

STRIKE IN BALTIMORE Wives Chase Boss Who Tries to Bluff Husbands.

Eight Hundred Employees Go Out Against Conditions Prevailing at Curtis Bay Works of South Baltimore Steel Car and Foundry Company.

Special Correspondence to The Call. BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 19.—The works of the South Baltimore Steel Car and Foundry Company at Curtis Bay have been closed down by the strike of its 800 employees.

The strike began several days ago. When it was inaugurated only two or three hundred of the company's employees left work. The strikers' ranks were rapidly swelled, however, and yesterday, it is said, that only about seventy-five of the 875 regular employees were left in the plant.

When Superintendent Philip Myers addressed the crowd and attempted to make the strikers believe that they were acting against their own interests, he was jeered and hooted. In the gathering and among the most emphatic in their denunciation of the company were the wives of the strikers and several women who conduct boarding houses in the neighborhood of the works, and who claimed that the men have not been earning enough money to pay their board.

Myers probably would not have talked as long as he did if it had not been for the fact that when he first appeared the people, many of whom do not understand English well, had an idea that he had come to announce the capitulation of the company to their demands. When it was realized that he was bent on an altogether different mission there were no ears for him. In the front rank of the crowd were determined women who did not intend to allow an opportunity to pass without registering their antagonism to the methods of the company. Myers furnished them an object for the purpose of illustrating their position and when they began to comprehend the drift of his remarks they bore down on him in a body.

Myers sought to expostulate, and the officers sought to persuade the women to desist; but neither was effective. Undaunted by their efforts, the women went for Myers, and in a few moments he had backed to a place against the fence, while the angry women swarmed about him and aimed blows at his head. Defending himself with his arms, Myers was protected as much as possible by the little cordon of policemen and sheriffs. Myers slowly worked his way to the gate, into which refuge he finally dodged.

When Myers made his report to the officials of the company and the receivers, who gathered in the office, it was decided that there was nothing to do but to shut down the plant. The duty of posting the notice was entrusted to a young man—W. Chenoweth. Chenoweth, with the Myers incident fresh in his mind, called forth about him and anxious for news from the interior of the plant they made no effort to harm him.

This afternoon there was a truce between strikers and employers, and a conference was held in the office, after which the receivers made the following proposition: "Under the circumstances we have proposed that if you will return to work to-morrow morning we will agree at the end of the current month to readjust piecework prices. It may be shown to be necessary to produce you fair wages, corresponding to those paid in other departments for work requiring similar skill."

The representatives of the strikers seemed to think worthy of consideration, and there will be a meeting to consider the matter.

NO PLACE TO SLEEP

Unemployed Denied Use of Recreation Pier.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Sterling, after months delay, leaves work- ing thousands to shiver sleepless in the cold.

It took just about a month for the Corporation Counsel to decide whether or not to allow the unemployed to sleep on the pier. The pier was to be used for recreation, but the Corporation Counsel and his staff were not comfortable in their sumptuous offices on the question whether the pier should be used for sleeping or for recreation. The pier should be used for sleeping or for recreation. The pier should be used for sleeping or for recreation.

UNEMPLOYED DENIED USE OF RECREATION PIER.

When seen by a reporter, Mr. Sterling said that a decision was just sent out last night. The pier is to be used for recreation, but the Corporation Counsel and his staff were not comfortable in their sumptuous offices on the question whether the pier should be used for sleeping or for recreation.

So That He Could Pay His Wife Alimony.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 20.—John J. Farrell was before Judge Shields in answer to a citation to show why he had not paid $20 a month alimony ordered by the court to Ellen Farrell. He related the details of a most economical system of living. He succeeded in convincing the court that he was squeezing every cent to make a suitable living and so was only ordered to produce the $20 required for the month of November. Further hearing of the case was continued for six weeks.

LECTURE BY ST. JOHN.

The news that Vincent St. John, leader of the workers in the great Goldfield strike of last year, is to lecture at 64 East 4th street at 3 P. M. next Sunday has aroused considerable interest and a big audience is expected.

St. John, who was attacked several times during the strike by the mine owners' thugs, will tell not only his personal experience, but will also explain the cause of the strike and its ultimate result.

