

ELECTION RETURNS FROM ALL OVER OHIO

The report of the Socialist vote in Ohio is still incomplete and the official returns will have to finally determine just what it amounted to. The returns given below show that the complete vote this year in thirty counties was 3,795 against 5,307 in the same counties last year and 2,518 two years ago. The incomplete vote from sixteen other counties give 7,770 this year to 9,739 in these same places in these counties last year and 4,270 two years ago.

Lawrence County. County-Cowen, 115; Swing, 105; Cowen, (03), 13. Increase, 112. At Ironton the Socialist candidate for mayor got 232 votes.

Licking County. Newark-Cowen, 201; Swing, 205; Cowen, (03), 66. Increase over 1903, 235; over 1904, 86.

Lorain County. Lorain-Cowen, 276; Swing, 527; Cowen, (03), 29. Increase, 247. For mayor, Miller polled 279.

Lucas County. Lucas-Cowen, 1,297; Swing, 2,430; (03), 918. Increase, 341. Toledo-Cowen, 1,197; Swing, 2,237; (03), 871. Increase, 326. For mayor Reed polled 859 against 539 for mayor at the last municipal election, a gain of 320.

Medina County. Wadsworth Township-Cowen, 70; Swing, 63; Cowen, (03), 33. Increase, 47.

Meigs County. County-Cowen, 89; Swing, 131; Cowen, (03), 42. Increase, 47.

Mercer County. County-Cowen, 27; Swing, 18; Cowen, (03), 21. Increase, 6.

Noble County. Belle Valley-Cowen, 4. Figures for previous years not obtainable.

The Story of a New York Working Girl Told By Herself

Brilliant Review By Jack London

(From The San Francisco "Examiner.") Here is a true book. It is a human drama. It should be read by every man, woman and child who cherishes the belief that she is not a mere fish-bell. It can be bought for $1.20 at any bookstore. For one who has not the price, it can be procured for nothing at any public library. The man who reads to the end of this book will find that it is not a mere fish-bell. It is a book that will teach him his duty. If he replies to this book, it is not to God, but to his brother's keeper? Then is that man a coward as well?

At last, with the amount to take what offered—$3 a week, while leaving in a paper-book factory. Having agreed to go to the factory, she was returned to her den in a cut of a heap of ashes in the midst of a furious storm. She had to take the clothes she possessed in the world was a dollar and a half, the clothes on her back. She was left with a few pennies. Her night was coming on. She slept that night in a temporary shelter provided for street carriers, but less by the tenement fire.

While working steadily, and as the hours dragged on I began to grow dead tired. The awful noise and confusion, the noise of the factory, the noise of the glue, and the agony of breaking ankles and blistered hands, seemed all to be in vain. At last it was 12 o'clock. The day was over, and there was half an hour for lunch.

The author went to live in a horror called a Working Girl's Home, where beds were ten cents a night. At first she was very happy, but as the days passed, she was not allowed to return to her home. She had to sleep in a room with ten other girls, when they were left the lodging, they were not allowed to return to their homes. She had no money, and she had to work for her food.

Running a Singer. But times grew slack and the girls were laid off by the weeping foreman. The girls' third job was running a Singer sewing machine. It was a very inferior sort of machine, and the girls sawing of terrific noise. The girls were laid off and the foreman raised their eyes. Every pair of eyes seemed to be held in fascination by the electric sewing machine. Every face, tense and stony, bespoke a superb effort to concentrate mind and body upon the point of a needle. Every form was crouched in the effort to guide the seam through the pressure of the needle.

Requires a Born Worker. But it was piece-work, the author was destitute, and she would have to make her own way before she could be trusted. Rachel, who worked with the frenzy of a wild beat struck by lightning, she was the one who broke down, "watched the clock impatiently, and crouched sullenly over her machine, who claimed that she had to be born to work on muslin, and who said she was a born worker. "My mother was working on shirts for a straight ten months before I was born."

Then the author got work in a steam laundry, shaking out the napkins and gaiters, and she came to the steam wringer. Her wage was $3.50 per week while learning, $4 per week when she was able to work. "Ever worked at this before?" she asked another girl waiting for a job. "No, I never," she replied. "I've never worked at this before," she replied. "I've never worked at this before," she replied. "I've never worked at this before," she replied.

After all the mere getting of work for her did not find difficulty. The trouble was not in getting work, but in getting her share of it. The trouble was not in getting work, but in getting her share of it. The trouble was not in getting work, but in getting her share of it. The trouble was not in getting work, but in getting her share of it.

THE VOTE OUTSIDE THE STATE

New York City. The vote this year in 1902, against 23,970 last year and 15,847 two years ago. This fall it explained in the editorial from the "Worker" reprinted on another page. At other points in the state the gains were uniform, as the following reports show.

Schenectady-Socialist-Party vote for mayor 7,697, slightly higher than last year's ticket. Last year 404 for Debs and Hanford.

