Kropotkin Explains Increase of Insanity and Suicide Among Czar's Victims.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—"To be sure, suicide and insanity are common in Russian prisons," said Prince Peter Kropotkin...

"Just for illustration, the government inspector at Katorgani Prison recently placed the political prisoners upon the same basis as common criminals because they refused to answer when he addressed them contemptuously as 'them'..."

BOSTON, Sept. 26.—The much advertised pitching duel between Keating of New York and Vandyeke of the Red Sox, two recruits from the New England League...

VARIED OPINIONS ON VARIED SUBJECTS

AS TO CONGESTION.

Editor of The Call: In your issue of September 22 you reprinted an article from the public attacking the allied real estate interests for its position on the Sullivan-Brooks bill...

In this article reference was made to the fact that the Sullivan-Brooks bill was "championed by the Committee on Congestion of Population as a means of relieving overcrowding on the East Side."

For example, at one of the hearings last winter before the Mayor's Commission on Additional Sources of Revenue, Mr. Lustgarten, who had charge of the program for the speakers favoring the Sullivan-Brooks bill, stated frankly to me that he considered our claim well founded...

There has been a good deal of misunderstanding about this bill. It is essentially a measure aimed to carry out the Henry George doctrine of land taxation. The question whether or not the Henry George doctrine of taxation is a wise one is one thing. The question whether the effect of this bill will be to increase or decrease congestion is another thing.

Editor of The Call: In your article about Dr. Folkmar on Washington, and her lectures on womanhood and motherhood, you have this sentence: "Dr. Folkmar's address, which was entirely frank, was the first of the kind ever delivered in public in the United States."

FOOLING THE PEOPLE

At the Bull Moose convention they did it admirably. At the Republican convention they are doing it to the limit. At the Democratic convention they will do it. They will search carefully for the "best man," the one that can fool the greatest number of voters.

No one who looks over the field can doubt for a moment that the nomination of Oscar Straus was an inspiration. He is about the strongest candidate that could have been selected, and his nomination puts the other parties to their swiftest pace.

Oscar Straus is a man of money, and he has command of money. He has not these many years been forced to go around seeking a job. He had other people working for him. While it is denied that he is active in the firm of Macy, it is a fact that he is a beneficiary of the firm of Macy.

Yet there is no one who could find a bit of difference between him and Roosevelt of the spiked club, between him and Charlie Murphy, between him and Boss Barnes.

It is true that Straus is a Jew, Murphy a Catholic, Barnes a Protestant. Yet each receives his income in practically the same way. Murphy is suspected of having close alliance with several prominent contractors and of making a great deal of money from them.

Barnes is a newspaper proprietor and a landed gent, or a member of the landed gentry. He is also the possessor of a college education, for he is a scholar in politics, having been graduated from Harvard, and he has certain stocks that he inherited from his ancestors.

He might be able to look with contempt on Straus, who receives his income from a department store. He might be able to look with contempt on Murphy, who receives his income from running political contracting jobs.

Even in a newspaper office there may be underpaid, almost sweated labor. Even in a tenement there may be people who have to toil and toil to get their rent together. Even in the case of the possessor of stocks, bank stocks not excepted, there may be some who are exploited.

It is not impossible, even that one of the contractor laborers of Boss Murphy is paying part of it. Neither is it impossible that some of the store employes of Straus are paying part of it.

These three eminent gentlemen are supreme in New York. Straus is famous and potent through the nomination he has received. The other two are famous through the nominations they can give.

A CHINAMAN NOMINATED

Boston Republicans have nominated to the Great General Court an American who happened to be born of Chinese parents. He was born here, just the same as Taft or Foss or any of the other prominent persons.

We have decided that Chinamen are not human beings. Or, if we do not mean that exactly, we have decided that no matter what they do, no matter how intelligent they are, no matter how they work and help make this the grandest aggregation of free, independent people on the face of the earth, they cannot become citizens.

It is not probable the Chinaman will be elected. That may be the simple reason why he was nominated. But it will be interesting to find out whether or not he is an American and whether or not he has the right to run for office.

So far, his status has not been defined. But as it has been brought up and probably will be fought out in the courts, it will decide a few questions that are of the utmost importance.

Questions To Easy Marks

Queries and Observations Suggested by the Indifference of the Workingman to the Reasons for His Peripatetic Existence and Sordid Misery.

Can it be possible that up to the present day of your life you have never found anything wrong with the arrangement of society to which you belong? Or which you call yourself a member? Has it never occurred to you that there are many struggling in vain for mere existence, hampered by some unknown force, at least unknown to you?

You have many a time been puzzled when confronted by those riddles, but most of them you answered with a shrug of your shoulders. "I suppose it must be so, as it has always been so, and shall always remain so."

The education you received in your youth pointed toward this most easy way of solving problems hard to crack, namely, by believing in them. Hence, the bump of credulity on the back of your skull has reached a far higher development than the one of reason.

Just think of it. The dastardly economic arrangement of present society goes as far as to step in between you and your wish to act like a man, to fulfill your mission on earth, to live select, as man and wife. But now what will the result be?

Privately-Owned Cossacks

Almost every open clash between the capitalist class and the working class in this country brings into action an armed force of men of the most vicious character—the privately-owned cossacks of King Capital.

Under the pretext of protecting property, the mercenary army is organized and armed with deadly weapons. It consists for the most part of criminal thugs, and utterly devoid of principle or moral feeling.

While the recent history of the class struggle in the United States has furnished many instances of the use of these privately-owned cossacks, none has been more flagrant than that of the mine guards in West Virginia.

"Having spent many weeks among the miners of West Virginia, and having had an active part in their strike, with all the harrowing experiences something of the conditions that prevail there and of the war that is being waged by Henry Glasscock, Davis, Elkines and other barons, I know that the miners have not only the right of self-defense, but that they have the right to organize and defend themselves."

These barbarous outrages were perpetrated in the State of West Virginia under the administration of Governor Glasscock, a member of the Bull Moose party. Up to date the voice of Theodore Roosevelt has not been raised in defense of the miners.

The proud distinction of permitting privately owned cossacks to terrorize whole communities in the interest of private greed belongs entirely to this "land of the free and home of the brave." In no other civilized nation are things tolerated for even the briefest period of time—where countries are unable to enforce their own laws, and are obliged to preserve peace and Findings of the Times.

The real strength of any social movement, its power to effect its ultimate purpose, lies not alone in its ability to make progress along the lines which the logic of its position has mapped out for it.

When it is remembered that for thirty years the Socialist party has had to face a policy of ridicule and public scorn in its work of agitation and education along lines now suddenly become popular, the victory thus achieved is one of no small dimensions.

The fact can elude no one that the Progressive, or Bull Moose, party is made up to a large extent of elements that are genuinely anxious for social reform. That for the time being these elements find themselves grouped around and under the leadership of a single personality, whose past record for "social justice" does not justify their present enthusiasm for any future performance on his part along this line, should not obscure the fact that sooner or later some movement of the kind would have manifested itself.

SOCIALISM AND LIBERTY

Liberty is power—the power to press one's self and realize one's own ideas. Who can be what he would like to be without the power to do what he wishes? In free countries, it is the collective action of the masses that gives each individual the power to do what he wishes. It is this collective action that gives each individual the power to do what he wishes.