The People's Outfitting Company, located at 111 Washington street, Hoboken, N. J., and 50-52 Broad street, Elizabeth, N. BURFEIND IS CLEANING UP

Will Put the "Humpty" Jackson Gang Out of Business—Nine Already Are Under Arrest.

A lot of persons in this city will breathe a deep sigh of relief this morning and pluck up new courage at the news that "Humpty" Jackson's infamous gang, which has reigned lawlessly on the East Side for some time, has been reduced in number. Commissioner Bingham has given orders that "Humpty" Jackson's gang be put out of business, and he laid strict injunctions on Captain Burfeind and his detectives, of the East 23d street station, to see to it that these orders were carried out. Captain Burfeind was a busy man last night. He and his police swooped down on a saloon at 14th street and Avenue B and completely surprised the occupants. Police sentinels were posted at every exit, and when his force had been disposed of he wanted it. Burfeind and one of his detectives burst into the place with revolvers drawn. There were just nine men there drinking, and the two revolvers were turned this way and that so as to take in the entire line.

CANVASS COMPLETED.

Official Count of Socialist Vote Improves Result.

The official canvass of the votes cast in the recent Presidential election was completed yesterday at the City Hall. Two more Assembly districts were counted, finishing the entire thirty-five.

The vote for Debs is given below by Assembly and election districts:

35th A. D.—7, 2, 7, 26, 35, 49, 34, 46, 55, 69, 48, 23, 5, 7, 12, 14, 15, 14, 7, 10, 37, 41, 9, 4, 16. Total, 620.

Total for the two districts, 1,464; for the thirty-three districts previously counted, 14,194; grand total, 15,658; a gain of 283 votes over the police returns. The vote for Wanhope for Governor was 14,487.

The official vote for Debs in 1904 in Manhattan and the Bronx was 16,472; consequently, the vote this year shows a loss of 814, compared with the big vote four years ago. This slight loss is more than overbalanced, however, by the gains made in Brooklyn and the Queens, so that the total for the greater city will show a good increase.

"ARTIFICIAL WIFE."

Nevada Judge Gives Women Divorce for This Name.

RENO, Nev., Nov. 20.—Mrs. Mamie LeDue, of Verdi, sat on the witness stand in Pike's court the other day, with her tears streaming down her cheeks, and related to the judge the story of her unhappy life with her husband, from whom she was seeking a divorce, and when she had finished her story Judge Pike granted it.

LeDue is a beautiful little woman and is not yet thirty years of age. She told the judge that her husband began abusing her shortly after their marriage and that this continued up to the time she left him, unable to stand his ill treatment any longer. On several occasions he told her that immoral women had been with her as good as she; that she was only an artificial wife anyway; and was more like a wooden woman than a real living person.

The LeDues were married in Verdi and have two children.

LABOR DEMANDS RIGHT TO WORK

Keir Hardie Defines Policy of British Workers as to Present Reforms.

Correspondence to The Call. LONDON, Nov. 13.—Under the auspices of the Halifax Trades and Labor Council a crowded audience assembled at the Theater Royal when Mr. Keir Hardie, M. P., spoke on the Right to Work bill of the Labor party.

Mr. Hardie, who was well received, said that the Labor party stood today, as it had always stood, apart from every other party, and would allow neither priest nor parson, publican nor politician, to interfere with its business or hinder its progress. To a good many the pace at which the party was traveling might seem slow, but the important thing to be remembered at this stage was that they were marching together. Now that the movement had swung into line he could see within the lifetime of this generation reforms accomplished and progress made which even a dozen years ago seemed altogether an impossibility. Claiming the Trades Disputes Act, the Workmen's Compensation Act, the Child Feeding Act, and the Old Age Pensions Act as the result of the efforts of the Labor party, he said the two latter were only beginnings in the right direction. The day would come when it would be held to be as natural and proper to provide food for the child as it was to provide the alphabet or the multiplication table, and the time would come when there would be universal pensions really worthy of the name. This season he hoped the Labor members would get through the Mines (eight hours day) bill, and early next session their Right to Work bill. The degree to which they would continue to make progress depended entirely and exclusively on the harmony that existed in their own ranks. If they wanted to give politicians an excuse for once more shelving the question of unemployment, then they could not do better than begin fighting among themselves. "This I know," declared Mr. Hardie, "that before another session closes the principle of the Right to Work bill will find a place on the statute book."