Wellsville-Socialist vote for Assembly 36; last year, 22 for Assembly and 25 for Debs. Lowest vote this year county ticket in 29.

Terre Haute-The official canvass of the vote shows a decrease from 1,800 in 1902 to 1,717 last year. Last year's figures are not at hand, so an estimate of the decrease cannot be made.

Marion increased from 245 for president in 1904 to 684 for mayor in 1905.

Utah. Bingham succeeded in electing the town president and the entire board of four trustees over a citizens' ticket last year.

Indiana. Terre Haute-The official canvass of the vote shows a decrease from 1,800 in 1902 to 1,717 last year. Last year's figures are not at hand, so an estimate of the decrease cannot be made.

Marion increased from 245 for president in 1904 to 684 for mayor in 1905.

A "NEW" WORKER

While the patience of "The Worker" and Comrade Hillquit is to be commended, yet their criticisms of the "Social Democratic Herald" published elsewhere are much to be regretted.

The paragraph in the New York comrades very properly object is another illustration of the failure to appreciate the eternal fitness of things which has so often distinguished the Milwaukee "matry" of the first years of its existence.

But it is significant that the very first people to turn upon the New York comrades and smite them with a rod of derision and contempt when these comrades needed encouragement and comradeship were the ones who "The Worker" and the New York comrades had just succored.

AN ENDORSEMENT OF HEARST.

But there is another and more serious side to this matter and it is to this that the desire to see the Socialist Party and the National Executive Committee pointed out that Berger's articles in defense of his support of a capitalist candidate betrayed very evident signs of a tendency toward Hearstian motifs came to the mind of the writer.

Comrade Hillquit amount to PRACTICALLY NOTHING MORE NOR LESS THAN AN ENDORSEMENT OF HEARST.

WHERE "STATE AUTONOMY" DOESN'T WORK.

But while the paragraph from the "Social Democratic Herald" is bad in itself, the paragraph which also quotes from the "Herald" is worse still. It has long been a custom for Bergers to say things in his German paper which he neglects to say in the "Social Democratic Herald."

FALSE AND INSULTING.

This "Die Wahrheit" article is noteworthy for two things. First, the gratuitous insult to the New York comrades, who have only recently been mentioned by Berger as "the best of the best."

Secondly, the paragraph which also quotes from the "Herald" is worse still. It has long been a custom for Bergers to say things in his German paper which he neglects to say in the "Social Democratic Herald."

JUSTIFYING THE HEARST MOVEMENT.

Now what does this really mean? It means that if the Socialist Party in New York was merely a "Revolutionary Socialist Party" and not a Revolutionary Socialist Party it would be a good enough party for the middle class reformers and opportunists to support.

Finally, it begins to look like the Crestline referendum and misrepresenting that result as an endorsement rather than the rebuke it was, is determined to foist upon the Socialist party the tactics of which he is the redoubtable champion and for which he has received eulogies from capitalist papers and magazines.

From "The Worker"

This campaign has developed a new Hearst supporter at long range. In the Milwaukee "Social Democratic Herald" of Oct. 21, the following treacherous editorial paragraph appeared:

"With Hearst taking up pioneering work for collectivism and the two divisions of the Socialists covertly throwing mud-balls at municipalities in New York City it would seem that the two latter would have pretty hard work really showing the difference, if forced to meet the question."

And according to the "Social Democratic Herald" the disgruntled officialdom of the Socialist Party in New York City is so determined to "boss the job" that they are actually trying to "boss the job" themselves.

Further comment on these two paragraphs, written when the Socialists of the largest city in the nation were unanimously engaged in the severe struggle they have ever had to face, is unnecessary.

It is to be regretted that the comrades everywhere, when they see other papers which do not know the real attitude and character of the sources from which these articles emanate, "The Worker."

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING

(Continued from last week.) Letters bearing on the Minnesota situation, which are being received from Thomas Van Lear, Harriet Hanson, N. Hellman and S. M. Alderson, are being taken under consideration.

Motion by Berger—"That in view of a certain lack of the total incapacity of certain leaders of the New York Socialists to build up a Socialist party—there-although conditions in the city would be such as to make it possible for the building up of a Socialist party than anywhere else, that the State—William Hearst plays there a part that he could not play anywhere else."

"Above all he is decried or praised as the standard-bearer of Socialism, thought by the whole capitalist press, although Hearst asserts unmistakably at every opportunity that he is undoubtedly unopposed to Socialism, for which we must believe his words."

Substitute for Work—"I wish to state that as the National Executive Committee in the province of the National Executive Committee to take action upon the communication received from the parties involved. We believe that until the National Committee has taken definite action to the contrary, or the comrades in Minnesota finally settle their differences, the National Executive Committee as heretofore, but refrain from touring national speakers in Minnesota as a part of its program."

Motion by Berger—"I move that the National Executive Committee continue to receive visits and to recognize the State Committee of Minnesota as the official representative of the party in that state."
