep mourning were approaching by the gravel walk. They looked about as if lost, and taking counsel with each other, remained standing before him. After a while the younger of the two addressed him, and asked in an anxious tone:

"I beg pardon, but could you tell me where the keeper of the cemetery is?" It was Adele Mihaly with her mother.

For several long moments the young people eyed each other mutely; the elegant girl, somewhat too slim, with a pale face and two old maid's wrinkles already visible about her mouth, and the bearded workman, who was kneeling on the ground, his arms bare, a hammer in his hand.

Adele blushed a deep scarlet. Then she clung closer to her mother's arm, her great moist eyes fastened on Juriska. Finally the words broke from her instinctively: "I beg pardon!"

Was she begging his pardon for having spoken to him, or for some other reason? Juriska never found out. Nor was it this question that occupied his thoughts as he looked long after the two women, who walked slowly down the path, clinging to each other without once turning around.

The same day he had another encounter to go through. When he returned home in the evening his landlady received him with the news that a gentleman was waiting for him in his room. Juriska immediately thought of Szentgrothy, and opened the door. He was not deceived. There on the lame sofa in Juriska's bedroom sat little Grothy, carefully groomed, his monocle in his eye, clad in elegant spring clothes. The room was filled with the smoke of his cigar.

For an instant the two young men looked into each other's eyes without speaking. Presumably Juriska had only to stretch out his arm and good natured little Grothy would have fallen on his neck sobbing. But Juriska measured his old comrade with a cool, proud glance, and asked: "What do you want here?"

This confused Grothy. Such a reception he had not foreseen. His monocle fell from his eye. "Beg pardon, but I learned that you had come to Budapest, and I wanted to see how you are getting along—"

Since he received no response he continued, but in a lower voice, so that the landlady should not hear him: "I thought you might need something—"

"I don't take aims!" Juriska interrupted him dryly. "Come, now, I didn't mean it in that way. Why, we used to be such good comrades. Besides, I'm really in debt to you."

heart he rejoiced extremely at Juriska's declaration. Juriska's sudden appearance, of which he had been informed by the police, had been troubling him for several days, filling him in fact, with superstitious dread. He wanted to obtain peace for himself by actively seeking a meeting with the ghost. Now when the demeanor of his former friend convinced him that Juriska had a sufficiently tactful conception of their mutual relationship, and had no intention of compromising him, he felt considerably relieved, and was soon overflowing with sheer good humor.

"Don't worry about your debts. We paid up everything from the proceeds of an auction sale of all your father's left and your own effects. The deal behaved beautifully. I must say when the furnishings of your apartment were put up, all the old boys came along and drove the prices well into the air. Monday gave forty dollars for a leather cigar case. But I wrote all this to you in a letter which came back to me unopened—"

"I didn't want to receive any letters," said Juriska unapologetically. "This gave Grothy the courage to overshoot the mark."

"Once I even wanted to see you," "I refused to see visitors," Szentgrothy shook his head. "I know. The beautiful girl told me. She often tried to see you. Once she, too, wrote—"

Juriska now grew red in the face. He knew very well of whom Szentgrothy was speaking. Nevertheless he asked: "What girl do you mean?"

MAKING CRIMINALS.

The making of criminals is a very important American industry. Proceed as follows: Find out something that a large number of people desire to do and then make a law against it. The law should be sufficiently elastic to admit of exceptions when the public good or the offender's purse seems to demand it.

After the law is made hire a few good policemen to lie in wait for offenders. It is necessary to catch a criminal before you make him. Many men have remained good all their life because they were not caught. After you get hold of one he will probably tell you that he did not know the law. If he does tell him that ignorance of the law excuses no one. If he insists, tell him that even the lawyers don't know the law, as otherwise, there would not be so many of them. If he insists further, crack him over the head, tell him to shut up. If the man has no money at all, crack him in the head in the first place.

Next, publish his name in all the newspapers. This is for two reasons: First, to make him more of a criminal, and second, to show that the police department is doing its duty.

Next, chuck him into an unpleasant place as can be devised. At night surround him with a choice collection of vermin. For this purpose an entomologist should be consulted. In the daytime make him work like a dog, but do not give him anything for it. Give it to some one else. Perhaps the best way to dispose of the surplus product is by the contract system, although there are other forms of graft nearly as good.

After a few years of this he is probably a full-fledged criminal. In order to test your work, turn him loose without any money or any friends. If he comes back in a short time you have succeeded. If not, you have failed; but it usually works. —Ellis O. Jones, in Life.

THE SOCIALIST MOVEMENT AS AN EDUCATIONAL FORCE.

To-day the Socialist organizations which devote themselves to the elevation of the masses, to the spreading of moral and political enlightenment, to the cultivation of science, literature, music and other forms of intellectual refinement, are legion. To-day, it is a principle adopted by the rank and file as well as by the leaders of the party, that the only way to combat successfully the ruling system of militarism and officialism is the pacemaking revolutionizing of minds.—Kuno Franke in Modern German Culture.

Socialism has quickened the intellect of the worker, and has first enabled him to think, however faintly on political and economic topics. It has, by organizing thousands of social clubs, given these millions of and torpid masses a genuine taste for and appreciation of purely aesthetic pleasure, such as music, singing, the atrial performances, concerts, and above all, books. The Socialists in Germany have done what the government had left undone, viz., founded thousands of workingmen's libraries. The Socialist press has in this respect done wonders.—Wolf von Schlegelbrand, "Germany."

"THE DIGNITY OF LABOR."

The poems that are perpetually sung to the dignity, honesty and worth of manual labor by our ministers, teachers and politicians are natural and in a way sincere enough; for it is recognized that if there were no one to do the hard labor there would be no ease and comfort for the rest. But for all the honesty, dignity and worth of his toil, the manual laborer is commonly looked upon as a socially inferior being.—W. J. Ghent in "Mass and Class."