NEVADA JUSTICE.

Indian Killed His Squaw—Sentence Commuted on Tradition.

RENO, Nev., Nov. 20.—The State Board of Pardons, in special session at Carson, has commuted the sentence of Buckaroo Jack, an Indian, to life imprisonment. The Indian had been sentenced to hang at the state prison. He was convicted of killing his wife whom he accused of infidelity; and was twice sentenced to be hanged, an appeal to the Supreme Court saving him from death once more.

Sentence was commuted on the ground that the Indian acted in accordance with Indian law, which justifies killing the squaw when guilty of infidelity, and that he was temporarily insane when he found his squaw in the hut of another Indian.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—A series of big equal municipal suffrage mass meetings in the downtown district, as well as in every corner of Chicago, is being planned to arouse interest in the movement.

Headquarters were opened last week. The committee representing the 101 women's clubs engaged in the campaign will distribute posters setting forth the claims of women to the suffrage. Miss J. A. Adams, Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch and Mrs. Oliver W. Stewart are leading the movement.

"Bugle Calls" to Labor.

Mr. Benjamin Wood, of the firm of S. N. Wood & Co., is the author of "Bugle Calls," a labor book published in 1901, in advocacy of Trades Unions and the Union Label. In every advertisement will appear a quotation from his work.

TO-DAY WE QUOTE:

"The very life blood in our veins is the heritage of characters who thousands of years ago longed for a better condition, for a better land. This unrest, this discontent that impels men always and ever to seek better conditions, is natural and legitimate. We should not crush that divine spirit of unrest which makes the world as it is, and gives us whatever civilization exists. We should rather contribute to the sum of knowledge that which shall mold the mind and sharpen it into some effective force which shall further better human conditions."

N. B.—A little booklet with abstracts from "Bugle Calls" will be mailed for the asking. Send your address.

ATMATH OF THE M'FARLAND-MURPHY FIGHT

The six round glove fight between Packer McFarland and Tommy Murphy, in Philadelphia on Wednesday night, showed conclusively, in the opinion of competent ring followers, that neither man has any license to challenge Battling Nelson for the lightweight championship.

BAR DORANDO-- KID GLOVE ATHLETICS

Dorando, the Italian runner, who had a sensational finish with John J. Hayes in the Olympic Marathon race, was practically told yesterday to get off the grounds at Columbia University and was informed that he could not train in the gymnasium there for his race with Hayes on Thanksgiving Eve.

Captain Saunders, of the Columbia track team, had invited Dorando to visit the gymnasium, and the Italian got the impression that it was an invitation to train there. He went to the gymnasium to-day and was confronted by one of the officers of the university, who told him to get out. When Dorando asked the reason for the order, he was told it was because he had no permit.

DUNN VS. TRACY AT LONG ACRE A. C.

On Saturday evening, November 21, at the Long Acre Athletic Club, 158-166 West 29th street, Danny Dunn, of New York, meets Tommy Tracey, of Jersey City, in a six-round contest. Both boys have a good record as fighters and can be depended upon to put up a splendid fight.

FIGHT POSTPONED.

The Joe Thomas-Sallor Burke fight, which was scheduled to be held at the Fairmount Athletic Club to-night, has been postponed until next Friday. By that time Manager Gibson expects to have an injunction which will protect him from police interference and insure the holding of the bout.

WHIRLWIND A. C. RAIDED AGAIN

Although the Whirlwind Athletic Club had an injunction, the purpose of which was to restrain the police from interfering with the club's boxing bouts last night, the police refused to be restrained, and when the first pair of preliminary prizes stepped into the ring, General Bingham's men climbed into the arena and declaring that the injunction was not the "right kind," ordered that there be no fights and to insure the holding of the bout.

ECHOES FROM THE FIGHT WORLD

The conditions governing the Papke-Ketchel middleweight championship fight, which will be decided Thanksgiving Day, in Erie, call for twenty rounds at 155 pounds, the men to weigh in at 11:30 A. M., or about three hours before entering the ring. The way the money will be cut has not been made public. At present the betting is 10 to 7 on Papke, with some takers, but it is believed that the odds will be 2 to 1 before the day of the fight.

DAS HEXENLIED' HIT OF VOLPE SYMPHONY

By HARRY CHAPIN PLUMMER. Both variety and novelty attached to the program offered at the season's initial concert of the Volpe Symphony Orchestra in Carnegie Music Hall last evening, by the inclusion therein, as a recitation, of Ernest von Wildenbruch's dramatic poem, "Das Hexenlied" (The Witch's Song) with orchestral setting, composed by Max Schilling. Dr. Ludwig Wullner, the leader soloist and reciter, delivered the lines, and the instrumental support was provided by the Volpe aggregation, under the direction of Arnold Volpe, who conducted the concert. "Das Hexenlied," as a poetic work, is veritably a classic. As a program offering for symphony concert purposes—well, it is length and rather wearing. Wearing upon the soloist, upon the orchestral ensemble and, lastly, upon the audience. Schilling's instrumentation accomplishes little toward the relief of this lengthiness and wearisomeness. At times there is fire, life, spirit. And then there are trying intervals of tonal melody. The treatment of the ecclesiastical phase of the work is an opportunity irrevocably lost.

Dr. Wullner's interpretation of the poem was most artistic throughout and the reading given the symphonic score by Mr. Volpe was interestingly capable. Were it not for the fact that Dr. Wullner had appeared in the previous number of the program as the soloist in the rendition of two of Frank Schubert's and two of Richard Strauss' variations—"Der Wandersong" and "Prometheus" by the former and "Lied des Steinklopfers" and "Cecile" by the latter—which he sung with marvelous fidelity to the sentiment of each, the success of the Wil-

MELODY and HARMONY IN MANHATTAN.

Alwin Schroeder will be the soloist at the Sunday afternoon and evening concert of the Symphony Society of New York (November 22 and 24), which Walter Damrosch will conduct. The violinist will be heard in Faure's "Elegie and Beethoven's "Variation Symphonies" and the instrumental movements from Hector de Berlioz's "Romeo et Juliette" symphony—"Feast at the House of Capulet," "Love Scene" and Scherzo ("Queen Mab")—the "Variations and Fugue on a Jolly Theme" by Georg Schumann, and Dvorak's "Carnival" overture will be the orchestral offering of the program. On Sunday afternoon, November 23, at the fifth subscription concert of the society Herr Gustav Mahler, conductor at the Metropolitan Opera House, will make his American debut as a symphonic leader. While Herr Mahler has conducted many operatic works in this country, he has never wielded his baton at any symphony concert, although he is the author of many important symphonic compositions. For his first appearance Gustav Mahler has selected a program of classical works, all of which are great favorites with concert goers.

denbruch-Schillings offering might not, and probably would not, have been so emphatically scored. As it was, the storm of applause that followed Dr. Wullner from the platform upon his exit was as much a tribute to his splendid performance as to the character and accomplishment of the dramatic and musical composition. The voice of this artist is one of vast power and compelling beauty, and his style is impressively brilliant. In the Schubert and Strauss lieder he was accorded the pianoforte accompaniment of Conrad van Boos, whose finely tempered manipulation of the keys was a feature of the song number. The D-Minor symphony of Cesar Auguste Francke, the late Belgian master, was the chief orchestral presentation of the evening, and the Volpe Symphony gave a remarkably good execution of the elegantly proportioned work. The brass choirs were even and clear in tone and the string effects in the allegretto movement were equal with those of the old organizations that are regularly heard in the same concert room. Excellent as was the performance of the first three divisions, it was in the finale, in the glorious recapitulation of motif, that the orchestra displayed its most advanced study and its almost perfect esprit de corps. And when Francke's masterpiece was concluded, Mr. Volpe was recalled as many times as are most of the soloists appearing with symphony organizations nowadays. Ludwig van Beethoven's "Egmont" overture opened the program. Its delivery by the Volpe instrumentalists was acceptable as to technique, but disappointing from a standpoint of sympathy with the ideals of the Master of Bonn, as reflected in his "Egmont" score. The overture to Richard Wagner's grand opera, "The Flying Dutchman"—a somewhat unfortunate selection for so weighty a program as that presented last night—was the final offering. It was given weightily, ponderously, in a manner well within the intent of its composer. Had it been omitted, it would not have been missed.

sohn Hall, Tuesday afternoon, December 1, by Miss Lella Livingston Morse, the mezzo-soprano, who has sung in New York under various auspices during the last few years. Miss Morse has made a special study of French and German songs, and her program will contain a number of novelties. She will be assisted at the piano by Ethel Cave-Cole.

Francis Rogers' recital at Mendelssohn Hall, Tuesday afternoon, November 24, gives promise of being the success that it has been each season for several years past. Mr. Rogers' program promises a number of novelties, among them several songs by American composers.

Following Lhevinne's last recital here to-morrow, the pianist will experience three busy weeks of concert giving, which will occupy the time

THE STAGE

WHAT STAGE PRODUCTIONS COST The cost of producing plays for the modern stage has been the subject of much discussion in recent years. While fortune has been spent in this direction, often the costs are greatly exaggerated. It is a far cry from the crude accessories of the English theater during the time of Charles II. when movable scenery was first introduced at Drury Lane Theater by Sir William Davenant.

Development was very slow. Dumas fils had a tremendous fight to have his "La Dame aux Camillias" given the proper "mise-en-scene." He was fought at every step to have his stage setting made a replica of the period, but his insistent demands were granted and the first modern drawing room on the stage was represented in its entirety. The first great storm effect ever properly produced, and this without reflection upon the latter day melodramatic productions of Drury Lane, was accomplished by William A. Lane, who was represented in his production, "Under a Polar Star," at the Academy of Music, New York, in the 80s. There the breaking of an ice floe into fragments, the collision of two icebergs, and the subsequent wrecked violently by them under a tremendous sea cloth which covered the entire stage. It was in this production that the modern electric spotlight was first displayed and used in fine all stage illusions have been brought about through the agency and inventions of gas and electric light.

In ordinary interiors the cost is divided now largely among the accessories which make up the scene, and in the same place cost $1,000. The Queen's closet in "Hamlet," although a scene of utmost simplicity, cost $1,500, and the scene of act II in "Macbeth," the murder of Duncan, cost $3,500. Another massive and expensive setting is that of the Grand Opera House, for which Mr. Bracy paid $3,500. Still another item of large cost is the throne room of "Hamlet," with the superb effect of great depth, which cost $1,000. In an interview, "I recall the horror expressed by Marie de Grey, whom I supported in England in my youth, when she was asked to pay $20 for a setting that served for $100. I recall that she played "When I made my production of 'The Corsican Brothers' twenty years ago, in 1888, Augustus Pitou and I thought we were doing the thing handsomely when we settled bills for $3,500 for a play five acts long."

"Israel," Henri Bernstein's newest play, is not, as has been printed, anti-Semitic, but strongly pro-Semitic, which is not to be wondered at, considering Bernstein's own nationality. Rejane is now playing the only woman's part contained in the drama at her theater in Paris. The story is of a wealthy, well situated Jew, who has some membership in a fashionable Paris club, but is blackballed through the efforts of a young aristocrat who hates the Jews with an unrestrained and unrelenting venom. The catastrophe of the play evolved out of the fact that the aristocrat turns out to be the illegitimate son of the Jew. The youngster kills himself when he has done all in his power in hostility to his father, Charles Frohman has the play for America and England.

Intervening between his program of to-morrow and his reappearance in Carnegie Music Hall, he will be heard at the concert of the Philharmonic Society on Friday, the 11th, and Saturday, the 12th, of December. Next week Lhevinne will play in Oberlin, Akron and Cincinnati, O., and New Orleans, La. The week of November 30th will be the principal concert performances in Kansas City, Topeka and Denver, and also he will make his first appearance this season in Chicago. Other cities in which he will play while on tour are Milwaukee and Buffalo.
